EVENING NEWSPAPERS yesterday announced a "strike of 250,000 automobile workers set for Wednesday, unless demands are met." That would mean a loss of at least one million dollars a day in wages, one million a day for rent, food, shoes, clothes, bills accumulated. It seems an unfortunate time to knock one million dollars a day from the payrolls of the country, when the national struggle is to increase payrolls.

Unions, after striving vainly for years to unionize the automobile industry, think they see their opportunity to force unionization now, because of their belief that the national administration is with them, or fears to antagonize them. Union leaders probably know their business better than anybody else.

If they don't know it, and the strike goes through, they will know it later.

THERE MUST have been an interesting look on the face of Gen. Johnson, NRA, when he read "Gen. Johnson's name was booed every time it was mentioned at a meeting of 800 union automobile workers" in Philadelphia. Gen. Johnson has been bossing employers, demanding fair treatment for workers, creating jobs, raising wages, shortening hours, giving everybody two or three days' fishing a week, and, for his pains, "his name is booed every time it is mentioned."

If he expected anything else, he does not know human nature, or the impossibility of satisfying its demands.

WHILE UNION men, not wisely, "boo" the name of Gen. Johnson, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce issues a statement that union leaders "seek to make a union card, not merit, the sole condition of employment. They seek to control who shall be employed, and what the output shall be."

Unionism will reply that it represents the right of workers to say something about conditions under which they work. The matter will be settled, eventually, by President Roosevelt. His executive powers have enabled him to tell employers what they must do, and will, doubtless, enable him to tell workers what they must do.

THE AUTOMOBILE Chamber of Commerce believes that the heads of the automobile industry can run the industry better than union labor could run it. The strike, if it comes, may settle that question.

It is certain that if unions had run the automobile industry from the beginning there would not be twenty-five million automobiles running in the United States now, or five millions, either. The development of the automobile industry depended on new ideas, skilled engineering and labor saving devices, such as the mass production line that brings the work to the worker, instead of letting him waste half the day running around trying to remember where he left some tool.

UNION LABOR can hardly complain of a system that has given new jobs to millions, at improved wages, while supplying the people with more than twenty-five million automobiles. If wise, union labor will not be too domineering with an industry in which labor has played the part of standing where it was told to stand, and turning the screw that it was told to turn.

LAST SATURDAY, Mrs. Julia Amburgey, of Carrs Forks Headquarters, Ky., had nineteen children, all living. Today she has twenty-two, all living and well. She gave birth to triplets on Sunday, having already three sets of twins. A sufficient number of such mothers would offset the menace of the yellow or any other race. But airplanes, mechanical weapons, explosives, poison gas, engineering and chemistry will do more effectively, with less hardship for mothers.

IF MRS. AMBURGEY had been born among red Indians of ancient migratory days, her triplets and nineteen other children would have presented a serious problem. The Indian husband left the mother to carry all the babies, in those days, as the tribe moved from place to place. Carrying triplets, and the youngest pair of twins, would have been difficult.

If, as an additional miracle of maternity, Mrs. Amburgey is able to nurse her triplets, she will at least escape the constantly recurring puzzle with each feeding:

"Now, let me see! Which side did baby begin on last time?"

With three babies to feed, that would not matter, either side would do. Mrs. Amburgey is forty-six years old.

SIX THOUSAND policemen, members of the Holy Name Society in New York, pledged never to take the name of God in vain, are evidently all healthy policemen. They breakfasted together after attending mass last Sunday, and this is what they ate: 3,000 grapefruit, 1,200 pounds of oatmeal, 24,000 scrambled eggs, 2,500 roast chickens, 4,500 pounds of potatoes, 12,000 sausages, 1,000 pounds of sugar.

With this breakfast they drank 900 gallons of coffee, 800 quarts of milk, 1,250 quarts of cream.

THE FRENCHMAN, with his petit dejeuner consisting of coffee and milk, sometimes, but rarely, one roll added, will shudder as he reads about that New York policemen's breakfast. According to figures, supplied by the Associated Press, each man ate four eggs, six rolls, two sau-

Senator Again Charges Political Influence to Pittsburgh Line

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—Senator Robinson, the majority leader, told the Senate today he had evidence that "supports very strongly" statements he made on the Senate floor last Thursday that the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, Inc., was a "strong political factor in Pennsylvania" and that the "Mellons were prominent in its affairs."

Robinson said that the minute book of the executive committee of the corporation and letters written by former Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon himself showed the corporation was a "strong political factor in Pennsylvania" and its officers "designedly collaborated for the purpose of influencing both state and national legislation, and in fact boasted of their political power and influence."

MELLON LETTER READ

Robinson read into the Senate record a letter to Chairman Black, of the Air Mail Investigating Committee, from Andrew W. Mellon, saying neither the former Secretary of the Treasury nor any member of his family owned any stock in Pittsburgh Aviation Industries except "inconsequential amounts" subscribed by a brother and two nephews, and these only in furthering a local enterprise to establish service between Washington and Pittsburgh. Robinson added:

"Moreover, some of these communications are couched in such language as to indicate that performance of 'civic duties' was not the primary motive, but that control of aviation in

PARROT FEVER SOURCE TRACED

Although three illegal and apparently diseased parrot shipments were found to have entered Pittsburgh last January, nothing was done by the City Health Department to guard against parrot fever until March 5, it was revealed today. At the same time it was disclosed that two more bird shops are suspected as sources of the disease believed to have taken at least 10 lives here since February 1. Nearly 50 persons are believed infected with the disease. Many of the suspected birds were dead upon arrival. The Health Department knew of the illegal shipment.

The two new suspected sources of psittacosis are W. T. Grant Company, 510 Market street, and the Paris Pet Shop, 905 Penn avenue. Six employes of the Grant company and one of the Paris shop are ill. One case from each shop has been diagnosed as parrot fever.

Every bird which has been in contact with an infected bird is a

WORLD-WIDE SPY RING IN N.Y. BARED

2 Americans Held in Paris Admit Plot Against Homeland

PARIS, March 20.—(AP.)—Spying against the United States, France and Great Britain was charged by police today in a widespread plot they said finally had been revealed through the testimony of two American prisoners.

The two prisoners said an international spy gang, operating in New York, had sent them as agents to France.

Investigators said Germany and Soviet Russia had been the beneficiaries of what authorities described as a vast international espionage syndicate.

Police of the United States and England have been co-operating in the investigation of the spy ring, it was explained, and it is largely through their efforts that the tangled skein of the mystery of the so-called plot finally is commencing to be unraveled.

Police voiced their charge as developments came thick and fast following a seven-hour questioning of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz, the Americans, in a secret session before Judge Andre Benon, investigating magistrate, which did not end until shortly before last midnight.

THIRD WOMAN ESCAPES

Early today, five persons including two women were arrested in what police described as a direct outgrowth of their questioning of the Switzes, held in the alleged plots since December 20.

Court officials said the pair made "a full confession of whatever part they played."

A third woman police had expected to arrest today escaped, it was announced, before the early morning raids which brought those held in connection with the investigation of the alleged spying to 15.

After the examination of the Switzes, the magistrate announced he had signed warrants for the arrest of persons whose alleged connection with the band had not been suspected before the Americans were questioned.

U. S. AIR PILOT

Switz, who is a licensed airplane pilot in the United States and France, received packages and letters through the American University Union here. The last parcel, supposed to contain documents, arrived after Mr. and Mrs. Switz were arrested and police obtained it from the union.

Authorities said the confessions were obtained from Switz and his wife, when they were confronted with a mass of detailed testimony police had been gathering for months.

After a session that was not interrupted even for a sandwich, the young couple emerged weary but smiling from the magistrate's room.

The examining magistrate who has quizzed the American couple since their arrest last December indicated the Americans would benefit from their revelation, by referring to Article 10 of the new French espionage law which lightens the punishment in cases where "voluntary" information is given.

SINGER AND SON THREATENED

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—(AP.)—Bing Crosby, actor and singer, was warned by police today of a reported plot to kidnap him or his 9-month-old son, Gary.

W. Vincent Noice, 22, informed police that a man he saw making a telephone call in the Pacific Electric Station aroused his suspicion. He followed the man and said he overheard him engage in conversation with another, with such remarks as these dotting the talk:

"Are you sure Crosby will pay?"

"Sure, he'll pay; he's making $3,000 a week."

"We'll get the money so slick the cops won't ever hear about it."

Officers said the singer has long kept a special guard at his Toluca Lake home.

SHANNON RUNS FOR GOVERNOR

HARRISBURG, March 20.—(AP.)—Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor.

He said:

"In submitting my name to the voters of the commonwealth, I am doing so first of all as an individual, a man of the people, aspiring to the highest office within the gift of the voters of the commonwealth.

"I have withheld my announcement until today but have been convinced by friends that the zero hour had arrived.

"My friends in all sections of this commonwealth are entitled to know of my decision to be a candidate."

INJUNCTION SOUGHT IN DELEWARE

Charge Steel Company Disregarded Code, President's Order

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—The Federal government today sought an injunction to restrain the Weirton Steel Company from violating the collective bargaining section of the National Recovery Act.

In a suit filed in the Federal Court of Delaware, the government also asked that the company be enjoined "from discharging, laying off or changing the condition of employment" of any of the companies' employes on account of union affiliations and from interfering in an election conducted by the employes or by any agency designated by them."

The company was charged with "violating the National Recovery Act" and the Code of Fair Competition for the iron and steel industry."

It also charged the company with violating its agreement with the other members of the steel industry to comply with the provisions of the code and with violating the executive order of President Roosevelt of February 1, 1934.

The Departmen of Justice said the bill of complaint charged the company with having made the following violations of the code of fair competition for the iron and steel industry:

"1—The denial of the right of its employes to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing.

"—The denial of their right of self-organization.

"3—The interference by the Wierton Steel Company with the designation of representatives of its employes.

"4—The interference by the Weirton Steel Company with the self-organization and concerted activities of its employes.

"5—The exercise of restraint and coercion on the part of the Weirton Steel Company with regard to the exercise of the rights of its employes conferred by Section 7 (A) of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

"6—The imposition by the Weirston Steel Company of the requirement that its employes, as a condition of employment, join its company dominated union.

"7—The imposition of the condition by the Weirton Steel Company that its employes refrain from joining or affiliating with the union of their own choice."

Rail Wage War End Sought

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt today warned railway employers and workers to settle their wage dispute and suggested a public commission to examine the controversy.

The President took this action shortly after railway employes had demanded a 20 per cent wage increase above what they are now getting, effective July 1.

In a letter to the conferring railway executives and labor officials, the President repeated his proposal for a six months extension of the present wage agreement. He said

"It is a profound disappointment to learn that no progress toward an agreement has been made at the conference.

"I fear that sight is being lost of the most important factor of all, the good of the country.

"If no agreement is reached, and in default of arbitration, it may be necessary for me with due regard to the protection of the general public interest, to appoint a commission to examine thoroughly into the labor

MONOPOLY LAID TO STEEL CODE

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—The Trade Commission reported to the Senate today the NRA code for the iron and steel industry had insured its control by the larger units, had caused price fixing and produced violations of commission orders.

These statements were made by the commission in reply to a Senate resolution requesting an investigation of the steel code with reference to price fixing, price rises, and other effects of the code.

In a general survey, the commission said:

"The distribution of voting power among members of the code is such as to insure control by the larger producing interests."

The price system of the code was said to be in violation of the 1924 order of the commission which forbade the use of a basing-point practice.

The price system was said further to tend "to eliminate the small enterprise not located at the basing point."

The commission cited as an example a steel mill which is located in Duluth that must charge its local customers the uniform mill base price charged by other mills in its district and, in addition, $6.60 per ton—the freight rate from Chicago, which is not paid at all.

DELAY ASKED IN AUTO STRIKE

President Appeals To Workers, Calls Bosses to Capital

DETROIT, March 24.—(AP.)—A telegram from President Roosevelt asking that any strike action in the automobile industry be deferred until Thursday was made public here this afternoon by William Collins, American Federation of Labor representative here.

Collins said he would read his reply at a meeting of union leaders scheduled for late today at Pontiac, Mich., and declined to say until then what his reaction to the President's request was.

The President's telegram read:

"In the public interest I am constrained to request you to withhold strike action called for this afternoon until I can have a conference in Washington in an effort to reconcile existing differences. I suggest Thursday. Will you advise me immediately? Franklin D. Roosevelt."

CALLS EMPLOYERS

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP.)—Leaders of the automobile manuacturing industry, in session here in an attempt to avert a threatened strike in the industry, announced this afternoon that they would go to Washington in response to a request from President Roosevelt.

A statement issued after an all-day session said:

"The automobile manufacturers were advised by Gen. Johnson this afternoon that the President desired to see them tomorrow.

"Accordingly a committee of the directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce who have been meeting in New York will go to Washington tonight in response to the President's summons.

Suit Over 'Chiseler' Term Shocks Oakie

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—(INS.)—Jack Oakie, film comedian, today expressed great surprise over a $125,000 suit filed against him by Marty Martyn, dance director.

Martyn charged Oakie in the presence of a group of film celebrities had called him a "blackmailer, "chiseler," and "a $2 a day bum."

Christian Girl Awaits Royal Oriental Wedding

BULLETIN.

HUE, ANNAM, March 20.—(AP.)—The young Emperor Bao Dai of Annam and the beautiful 18-year-old commoner, N'Guyen Huu Hao, were married today in the first part of a four-day ceremony.

HUE, Amman, March 20.—(AP.)—A slender Christian miss called Mariette waited in the imperial palace today to wed the Emperor Bao Dai.

She was shielded, as is the rule of Oriental decorum, from her fiance's gaze and, although the wedding was previously announced for today, secretive court officials said it would take place "some time later in the week."

Meanwhile, the august Buddhist ancestors of the Emperor were notified by the burning of Chinese banns on the royal family altar.

Their silence, like that of the Vatican, was taken as a sign of tacit consent, but the people grumbled because the monarch is marrying a girl reared outside their faith.

Discontent was evidenced yesterday when the pretty bride-to-be, in a native costume substituted for her Paris frocks, arrived from her home in Cochin-China.

Mariette's real name is N'Guyen Huu Hao. She is 18 years old, the daughter of a wealthy merchant, and was educated in a Paris convent.

With the exact outcome of the religious question still unknown, the court minister performed the ancient oriental ceremony of burning two papers—one a prayer to the emperor's ancestors and the other bearing the name and age of the bride.

Poets and minstrels, wandering through villages along the banks of the "river of perfumes"—in which the imperial elephants bathe—sought to stir up popular enthusiasm over the love match. Their verses and songs met with little applause.

Nude Dance Holds Girls, 61 Men Free

Entertainers Show 'Costumes' Police Failed to See

Arrested as spectators at a fan dance—without fans—in a garage at 7325 Penn avenue last night, 61 men who appeared for a hearing in Morals Court today were discharged by Magistrate J. W. McGowan.

Twenty-three others who were seized, including two women who described themselves as Jean Foster, of the 5700 block of Forbes street, and Margie Williams, 22, Fifth avenue, did not appear.

Rae Evans, 25, and Virginia Cross, 25, both of the 500 block of Lockhart street, North Side, the "entertainers," tearfully testified they were not doing a nude dance when the garage was raided, and exhibited costumes as evidence.

After Police Lieut. Albert Bacher, who arrested them said he saw no clothes on the girls when he broke in the place, they were held for further investigation.

WEIRTON STEEL FIGHT THREATENS NATIONAL STRIKE

ASK SHOWDOWN IN DISPUTE OVER UNION

Labor Representatives Demand Action in Controversy

Events within the steel industry are moving quickly toward a crisis.

The threat of strike was uttered by Weirton labor leaders here yesterday as they left for the capital seeking to force a showdown, and set a deadline for settlement of their quarrel with E. T. Weir, president of Weirton Steel.

The labor delegates declared they are ready to join workers of the automotive industry in a general strike if their demands are not met.

READY TO STRIKE

On his way to Washington yesterday, President William J. Long, of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, said here:

"There is a threat of a national steel strike behind the Weirton mess. If we don't get satisfaction in Washington, there is no doubt about it—the steel workers in other sections of the country will go out on strike."

To what extent the steel strike would reach, if called, is problematical.

Louis Leonard, international secretary of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, said the international association has not yet considered any proposals.

Leonard, however, said the 135 new locals, organized in the last eight months, have pledged their support for any action that may be decided upon. Leonard said there are approximately 100,000 members in these new locals.

AVOIDS STRIKE TALK

The international secretary was reluctant to discuss possibilities of a strike. He said the locals could, if they wanted, call a "holiday" without the consent of the international association.

He was asked:

"What is the difference between a strike and a holiday?"

He replied:

"Well, you remember the old wheeze that ran something like this: Bologna is still bologna no matter how you slice it."

Throughout the country, steel companies have united in protesting enactment of the Wagner and Connery measures.

The conference of 50 steel company executives here yesterday unanimously agreed to send messages to Senators and Representatives in Congress attacking the Wagner bill on grounds it would set up an industrtial dictatorship by professional labor leaders.

Similar protests were voiced by steel men in conferences in other centers of the industry, Cleveland, New York and Chicago.

WAR ON CRIME BY U. S. URGED

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—The immediate need of a "persistent, intelligent and unrelenting" movement against organized interstate crime was described to the House Judiciary Committee today by Attorney General Cummings. He said:

"You can't deal with the situation in any sudden, dramatic movement."

The committee is considering new legal weapons against the kidnaper and racketeer.

The Attorney General advocated half a dozen departmental measures to give federal authorities greater powers.

He said a special duty rested on the Department of Justice in this emergency, as it was about the only organization prepared to deal with interstate crime. Speaking of the Urschel kidnaping, he said:

"An ordinary local police force, no matter how intelligent, earnest or honest, is perfectly helpless in a situation of that kind."

Delaware Dispute Peace Held Likely

ALBANY, N. Y., March 20.—(AP.)—Adjustment of the wage dispute between the Delaware & Hudson Railroad and its "big four" brotherhood workers appeared likely, the Associated Press was advised today, as President Roosevelt's fact-finding commission, suddenly interrupted a public hearing, and opened private discussions with the road and the dissatisfied engine and train men.

Pennsylvania and procurement of a profitable part of a transcontinental air mail contract were the undoubted objects to be accomplished through the instrumentality of the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, Inc."

Mellon Aviation Control Denied By C. E. Monro

C. B. Monro, executive vice president of Pennsylvania Airlines, appeared yesterday before the Senate Postoffice Committee to advocate passage of the Kelly airmail bill. He condemned the bill sent to Congress by the postoffice department as a "setback to the country's transportation system and the entire aviation industry."

Questioned by Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, Monro denied Mellon control of Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, parent concern of the Pennsylvania Airlines. He said:

"No member of the Mellon family ever asked or suggested the purchase of any product of any of the corporations in which the family is interested."

He said the total Mellon holdings were about 5 per cent interest in Pittsburgh Aviation Industries.

Miss Earhart Urges Speed On Air Mail Legislation

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—Amelia Earhart Putnam, trans-Atlantic aviatrix, told the Senate Postoffice Committee today she would like to see a permanent air mail bill "rolled through" Congress as speedily as possible with not too many restrictions against further development of the industry.

Speaking plainly with intermittent smiles and half chuckles, the slender, boyish-appearing young woman suggested several changes in the measure because she said she was "deeply interested in the future of aviation" and wanted to give it "every chance to develop," She said:

"Aviation should not be restricted too much until its maturity is reached. The industry is still young and it should not be killed before it develops."

LABOR TROUBLE GROWS IN OHIO

CLEVELAND, March 20.—(AP.)—Labor troubles spread rapidly in the industrial centers of Northeastern Ohio today. Several hundred men went on strike yesterday in Cleveland and thousands of others threatened similar action here and in Akron and Barberton, O.

James P. McWeeny, special organizer of the American Federation of Labor, said the situation is "like a charge of dynamite with the fuse already sputtering."

Seeking higher wages, 400 men went on strike at the Sherwin-Williams Company here yesterday and a vote favoring a walkout of several thousand employes was announced on behalf of workers at the Fisher Body Company, a General Motors subsidiary.

In Akron, 1,100 union men were reported ready to vote on a strike in an attempt to win recognition of their organization from the General Rubber Company.

MISS CARR HITS NRA CHISELERS

YORK, March 20.—(AP.)—Miss Charlotte E. Carr, Secretary of Labor and Industry, assailed "chiseling employers" today and urged more rigid NRA enforcement.

Addressing the Lions' Club, Miss Carr said:

"Unless the strongest, most effective method for the assurance of compliance is developed under the NRA, a premium is going to be put on noncompliance because the employer who does not comply will have an advantage in the labor market over his competitor who is observing code standards.

"If the law-abiding employer is not protected, he has nothing to do but to join the ever-increasing group of chiseling employers."

She said legal machinery for the punishment of NRA violators is just as essential as agencies for the punishment of thieves.

She asserted:

"NRA compliance machinery should be changed to guarantee reasonable supervisions through inspection of establishments regardless of reported violations."

8 Women Injured At Strike Meeting

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—(INS.)—Eight women were injured at a meeting in which 500 millinery trade workers of Los Angeles voted to strike today. The strike decision involves 2,000 workers who seek union recognition and higher wages.

The eight women were ejected from the meeting when they heckled speakers.

GREEN DENIES A. F. L. FORCED AUTO UNIONS

Federation President Lays Strike Menace To Employers

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, last night denied that his organization sought to impose itself on automobile employes and asserted:

"If a strike of the automobile workers takes place it will be because the automobile workers themselves decide to strike and those responsible for that strike will be the automobile manufacturers."

In a statement replying to one issued by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in Detroit, Green branded as false the assertion that there was only one "fundamental issue, namely, whether the automobile industry is to be run by the American Federation of Labor." Green said:

"The real issue, which cannot be confused in any series of misstatements, is shall the automobile workers be permitted to organize without coercion and intimidation from the automobile manufacturers and shall they be permitted to be represented in collective bargaining with the management by representatives of their own choosing, as provided for in section 7A of the National Recovery Act.

"Let the automobile workers decide for themselves whether they want a company union, an independent union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, or no union at all.

"Under the National Recovery Act, the workers have a legal right to make such a decision. I challenge the automobile manufacturers to meet this issue and let the workers decide for themselves. The American Federation of Labor will abide by the decision."

Manufacturers Warn Men Against Strike

DETROIT, March 20.—(INS.)—A warning and appeal was sent today by motor manufacturers to every auto worker in America, excepting the employes of Henry Ford. It said:

"This company has made every effort within its power during the past few years to provide you with a steady job and a regular pay envelope.

"We have spent our money to design new cars which would appeal to buyers.

"We have bought new machinery, tools, dies, fixtures and everything required to make these new cars better, and at costs which would be low enough to induce people to buy new cars during these hard times.

"As business improved, we have raised your wages.

"At the request of President Roosevelt, and in accordance with the regulations of NRA, the number of hours anyone of you might work has been restricted with the idea that jobs might be available for more men.

"Employe representation plans were arranged, upon which you are represented by men of your own choosing. Through these employe representatives we have discussed together such complaints and suggestions as you have made. Great progress has been made in settling these matters on a mutually satisfactory basis.

"We feel we are doing our part.

"The American Federation of Labor now proposes to shut this automobile industry down by calling a strike.

"Do not be deceived by the paid agitators of the American Federation of Labor or any other similar organization which does not have at heart the best interest of you and your families or the industry from which you make your living.

Text of Automobile Chamber's Statement

DETROIT, March 20.—The directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce gave out the following statement Sunday night:

"The directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce will meet tomorrow to act upon the proposals submitted by Gen. Johnson. Meanwhile, the automobile manufacturers want to make clear to their employes and to the public generally the issue involved in the strike threat of the American Federation of Labor.

"That issue is not what Mr. Green says it is, as he is reported in Sunday's newspapers. The manufacturers have not coerced their employes into participation in the employes' representation plan.

"There is only one fundamental issue: namely, whether the automobile industry is to be run by the American Federation of Labor.

"The industry does not intend to recognize the American Federation of Labor as such, nor to enter into any contract with it in behalf of its employes.

"IF A strike is called, it will be because the American Federation of Labor seeks to impose itself on automobile employes regardless of the employes' expressed desire to be represented by spokesmen of their own choosing.

"The automobile manufacturers have complied with the NRA in letter and spirit.

"They have collective bargaining in their plants.

"Every employe has the right to be represented by a spokesman of his own choosing.

"Membership or non-membership in any organization is not a condition of employment in the automobile industry. The representatives of the employes have been democratically elected in accordance with American principles by secret ballot entirely uninfluenced by the managements. These representatives and the managements have met and discussed whatever questions have arisen between them. Practically all of them have been settled amicably and satisfactorily.

"ONE outstanding reason for this strike order is the effort of professional labor leaders to get control over the automobile workers by force, by coercion, by intimidation of employes and their families by open violence and threats of strike.

"The desire to strike does not come from the automobile employes. Certainly the manufacturers themselves do not want a strike.

"For many years the American Federation of Labor has sought to organize the automobile plants and the workers themselves refused to recognize their leadership.

"The National Industrial Recovery Act does not say that the American Federation of Labor shall be the spokesman for all of the employes, but the labor leaders have assumed that this act makes them the spokesman for all American labor.

"THERE must be no misunderstanding as to our attitude toward employes' representation plans. The automobile manufacturers intend to abide by the employes' representation plans as they may be modified by the employes themselves and will continue to recognize the duly authorized representatives of the employes in carrying out the collective bargaining provision of the NIRA.

"The American Federation of Labor seeks to make a union card, not merit, the sole condition of employment. They seek to control who shall be employed and what the output shall be.

"These aims are contrary to the principles on which the automobile industry has made its great contribution to industrial progress in this country."

"The manufacturers assert that they have complied with the law in letter and spirit and that Mr. Green is using his official position in NRA and on the National Labor Board to foment the strike in the home the men will believe the government is behind the American Federation of Labor in its efforts to organize them."

DEADLOCK SEEN

This statement was issued after there had been every indication that attempts by Administrator Johnson to bring about peace had failed to accomplish their purpose.

A delegation from the board of directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce called on Gen. Johnson at his hotel this morning. This delegation was headed by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of General Motors; Walter P. Chrysler and Alvan MacAuley, of the Packard Motor Car Company. MacAuley is president of the chamber board, which acts as the code authority of the industry.

The delegation left Gen. Johnson's quarters in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, giving every indication that the deadlock was unbroken, although no member would make a public statement.

Apparently—no announcement was made—the manufacturers and the General were discussing the compromise proposals which he had advanced in the hope of averting the general automobile strike set for 9 a. m. tomorrow.

The chamber announcement of the plan to go to Washington tonight was issued after the board of directors had been in session more than five hours.

WEATHER BALKS BYRD IN RESCUE

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, March 20.—(AP.)—(Via Mackay Radio.)—Rescue expeditions awaited today a break in the weather to go to the aid of two Byrd Antarctic expedition members isolated after a forced airplane landing in an uncharted ice field.

Pilot William C. Bowlin and Wireless Operator Clay Bailey were forced down during a storm Sunday night while returning from a depot, where they had deposited supplies 100 miles from their main base.

Rear Admiral Byrd made ready to fly a plane to their relief and a ground party was prepared to rush to the group, but high winds and drifting snow made a start impossible. Byrd said:

"When the plane left Little America it carried full emergency equipment, including a tent, cooking stove, sleeping bags and 30 days' rations per man. Both men were amply equipped with fur clothing, so I see no reason for concern."

U. S. SECRETARY OF AIR URGED

Urging higher flying efficiency, Capt. Alford J. Williams, former Navy speed flier, advocated another place in the President's cabinet—a Secretary of Air—in an address before the Hungry Club yesterday.

Under such a setup, the flier declared, Congressional appropriations would not go through the naval board and the Army general staff, but would go to Congress direct from the Secretary of Air.

Capt. Williams, commenting on the cancellation of air mail contracts, said the President was given the wrong answer when he asked the head of the Army Air Corps whether the Army could fly the mail. He said:

"The answer was wrong by 11 deaths.

SPRING'S HERE—OR JUST ABOUT

Spring was just around the corner today without a cold wave lurking near to chill the hopes of those who hope the coal will last the winter out.

Tomorrow, by the almanac, is spring. The vernal season officially begins at 2:28 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Weather Bureau predicted warmer weather for the next few days; but short of balmy, because the nights are likely to be chilly.

From Washington, where thousands annually go to see the famous cherry blossoms in Potomac Park, came word that the trees will bloom earlier than usual this year.

Phillips Flays Company Unions as 'Fascism'

HARRISBURG, March 20.—(AP.)—John A. Phillips said last night that the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor of which he is president, urges the passage of the Wagner Labor Control Bill because it "will stop company unions if it is enforced."

Phillips also charged that company unions "are part and parcel of the drive toward Fascism in America."

In a statement which he said will be submitted to the Senate Committee on Education and Labor today, Phillips said, in part:

"The operation of these (company) unions has helped make Pennsylvania the low-wage state of the North. It has helped keep purchasing power in Pennsylvania low and has made it a drag on the recovery of the rest of the nation.

"These unions, originated, financed and managed by the company officials, who have the unquestioned power of firing men, have scared every man and woman who values his job.

"Our long experience with these 'employe representation' organizations has brought us to the conclusion that they are nothing but a fraud on the word 'representation.' They are part and parcel of the drive toward Fascism in America. One of the most important features of Fascism is control by the industries and the government of the workers, and the abolition of free unions. These company unions fit neatly into that picture."

Hotel Strikers to Use Children as Pickets

Children are to be placed in the line of pickets by striking employes of the William Penn Hotel, leaders announced today.

Decision to take this step toward increasing their fight against the hotel, which for weeks has fought the demands of the strikers, was reached last night following the dispatch of a letter to the National Labor Board in Washington. In this letter the strikers protested application of the hotel for a new hearing before the Regional Labor Board. The Regional Board has sent the application to the National Board, according to the letter.

The delegation of strikers who went before the Regional Labor Board in Washington with their strike troubles returned yesterday and reported the National Board wouldn't intervene until March 24, the date set by the Regional Board for the hotel to comply with its decision.

THROUGH WITH MEN, JUST 'BIG SISTER' NOW, AIMEE SAYS

DEVOTING LIFE TO OLDTIME RELIGION

'Married to My Bible,' Asserts Evangelist, Here for Debate

Sister Aimee is through with men.

No more bruised hearts, no more uncertain trips up the altar, no more divorce headlines.

Sister Aimee is just going to be a big sister to all the brothers.

Aimee Semple McPherson said as much today when she arrived for a debate in Pittsburgh tonight. She recited:

"I'm married to my Bible, my churches, my work."

She smiled when she said it.

WITH HIS MA

Aimee hasn't heard lately from David (Whattaman) Hutton, who recently divorced her. She thinks David is with his ma and pa.

Smartly gotten up, Sister Aimee stepped off a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train at 8 a. m. and said something about how she had always wanted to visit Pittsburgh.

There were reporters there to greet Sister Aimee, but reporters are an old trick to the sister and she knows how to handle 'em. Ask her whether a good-looking smartly-dressed woman doesn't have more chance of selling religion and Aimee winds up revealing how many free meals her temple gives away every day.

OLD-TIME RELIGION

Does Sister Aimee plead guilty to putting theatrics into her sermons?

Sister Aimee does not.

Why, then, can she be such a boxoffice success when a million evangelists are starving at the crossroads. Aimee tells her secret:

"Perhaps it's because I teach the old-time religion."

LIKES OLD AND YOUNG

Aimee will debate tonight at Carnegie Hall, Schenley Park, with Charles Lee Smith, founder and president of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism. Aimee will take God's side.

In fact, she is gently disturbed because, she said, she finds our young people being taught evolution in the schools.

However, she is all for the young people. She thinks this is their world. She likes the older people, too.

WOMAN SHERIFF AGAIN BEFORE GRAND JURY

'Hideout' Rumor Sifted In Dillinger Jail Escape Probe

CROWN POINT, Ind., March 20.—(AP.)—Sheriff Lillian Holley, mistress of Lake County Jail, was called back yesterday for her second appearance before the special grand jury investigating the escape of John Dillinger.

It was reported the jury was investigating the question of exactly whose prisoner Dillinger was during his stay in the Crown Point Jail. By an Indiana statute, it was said, more serious charges can be brought if he escaped from men who did not have him technically in custody.

It was reported the grand jury would investigate also a story that East Chicago friends helped Dillinger and his gang "hide out" after the robbery on January 14 of the First National Bank there. In the robbery Policeman W. P. O'Malley was shot and killed.

Prosecutor Robert G. Estill said he expected the jury's inquiry would take two weeks more.

A felony charge placed against to take Blunk from his home here to take Blung from his home here to Indianapolis for questioning regarding Dillinger's escape, Deputy Attorney General Edward Barce explained today.

Blunk, jail fingerprint expert, was one of two men taken from Crown Point by Dillinger after his recent escape and was released near Peotone, Ill.

While Allen Twyman, attorney for Blunk, was attempting to decide whether he would file kidnaping charges against state authorities based on Blunk's removal from his home here, Barce explained that a felony charge had been filed against the fingerprint expert last Thursday night.

At Indianapolis it was reported Mrs. Virginia Thorbohn and Mrs. Lorraine Uphouse, stenographers in the office of the Attorney General, had left for Crown Point, taking stenographic notes of testimony given by Blunk.

State to Subpena Dillinger Attorney

LIMA, O., March 20.—(AP.)—Two surprise legal maneuvers, one each by the state and the defense, took the trial of the Dillinger gangster, Russell Clark, out of the doldrums of jury picking yesterday.

First Clark's attorney, Clarence C. Miller, objected to the whole proceedings on the ground that Clark does not believe in capital punishment.

After the objection had been overruled, the state disclosed a plan to call as a witness Louis P. Piquett, Chicago criminal attorney, who came to Lima Saturday to represent Clark—and who faces a charge of attempted bribery and disorderly conduct.

County Prosecutor Ernest M. Botkin said late today he intended to subpena Piquett as a rebuttal witness for appearance Friday. Piquett was an attorney for John Dillinger.

Clark is the third Dillinger gangster to go on trial here in as many weeks. Harry Pierpont and Charles Makley already have been found guilty and given death in the electric chair for killing Sheriff Jess Sarber when Dillinger was liberated from jail here October 12.

LINDYS MOVE INTO N. Y. PENTHOUSE

Live 'Close to Sky' Atop Apartment Building; Doors Guarded

By DAVID P. SENTER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Close to the skies across which they have etched their names, the Lindberghs have established a new home atop a New York City apartment house.

Several weeks ago, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh and Jon Lindbergh their second son, moved to a penthouse on the roof of an upper East Side building, International News Service learned today.

It is on the sixteenth floor of a fashionable apartment house owned by Vincent Astor. There are nine rooms in the penthouse.

'ROCK OF GIBRALTAR'

It is as vulnerable as the Rock of Gibraltar. There is a squad of alert, trusted and husky attendants at the street entrance and lobby to guard America's most famous family. There are other precautions upstairs to prevent unwelcome visitors.

Betty Gow, who was the nurse for the first Lindbergh baby, is also taking care of young Jon.

In his new penthouse province, Jon can bask in the sun and the breezes from the East river in perfect privacy and safety.

LEAVE DESOLATED HOME

Since the kidnaping of their first baby, Charles Augustus, Junior, the Lindberghs had been living with Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, mother of Mrs. Lindbergh, at Englewood, N. J.

The Lindberghs plan to deed their original home at Hopewell, N. J., where the kidnaping tragedy occurred, into a children's home.

In contrast to the isolated Lindbergh manse on a hill at Hopewell, the new home of the noted aviator is located in the center of millions of city dwellers.

WOMAN 'DIETS' ON HARDWARE

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP.)—Perplexed physicians who found 1,203 seperate items of hardware in the stomach of Miss Mabel Wolf, of Brooklyn, were told by their patient that "I did it to be funny."

Miss Wolf is now a patient in Kings County Hospital, where she was operated on Saturday. Physicians said that the woman, who is slim, dark and 40, will recover from the operation, but that long rest and a more orthodox diet would be necessary. She said:

"I swallowed everything in one week. Please don't ask me any more. I want to forget it. I want to go home now and forget."

The items removed from Miss Wolf's stomach during the operation included 584 upholstery tacks, 144 carpet tacks, 46 small screws and 80 large ones, 30 small bolts and 47 larger bolts, 3 picture frame hooks, 3 safety pins, 83 straight pins, 59 assorted beads, 4 pieces of wire, 89 pieces of glass and 1 teacup handle.

Insull's Plans For U. S. Return Told by Lawyer

ATHENS, March 20.—(AP.)—Samuel Insull plans to return to the United States after the excitement of his case dies down and live in America peacefully the rest of his life, one of the aged fugitive's Greek attorneys told the Associated Press today.

The lawyer, Mr. Xeros, declared he was in communication both with Insull's ship on the Mediterranean and his London solicitors who are handling the former Chicagoan's affairs.

Although Insull's destination remained more of a mystery than ever to the public, and there were strong indications he was still heading "somewhere east of Suez." The attorney said Mrs. Insull and her husband's lawyers were maintaining close touch with Insull by special code. He said:

"Insull seems happy now in calm weather.

"Wherever he is going now, he will make his permanent home if the United States continues to persecute him.

"Mrs. Insull will go to Paris Saturday and thereafter will leave for London within a few days."

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—State Department officials declined today ot deny or affirm reports that the United States had sent instructions to all diplomatic representatives to request detention of Samuel Insull wherever he entered territorial waters.

2 RACERS HELD IN KIDNAPING

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—Stating from the bench he was satisfied from the evidence that James Lee, a Los Angeles Examiner reporter, had been held against his will, Municipal Judge Joseph Chambers yesterday held Albert A. (Babe) Stapp and Al Reinke, auto race drivers, to answer charges of kidnaping.

The accused abductors of the reporter were ordered to appear for arraignment in Superior Court on April 4. Their bonds of $2,500 each were allowed to remain in effect.

Stapp and Reinke were two members of a group of five men who came to the Examiner office last March 7 and there threatened violence against representatives of the paper if news pictures of race drivers' funerals were taken. The group forcibly brought Reporter Lee and John Bennus, Examiner photographer, to the newspaper office with them.

Lee and Bennus had gone to Forest Lawn Memorial Park to report and photograph the funeral services of Ernie Triplett, race driver, killed at the El Centro auto race the previous Sunday.

Bennus, attempting to take a picture of the burial, was brutally beaten.

MAD COW TREES ITS DOCTOR

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 20.—(AP.)—A man being treed by a bull may be side-splitting stuff in the comic strips, but Dr. David Wall, West Finley Township veterinarian, finds the situation far from humorous, especially if a maddened cow does the treeing.

Called to treat a sick cow on the farm of G. C. Hitchcock near Ryerson Station, Dr. Wall took to his heels as the animal suddenly turned upon him.

The veterinarian fled through a field and climbed a tree, but hardly had he reached this refuge when a limb broke and down he came, right in front of the maddened cow.

The pursuit was resumed, with the animal close behind Dr. Wall, and continued until Hitchcock arrived on the scene and chased the cow away.

The cow died later, and its death was found to be due to rabies. The disease has claimed two other cattle in the township.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance, yesterday over Georgia which threatened snow for this district, developed northeastward, and is now central off the North Carolina coast (Hatteras, 29.48), having been accompanied by snows or rains from Atlantic City to Southern Florida, while an area of high pressure central over the Middle Gulf (New Orleans, 30.20), extends northward in a ridge over the central valleys and lower lakes. Another disturbance central over North Dakota (Devils Lake, 29.58), overlies most of the plains and Rocky Mountains. It is colder over the South Atlantic states and warmer over most of the rest of the country, with fair weather general except over the Middle Atlantic states and along the Canadian Border.

The rivers are now about stationary. Stage at Franklin is 4.2 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 13.1; Pittsburgh, 13.5; Dam No. 4, 10.4; No. 6, 10.7; No. 10, 11.0, and No. 12, 11.5. The dams are up. The rivers will remain nearly stationary.

ZONE CAB FIRM DROPS FIGHT

Withdrawal of the application of the Zone Cab Corporation of Cleveland for permission to operate in Pittsburgh was announced today by City Utilities Counsel John J. Kennedy.

Kennedy stated that he had been notified by the corporation's representatives today that they would withdraw application before the commission.

The withdrawal, Kennedy stated, is done with the understanding that this action will not prejudice the corporation's standing in case a later attempt is made to operate here.

It was understood that the corporation had under consideration a plan to form a Pennsylvania corporation and make another application.

The action of the corporation was to be announced to City Council today.

The Cleveland concern contemplated bringing 15-cent-a-mile taxis here and their application had been contested by the Parmelee company.

MYRTLE SOUGHT IN BALM SUIT

CHICAGO, March 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Susanne Nottingham, wife of Policeman Norman E. Nottingham, is so determined to put Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge in jail for stealing her husband's love that she is willing to turn detective.

Mrs. Blacklidge's whereabouts are unknown, and she is wanted on a capias issued for her arrest for failing to pay a judgment of $7,500 recently awarded Mrs. Nottingham in an alienation of affections suit.

Because the jury that heard the case decided that the love theft was "malicious," Mrs. Blacklidge, former internal revenue collector for the Northern District of Illinois, can be placed in jail for failure to pay, provided someone pays her board bill of 50 cents a day.

Told that Mrs. Blacklidge was missing, Mrs. Nottingham said:

"Well, she's taking the wrong step. It looks like I'll have to do a little sleuthing for a few days. It won't take me long."

SAVE MAN, SON IN DEEP WELL

A father and son today were nursing cuts and bruises suffered in a 30-foot fall into a dry well in the rear of their home, 1909 Wrights way, South Side, yesterday.

The victims, B. A. Vojtas, Sr., 65, and his son, B. A. Vojtas, Jr., were rescued by firemen from Engine Company No. 12, and taken to South Side Hospital. They dropped into the well when the concrete floor of an outbuilding, which they were repairing, collapsed, police said. The firemen were summoned by the elder Vojtas' wife, Mrs. Mary Vojtas, who was attracted by the cries of her husband and son.

Two weeks ago, Mrs. Vojtas, 60, fell six feet to a landing in the well, police reported.

FIREMEN FIGHT CHURCH BLAZE

A stubborn four-alarm fire in the Central Baptist Church, Negro, at Wylie avenue and Kirkpatrick street, early today, was fought by 11 engine companies from the Hill, Downtown and Oakland districts before it was placed under control. One man was injured.

The fire, of unknown origin, started in the ceiling. Firemen were handicapped by clouds of smoke, but after several hours of hazardous fighting subdued the flames.

The inside of the building bore the brunt of the damage, estimated at $7,000.

Louis Travis, Negro, of 2141 Humber way, suffered burns when he risked the flames after being told that a woman was inside. Scores of families living near the scene were forced to vacate their homes.

Apartment Blaze Routs 8 Families

Eight families were forced to flee and $500 damage was caused by a fire in the President Apartments, 306 Craft avenue, Oakland, early today.

The fire, caused by an overheated furnace, spread from the cellar of the four-story brick building to the first floor. The apartment of Edward Schuler was damaged by flames and water.

Walking up and down in the fresh air, looking for criminals, plus a good conscience, helps the appetite.

MR. OCTAVUS ROY COHEN, writer, says: "The craze for contract bridge hurts social life, it has eliminated the art of social conversation." It grieves Mr. Cohen that women should "play bridge five afternoons and five nights a week."

If he had heard some of these women engaged in what he calls "the art of conversation," he might be glad that the bridge craze came along.

BRIDGE IS simply one of many substitutes for thought, a painful process for nearly all human beings, and one of the milder substitutes. Other substitutes are drugs, alcohol, tobacco and various kinds of sports that take men back to the monkey period, and let them comfortably down on all fours.

A dog, taught to walk on its hind legs, likes the task no more than a man, recently taught to think, likes thinking.

SAMUEL INSULL, afloat on his chartered tramp steamer and bound, rumor says, to a haven with the friendly king of Abyssinia, is said to be in dread of pirates.

A mysterious yacht is reported, trailing the Insull tramp steamer, and Mr. Insull fears that gangsters of the high seas might kidnap him, or revengeful enemies might even want to murder him. Yesterday it was suggested that gangsters had boarded the tramp steamer at Athens, taking control of the ship and Insull.

Some stockholders in Insull "utilities" can imagine how Mr. Insull feels.

McLeod Gives Us Sunburn With One Hope Ray

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Representative McLeod is putting the heat on frapped bank collateral.

There's one billion dollars tied up in curl papers. That's the savings of ten million inhabitants.

If Mr. McLeod can chop a hole in that ice he will be more popular than sunshine on a holiday. It seemed to us that all that money was gone like cream on the cat's whiskers.

The RFC will purchase the crumpled banks and keep 'em afloat on federal pontoons. The liquidation will take ten years as the crow flies.

It's good news coming at a time when we can get sunburned from one ray of hope.

Dowager Queen Emma Dies, Holland Mourns

THE HAGUE, March 20.—(AP.)—Dowager Queen Emma, beloved for her charities and honored alike by Holland's rich and poor, died this morning of bronchitis. She was 75.

The Queen Mother, widow of King William III and mother of Queen Wilhelmina, had suffered from bronchitis for some time, but became gravely ill only a few days ago.

From the first she was attended almost constantly by her daughter, Queen Wilhelmina and granddaughter, Princess Juliana, heir to the throne.

As the 20-year-old Princess of Waldeck and Piedmont she came to Holland in 1879 to share the throne with King William III as his second wife. After the King's death in 1890, she became regent and served in that capacity until her daughter became of age and ascended the throne. Then she retired to the background, devoting herself to patronage of the arts and to charitable work.

The Dowager Queen was closely related to the English royal family. Her sister was the late Duchess of Albany. She also had many German relatives.

McAdoo Son, Out of Jail, Sued by Cafe for $50,000

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP.)—William Gibbs McAdoo, Jr., whose Sunday night dinner in a Yorkville cafe has ended in a $50,000 damage suit, called it "a hold-up game" today.

McAdoo, who is the son of the United States Senator from California, said the summons was "a civil action for something or other."

The summons was served yesterday, he said, as he left Harlem Court after spending a night in jail. He had been in court with a blonde dress model, Miss Sara Lummus, to answer a disorderly conduct charge brought by Mrs. Lillian Knesz, proprietor of the Hungarian Inn where the two had dined. McAdoo said:

"I understood everything was to be dismissed and then at the last moment they sprung this."

He understood, he said, that the suit for slander. The disorderly conduct charge was settled in court when Mrs. Knesz said she was willing to drop it for $6.50.

The trouble began, McAdoo said, when his host at the cafe disappeared, leaving him without money to pay the check. He said:

"I assumed I was this man's guest and he faded away. It was Sunday, and I had only a few dollars with me."

McAdoo who is employed by an aviation company, said it was his first night in jail. He added:

"I hope it will be my last. I hope my father hasn't been informed."

SENATE IN HUNT FOR SILVER-HOARDERS

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—The Senate today called on Secretary Morgenthau for a list of hoarders of silver.

It adopted without debate a resolution by Senator Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, requesting the information if such a list was available and if not incompatible with the public interest.

The resolution said it had been "currently reported" that there had been speculation in the white metal and that "certain people" were hoarding it.

Meanwhile, the fate of the new silver remonetization-farm relief bill, approved so strongly by the House, was deposited on the White House doorstep today by Senate majority leaders.

Should the measure be taken in and given a presidential blessing, administration chieftains said it would be passed by the Senate. If left out in the cold, they held it would have small chance of passage.

Disregarding Republican cries of "dumping" and "fiat money," the bill was shoved along by the House yesterday, 257 to 112. Under it silver would be accepted at well above the world price in payment for exported agricultural surpluses. Silver certificates would be issued on the metal thus obtained.

In any event it appeared probable today there would be a break in the White House silence on the measure. Leaders looked either for an administration statement or for word to be passed quietly up to the Senate.

Repeated calls from the Republican side yesterday for a disclosure as to whether Mr. Roosevelt was for or against the measure were left unanswered.

REACH ACCORD ON STOCK BILL

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—Differences between Congressional advocates of stock market control legislation and the Treasury and Federal Reserve Board were reported officially today to have been composed by the revised measure introduced yesterday.

This was made known by Chairman Rayburn (Dem.), Texas, as the House Interstate Commerce Committee opened hearings on the new bill. His statement was echoed by Thomas Corcoran, counsel of the Reconstruction Corporation, and one of the drafters of the measure.

Rayburn told stock exchange representatives that "in the new draft of this bill we have tried to meet all legitimate criticisms" raised during the hearings on the original bill.

Meanwhile, Pecora explained the bill to the Senate Banking Committee in executive session.

SUSPECT HELD IN AUTO THEFT

Clarence Knable, 32, of 853 Climax street, was in the county jail today awaiting action of the grand jury on charges of larceny and misdemeanor, according to police.

Knable was held for court by Magistrate Howard B. McNutt after North Side police testified they arrested him in an automobile reported stolen from Charles R. Ferguson, of Coraopolis.

Yesterday it was erroneously reported that Ferguson was arrested in the automobile. Police explained Ferguson was not arrested and that he was the owner of the car.

Proposed Law Aimed At Red Activity in U. S.

Articles in Hearst Papers Inspire Measure

Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Declaring Communist organizations are conducting vast propaganda campaigns in the schools of the nation, Representative C. J. McLeod (Rep.), of Michigan, yesterday appealed for passage of his bill for drastic punishment of seditious acts against the government.

He lauded the "expose of these sinister activities," appearing in Hearst newspapers throughout the country.

The bill would prohibit any person from advocating the overthrow of the government by force.

The measure also would prohibit the use of the mails for any seditious literature of any kind. It provides a $5,000 fine and five years in jail.

The Hearst newspaper articles showed that Communistic propaganda is being distributed through schools and colleges, McLeod said:

"This measure would curb the sinister activities of those who advocate the destruction of the government, or the physical injury to any person or any property of the government of the United States.

"These subversive activities of radical groups against the United States must not be tolerated."

McLeod read into the record the Hearst newspaper articles on the subject.

2 Plane Mechanics Burned in Explosion

NEWARK, N. J., March 20.—(INS.)—Two mechanics, employed by the United Air Lines, were severely burned in an explosion and fire at the repair shop of the line at the Newark Airport.

The men were William Umstead, 30, and Robert Blauvelt, 31. They were rushed to a hospital where it was reported that their burns were painful but not dangerous.

PUTS BANK LOSS UP TO U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—Asserting that it is a government obligation to pay off 100 per cent to depositors in closed banks, Representative Weideman (Dem.), of Michigan, expressed the opinion today that "not a single penny" would be lost if liquidation took place over a 10-year period.

Weideman presented his views to the House Banking Subcommittee holding hearings on the McLeod bill to authorize the Reconstruction Corporation to purchase the remaining assets of closed Federal Reserve member banks, pay off the depositors in full and liquidate the assets during the next decade.

He referred to testimony before the Senate Banking Investigating Committee that bank examiners authorized publication of reports of the conditions of Detroit banks while different reports were sent to the Comptroller of the Currency. He said:

"The public is entitled to a statement of the true conditions of the banks."

SENATE SPEEDS PHILIPPINE BILL

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—The Senate is getting ready to speed to President Roosevelt the McDuffie-Tydings bill to free the Philippines.

Confident the Senate will show the same strength displayed by the House in passing the measure yesterday, members of the Tenth Philippines Independence Mission began packing their bags today for departure to Manila.

The bill was the first order of business on the Senate calendar. Although faced with determined opposition by Senator King (Dem.), of Utah, who wants to free the islands immediately, its proponents predicted it would be placed on the President's desk before the week-end.

The measure is a re-enactment, with certain changes, of the Hawes-Cutting bill passed last year over President Hoover's veto and rejected by the Philippines Legislature.

CONGRESS ACTS ON ROOSEVELT CREDIT PLAN

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—Democratic leaders saw today a reasonably clear path ahead for President Roosevelt's plan to create 12 new banks, dedicated to pouring $700,000,000 more capital into small industries.

A bill to set up the new banking system, with one institution in each Federal Reserve District, will be considered tomorrow by the Senate Banking Committee. A similar House group also expects to start work almost immediately.

A need for "immediate relief" for "the medium sized man" in business was stressed by Mr. Roosevelt. Even before this call reached the Capitol yesterday bills to carry it out were ready for introduction in both chambers.

'NEVER SAW PROPOSAL'

Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the RFC, submitted it last week. Mr. Roosevelt subsequently told newspapermen he had never seen the proposal. Gov. Black, of the Federal Reserve Board, recently rushed to the capitol, apparently to forestall committee action on the RFC plan.

Some of the features and aims of the President's bank plan are:

The Federal Reserve System would set up the 12 banks, one in each district, capitalizing them at $140,000,000 through sale to the Treasury of stock in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

The banks would be empowered to borrow five times the amount of their capital, bringing the total for the system to $700,000,000.

Loans would be made direct to established businesses that were "unable to obtain requisite financial assistance on a reasonable basis from the usual source."

Efforts would be made first, however, to make loans for as long as five years to the business concerned through banks or other financial institutions.

MORE JOBS SEEN

President Roosevelt, in letters to Chairmen Fletcher and Steagal, of the Senate and House Banking committees, estimated that if the $700,000,000 of "required" additional working capital was provided it would mean 346,000 persons would retain present jobs and 378,000 unemployed could be given work. Mr. Roosevelt said:

"I have been deeply concerned with the situation in our small industries. In numberless cases their working capital has been lost or seriously depleted. This condition should be remedied.

"We have afforded much aid in the recovery of agriculture, commerce, our larger industries and our financial institutions, and our improved condition nationally furnishes full justification for these efforts. We must continue in behalf of the medium sized man in industry and commerce."

BIRTH CONTROL VIA U. S. MAIL ASSAILED

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—Physicians would be allowed to mail birth control information only to married persons under a proposal advanced today for revision of the Hastings birth control bill.

A. Ralph Burton, counsel for opponents of the original measure, went into conference with Mrs. Margaret Sanger and other advocates at the conclusion of a Senate Committee hearing.

Part of the opposition might be dropped, Burton indicated, if the bill were amended to prevent commercial exploitation and to permit distribution of information only by physicians to married persons.

PRIEST ASSAILS BILL

After the bill, which would open the mails to information and articles now barred, had been attacked by the Rev. Dr. John A. Ryan, of the Catholic University of America, Senators Hastings and Logan suggested it might be altered to meet many objections.

Father Ryan told the committee birth control was not a remedy for unemployment, but eventually would bring about disastrous economic conditions, with a danger of extinction of the population.

CITES 'DANGERS'

Miss Agnes C. Regan, of New York, secretary of the National Council of Catholic Women, said:

"Once the barriers are down, show windows of drug stores will reek with various devices and advertisements will broadcast the most sacred of all relationship upon which the safety of society rests."

Canon William S. Chase, of the Internatinnal Reform Federation, asserted the bill was backed by "very great commercial interests, knowing that a vast amount of money is to be realized from gratifying the baser desires of young people."

City Will Withhold Utility Tax Action

The city probably will inaugurate no action against companies not paying the $2 utility tax until equity suits, filed by some utilities against it on that issue, are decided, according to City Solicitor C. D. Scully. The suits now pending claim the tax is illegal.

Satirical Barbs 'Hit' First Lady At Press Party

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Feminine Washington still was chuckling today over Mae West as official pepper-up of the grand old party, and the three little pigs who wanted the wolf to eat them before Henry Wallace got them, and the code hearing for the Roosevelt family at which a 168-hour week was not sufficient for Mrs. F. D. R.'s activities.

These and a host of other facetious developments were portrayed last night at the annual dinner and "stunt party" of the Women's National Press Club in the Hotel Willard.

More than 500 women, including the First Lady, Mrs. John N. Garner, Madame Secretary Frances Perkins, Senator Hattie Caraway, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Dolly Curtis Gann, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross and Miss Fannie Hurst, were present when club members presented their satirical skits.

Mrs. Roosevelt took her full share of teasing. There was a scene in Little America, where members of Admiral Byrd's party sat huddled in furs over a campfire. There was the sound of footsteps. They cried:

"My God, it's Mrs. Roosevelt!"

SISTIE, BUZZIE WELL AGAIN

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—Good news for the children—all the White House measles will be a thing of the past in plenty of time for the annual egg-rolling on Easter Monday.

Sistie Dall has been over the measles for some time, and Buzzie, Mrs. Roosevelt said today, is almost out of quarantine.

Buzzie, having been inoculated, had a very light case.

Mrs. Roosevelt also reported her son, John, who had an operation for appendicitis Monday, was getting along just fine and was sleeping when she called on him today.

MOVIE CENSOR DEFEAT SEEN

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(INS.)—Congressional approval of legislation giving the Federal government sweeping censorship powers over motion pictures appeared unlikely today.

The House Interstate Commerce Committee has before it a bill by Rep. Patman (Dem.), of Texas, creating a federal commission of 10 members whose duty it would be to weigh the merits of all proposed film plots. All contemplated pictures must pass rigid purity tests, especially if they contain crimes, love, dances, or surgical operations.

Rep. Connery (Dem.) of Massachusetts, who appeared in opposition to the bill, asserted:

"I was an actor for 10 years and I go to the pictures five times a week. I don't want to have some old maid in Oshkosh tell me what I can see and what I can't see."

Undaunted by a salvo of hisses from the spectators in the committee room, Connery held forth in heated terms against Federal snooping in the Hollywood studios.

He shouted:

"For 13 years you told the people what they couldn't drink and now you want to tell them what they can't see."

Akron Survivor May Run Macon

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—(AP.)—The Chronicle says Lieut. Com. Herbert V. Wiley, sole officer survivor of the Navy dirigible Akron disaster, is to take command of the dirigible Macon, now based at Sunnyvale, Cal.

The Macon was scheduled, weather permitting, to start a training cruise today to the Puget Sound area in Washington.

MAN WHO SHOT DOG FINED

A police dog lay near death in an East Liberty veterinary hospital today from a bullet wound inflicted by Rogers Kuhns, 23, of 14 Villa court, who was fined $25 or 30 days in the Workhouse this morning by Magistrate Charles Papale in East End Police Court.

Kuhns, who was charged with violating the firearms act, said he fired his gun to frighten the animal after it had become tangled in a fight with a dog he owns.

END RAIL WAGE WAR, ORDERS ROOSEVELT

controversy, covering all classes of railroad employment, in order that the country may be advised of the merits."

Mr. Roosevelt also gave notice to the railroads that he felt some of the wages being paid employes were below the minimums established in the NRA codes, "if not actually below a subsistence basis."

The President demanded that this situation be immediately corrected.

Mr. Roosevelt repeated his belief that this is not the time to fix permanently the railway wage scale.

WORKERS SHUN NRA POLL

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—(AP.)—Comparatively few ballots were cast in the early voting today in the election of the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company workers, which the NRA decreed shall determine how employes of the automobile body making plant wish to be represented.

In a hall about half a mile away from the plant, workers cast their ballots before George Buckley, special assistant NRA administrator supervising the election, and six CWA workers detailed to watch the ballot boxes.

The workers voted on the question:

"Do you favor representation by the United Automobile Workers Federal Union of the American Federation of Labor"

The small number of ballots cast in the first few hours caused Buckley to comment:

"The labor leaders asked for another vote and we are giving it to them. If they don't want to avail themselves of the chance, it's up to them."

GIRL MISSING, ESCORT HELD

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 20.—(AP.)—Edward Porter, 25, of Vandergrift, is held on a kidnaping charge and police of West Leechburg are seeking a 15-year-old Leechburg girl they say has been mising since she accompanied Porter to Apollo Saturday night.

Police said today Porter told them he had been keeping company with the girl and left to take her to Apollo. He met his brother on the way, police quoted him as saying, and the girl went on with the brother, neither of whom has been located.

Porter was given a hearing before Magistrate W. C. Goodbread.

Woman Kills Self By Firing Clothes

CLEVELAND, March 20.—(AP.)—Drenching her clothing with kerosene and then setting it afire, a 57-year-old woman committed suicide today, locked inside a closet in her apartment here.

Hers was the second presumably self-inflicted death here today. The other victim was 24-year-old Wallace B. Dodd, member of a prominent Cleveland family, who was found dead from automobile exhaust gas inside the locked garage at his home.

Soviet Dooms Two For Railroad Wreck

MOSCOW, March 20.—(INS.)—A "show trial" staged in the Railroad Workers club as part of a Soviet campaign to stamp out railroad accidents was over today after a brief, three-day "run."

The principal actors will not make a return appearance. Two were sentenced to death and two to terms of long imprisonment. One was acquitted. The defendants were charged with responsibility for a wreck.

Roosevelt Letter Demanding End Of Rail Pay War

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—The text of President Roosevelt's letter, addressed to W. F. Thiehoff, chairman of the Conference Committee of Managers, and A. F. Whitney, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association, calling for settlement of the railway wage dispute follows:

"Gentlemen:

"I have been advised of what has transpired at the conferences between the Conference Committee of Managers, representing the railroads, and the Railway Labor Executives Association, representing the employes, which have been held in response to my communication of February 14, 1934.

"In that communication I expressed the hope 'that the railroads and their employes may be able to agree upon an extension of the present agreement for at least six months,' expressing also my conviction that 'such an extension would be of advantage to those directly concerned, and also to the country.'

GOOD OF COUNTRY

"It is a profound disappointment to learn that no progress toward an agreement has been made at the conference. I fear that sight is being lost of the most important factor of all, the good of the country.

"If no agreement is reached, and in default of arbitration, it may be necessary for me, with due regard to the protection of the general public interest, to appoint a commission to examine thoroughly into the labor controversy, covering all classes of railroad employment, in order that the country may be advised of the merits.

"For the reasons stated in my communication of February 14, I believe that conditions are not yet ripe for a wise settlement of these issues, and that the active prosecution of the controversy at the present time would have a most disturbing and unfortunate influence. Nor would a postponement be in general unfair to the employes.

LOW-PAY GROUP

"Since I addressed my previous communication to you, however, the fact has been developed that some of the railroad employes are now receiving compensation for their work at rates which are below minimums which have been established in the NRA codes, if not actually below a subsistence basis.

"This does not apply to any very large fraction of the employes, but nevertheless such a situation does exist.

"To the extent that it exists, it should be corrected, and in this expression of opinion I feel confident that the railroads and the holders of their securities will concur.

"I am informed that the Federal Co-ordinator of Transportation now has in his possession the detailed facts in regard to this matter. It should be adjusted in connection with any postponement of the major wage issue.

"I shall be glad to extend to you the services of the Federal Co-ordinator of Transportation to help in composing your present differences, if that be desired. For the good of the country I strongly urge that further efforts be made to reach an agreement.

"Very sincerely yours,

"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Duel With Sabers Hinted in Hollywood

Rumors that challenges for the duel with sabres had been exchanged persisted despite denials.

Thief Steals $300 While Owner 'Milks'

RALEIGH, Tenn., March 20.—(AP.)—A year ago A. W. Noe, farmer, lost the key to his front door. It cost him $300 to recover the key. Noe was in his barn milking yesterday, when a thief, using the key, entered Noe's home and took three $100 bills from his trousers pocket.

RAIL MEN FLAY MANAGERS IN PAY DISPUTE

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—A 20 per cent increase in wages above what they are getting now was demanded today by railway employes, effective July 1.

This was in reply to notice given yesterday by railway managers that they intended to impose another 5 per cent cut on July 1.

The railway employes now are working for 10 per cent less than their basic wage. They requested that this be restored and that they be given an additional 10 per cent increase.

'PEAK RATE' CONFLICT

The railway unions denied they are seeking "peak rates" as contended in the managers' answer yesterday to a refusal on Saturday by the unions to continue a 10 per cent deduction from basic rates which started in 1932. The union said:

"You have referred to the wage rates of 1929 in your reply, and have called them 'the peak rates.' This we believe to have been an error. There is no man upon your committee unaware of the fact that 1929 rates were not the peak rates but that they represent for practically every class of railway worker a level substantially below the peak rates.

"We were not seeking here to establish peak rates but only to prevent continued wage reductions.

"We note your reference to life insurance companies and savings banks; that statement addressed directly to those of the public who have deposits in savings banks and who have life insurance policies.

WAGE DEDUCTION

"You have not said so in so many words, but there can be no question of the implication you intended to convey that a discontinuance of the wage deduction on July 1, 1934, will in some manner undermine the integrity of savings banks and life insurance companies.

"In this case the implication you have conveyed is unfortunate and unjustified. To give wide publicity to a statement questioning the integrity of these financial institutions at a time when national recovery is well begun but when the forces of the depression are not yet completely conquered is an unwise subordination of public welfare to the desire of the railway security owners to maintain existing railway wage deductions.

"In the ranks of these railway labor organizations there are hundreds of thousands of men and women with life insurance policies; their number is fewer today than it has been and their policies will average much less, but in their names we must protest against your statement.

"Nothing that can possibly happen as a result of any wage settlement can have so destructive an effect upon the life of insurance companies of the country as the wide dissemination of the unwarranted statement contained in your reply.

ROOSEVELT QUOTED

"Your reference to the philosophy of our position is not quite accurate. Our philsophy was given in our statement of March 17 in words far clearer than we might have been able ourselves to devise, when we quoted the President of the United States as saying:

"'No one is opposed to sensible and reasonable profits but the morality of the case is that a great segment of our people are in actual distress and that as between profits first and humanity afterward and humanity first and profits afterward we have no room for hesitation.' . . .

"In the belief that it might be possible to avoid controversy at this time, we have thus far refrained from requesting the increase in basic rates of pay amply justified by current economic developments.

"If you are determined to prosecute the controversy you have instituted, any reason for deferring our requests is removed.

"Accordingly, we request that you consider this as a counter-proposal and as formal notice of our desire to increase basic rates of pay by 10 per cent, effective on and after July 1, 1934."

SISTER MISSING, BROTHER ILL

Relatives today sought Mrs. Lena Taylor, of 314 Laurel street, Edgewood, missing since March 12, to tell her that her oldest brother is gravely ill.

The brother, Alfred Miglora, is ill at his home, 1233 Pocono street, Swissvale, relatives say, and asks constantly for his sister.

Mrs. Taylor left home, they believe, after a quarrel with her husband, who has also disappeared.

The Missing Persons Bureau has been notified.

The missing woman is described as 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighing 120 pounds and with dark hair and eyes. When last seen, she was wearing a tan coat with a black fur neckpiece, and brown hat and shoes.

Mrs. Taylor is expected to apply for work in a dry cleaning plant as she is an expert dress presser.

Palma Ex-Prisoner Married in Paris

PARIS, March 20.—(AP.)—Miss Jarvis Kerr, an American born in France, was married in civil rights today to Roderick P. Mead, an artist of South Orange, N. MEET TO URGE PENNA. ROUTE FOR CANAL

International News Service.

OIL CITY, Pa., March 20.—Facts and figures concerning a canal route about which George Washington inquired after he made a trip through this section, back in 1752, with his message from Gov. Dinwiddie, of Virginia, to the French commander at Fort Leboeuf, now Waterford, were to be set forth here today when Maj. W. D. Styer, U. S. Army engineer in charge of the Pittsburgh district, held a hearing on the route.

The route is up the Allegheny River, already slackwatered above Kittanning, to Franklin and then over French Creek to join Lake Erie, near Erie.

CANAL DESTROYED

Washington traveled over that route when he made his famous journey and after the Revolutionary War wrote to officials in this section concerning the feasibility of using it as a connecting link between the Ohio River and Lake Erie.

Some years later a canal was constructed connecting the Allegheny River and the lake, but the railroads then, sweeping out through this section, killed the canal.

In addition to local supporters, who have done much to continue the agitation for the canal despite the opposition of Pittsburgh groups, delegations will be here from Corry, Erie, Meadville, Titusville, Franklin, Warren, Clarion, Parker, Kittanning, Emlenton, Knox, Tionesta, East Brady and other municipalities.

STRESS NEED

The need of inland waterway transportation through this section to move many thousands of tons of minerals will be stressed at the hearing. Reports of engineers employed by the Upper Allegheny River Association will also be presented.

Proponents of the all-Pennsylvania route declare it is the most feasible, can be constructed at a fraction of the cost which the others entail and with a minimum of damage. They also point to the fact that Allegheny River is already partly slackwatered.

They also contend a favorable report on this route was made by Army engineers as far back as 1899 and also charge that three adverse reports were turned in by Army engineers on the Youngstown route before the recent favorable report was given, with the provisions that local interests must spend about 10 million dollars on the route.

Plea for Canal To Youngstown Made by Mayor

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Development of the Mahoning-Beaver canal is vital to the Mahoning Valley steel industry, Mayor Mark E. Moore, of Youngstown, O., today told the House Rivers and Harbors Committee.

He told the committee the entire future of that region depended upon construction of this waterway. Moore said:

"This water is our life-blood. If we don't get this aid, our steel center, which now ranks third in the country, with a billion dollar investment, cannot survive."

He said Mahoning County was willing to abide with the requirements set up by the War Department's engineers' board, and promised co-operation with Beaver and Lawrence counties, Pennsylvania, who also are affected by the proposed canal.

He added that the payroll of the CWA in the Mahoning valley section was six million dollars and that 10,000 families were on poor relief.

Representative Swick (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, denied reports that he was opposed to the project. He told the committee that he has urged the waterway development consistently since 1927.

Youth Wins $10,000 For Auto Injuries

James Thomas, Whitcomb street, was awarded a consent verdict for $10,000 in Common Pleas Court against P. M. Simpson, for a fractured skull and other hurts, the result of being struck by the defendant's automobile.

It was alleged in the bill of particulars that the Simpson car ran through a traffic light. Michael and Belinda Thomas, parents of the youth, joined in the action.

• "On Monday March 12th the price of Howard Clothes goes back to $22.50"

• If you are one of the customers who responded to our advertisement and purchased a Howard garment on Saturday, March 10th for $19.75 with the expectation that the price would be $22.50 on Monday . . and if you feel that because of that fact you would like to have your money back, then we will ask you to please be good enough to go to the Howard store in which your garment was purchased and we will cheerfully refund your money.

Human Side Of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Electrical Manifestations

ALMOST EVERY person at some time or other has held the aerial wire of a radio in his hand and noticed the greatly increased volume of sound which such contact produces. And all of us have then wondered if there isn't some electricity in our make-up, if there are not some unknown waves which affect our very living. Well, in this connection it may be noted that one of the most eminent surgeons of the world, Dr. George Crile, of Cleveland, constantly advances the theory that all life is some form of electric manifestation.

European scientists, notably the English, have been absorbed for years in the matter of a death ray. The British government, at one time, was reported to have spent $500,000 investigating certain discoveries without obtaining proof of their effectiveness. The Italian Navy went thoroughly into the claims of an inventor who said that he could discharge submarine mines at great distances by means of rays, but nothing came of it.

Now Prof. C. R. Chadfield, of the Leicester College of Technology, believes he has the secret. His theory is that the nervous impulses of all living objects are electrical, and that these are susceptible to rays which reach their wave lengths. He claims that he has shattered the nervous system of flies and mice, and that, while it is too early to discuss the possibility of a death ray's effect on a human, he is building larger apparatus to extend his experiments.

Another Englishman, Prof. O. A. Newell, of the National League of Health, is credited with having produced wireless waves capable of causing fatal disease in persons in contact with them. His waves seem to act both ways, because it is said of them that while they can carry plagues, they may also be employed in neutralizing epidemics and in the building of strong and healthy animals.

Of course, there are 10,000 disappointments for every true scientific discovery and it may be years, centuries even, before man plumbs the secret of the rays to their very depths. But when we remember that the X-ray and wireless are little more than a quarter of a century old, our imaginations can place no bounds on what science, painstaking and methodical, is yet to find in them.

How Human Life May Be Terminated

WHAT WILL be the end of human life? Is the starry sword of Damocles, suspended over the heads of mankind, likely to be the cause of the complete annihilation of the peoples of the earth? It may be that millions of years in the future some evil star will seize the earth. The waters of the ocean, as mountainous waves, will advance with tremendous velocity across the continents, levelling cities to the ground. The temperature rises rapidly to tropical heat, and the warmed oceans begin to evaporate and to discharge themselves upon the earth in a succession of raging storms and hurricanes.

The craters of all the volcanos in the world open, and mephitic vapours mount toward the pitiless sky, in the infernal glare of red columns of fire. Entire volcanos explode, raging seas invade their craters and, heated to the boiling point, their steam pressure dashes the mountains to fragments.

The distinction between day and night has long been ended; and all the lights of the firmament have long been blotted out by the vapor-ridden atmosphere. But no living eye will gaze terrified upon this inferno, for all higher life on the planet has been destroyed by the force of tidal waves, by the boiling water of the ocean, by the pestilent lava masses of volcanoes, by the burning temperature.

This forecast of the fate of the world by Desiderius Papp in "Creation's Doom," a most interesting book just published in England, is—the author happily states—"an extremely improbable, though possible planetary experience."

"Creation's Doom," based on the law of probability, reads like an imaginative novel and is intensely interesting. There's a touch of Miltonian power in the book, recalling those lines of "Paradise Lost":

"Where eldest Night and Chaos, ancestors of Nature, hold eternal anarchy amidst the noise of endless wars. On a sudden, open fly, with impetuous recoil and jarring sound, the infernal doors, and on their hinges grate harsh thunder."

Business Booms Go With Cold Spells

IS OUR climate changing? Are we in for a spell of colder winters—winters of zero temperatures and heavy snowfalls? A good many people who can look over the span of at least a quarter of a century believe so. The government weather prophets, who rather like to sniff at popular notions about the weather, pooh-pooh the idea, but there is considerable proof to support it, just the same. But the scientific sharps of the Smithsonian Institution tell us that that great flaming ball of gas we call the sun, is going to have a cold spell for the next two years or so, and, of course, that is bound to affect earthly weather.

And here is another curious thing about these weather cycles. It may be pure coincidence, but business booms seem to go with cold spells, and periods of depression with warm spells.

The Best GRAY HAIR REMEDY IS MADE AT HOME

You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy than you can buy, by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained.

Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, makes it soft and glossy and takes years off your looks. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. Do not be handicapped by gray hair now when it is so economical and easy to get rid of it in your own home.

SOCIETY JOINS MT. RUSHMORE COMPETITION

Inspiring grandeur of the Mount Rushmore National Memorial—a monument that will unfold the early history of our nation in the Black Hills of South Dakota to generations for a million years—today influenced membership participation of another Pittsburgh group of patriotic women.

Mrs. Metcalfe

The United Daughters of the Confederacy, Pittsburgh Chapter, joined with the previously announced more than 100 clubs here in taking active part in the nation-wide competition that will bring out a 600-word history of the nation which will be drafted into the final text for inscription on the granite west slope of Mount Rushmore.

NAMES CHAIRMAN

Mrs. Arch C. Perry, chapter president, who already lauded the project as an inspiring undertaking that should stir the historical pride of every citizen, today announced the appointment of Mrs. Robert F. Metcalfe as special chairman to receive competition entries from the chapter's members. These text entries will be sent direct to Mrs. Metcalfe at 5412 Howe street.

Mrs. Metcalfe, who is past president and now first vice president of the local chapter, has taken active interest in varied historical projects. A significant coincident with her appointment on Mount Rushmore project is that she was an active worker in the early efforts of the Stone Mountain memorial in Georgia which also was an undertaking of the famous sculptor, Gutzon Borglum.

DATA FOR STUDENTS

Her interest in the Stone Mountain project was further enchanced by the fact that her grandfather, Gen. Robert Bullock, was to be one of the figures on the memorial.

Important information for school students will be announced in a few days. Plans for their participation are being arranged through the co-operation of educational leaders.

Naming of Ickes Spurs Interest In Mt. Rushmore

With President Roosevelt as acting chairman of the national committee of the Mt. Rushmore memorial inscription competition, interest, already national, was spurred by the news that Secretary of the Interior Ickes had consented to serve on that committee.

The national committee is expected to include other outstanding legislators, educators, poets and writers, whose historical, literary and artistic judgment will determine which of the hundreds of thousands of texts to pass through the hands of the local, regional and national committee will win the honor of consideration by the Mt. Rushmore National Memorial Commission and the cash prizes and scholarships being offered by the Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers.

Inside the various national patriotic societies which have already joined actively in this stupendous effort to capture for enduring granite the best thought of America about itself, there is a hum of campaign activities. The Daughters of the Cincinnati, the Society for American Speech, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the National Council of Women, the Camp Fire Girls, the Catholic Daughters of America and similar groups are naming the committees in their own organizations who will sift the texts submitted by their members in their own auxiliary campaigns.

Have you determined how you will write those 600 words dealing with the nine great epochs which built America out of the wilderness?

Remember, as President Roosevelt has indicated:

It is not the acquisition of territory that was the significant thing—it was the pioneering spirit that peopled and built up those areas.

Also remember that it was President Roosevelt who declared:

"You can say anything in 500 words!"

OREGON PACT AND RESULTS

Compromise Ended Long-Standing Dispute

(Editor's Note—This is the final instalment of Dr. Joseph Schaefer's article on the Oregon boundary settlement.)

As to the relative rights of Britain and the United States, could it be doubted that the former's were superior? Could the accidental entry of the Columbia River by Gray, a private American trader, offset the official surveys of Cook and Vancouver, made at heavy expense for their government; could the exploration of the river by Lewis and Clark offset the 10 years earlier exploration by Vancouver? True, the Astor party had built a post at the mouth of the river. But they had sold it to the Northwest Company and that company, succeeded by the Hudson's Bay Company, had remained in possession. If the Americans have some rights, the British also have rights. There being no way to appraise these with exactness, in terms of territory, the only solution is to divide Oregon on principles of "mutual convenience." In other words, Canning suggested that the line of 49 degrees be extended west to the easternmost branch of the Columbia. From there the Columbia itself should be the boundary.

The principle of mutual concession was a sound one. In fact, it had already several times been proposed by American negotiators. The important question was what should each contestant concede? Canning wanted to "stake the midstream of the Columbia," and adhere to that policy permanently. The Americans (especially Gallatin, in the negotiation of 1826-27) stood out for the forty-ninth parallel, but showed a willingness to modify this somewhat to meet Britain's convenience. The concession ultimately embodied in the treaty of 1846 was already shadowed forth by Gallatin 20 years earlier. It was to extend the boundary by parallel 49 from the crest of the Rockies to the middle of the channel connecting with De Fuca's strait, thence by that channel and the strait itself to the Pacific. This left the island of Vancouver wholly to the British, and gave them ports on that island.

Meantime, American interests were expanding westward. Pioneered at first by bold fur-traders operating in the Rocky Mountain region, these men traversed the Great Basin, California, Oregon, and found a wagon road through the mountains by way of South Pass. The public discussion of Oregon aroused the interest of eastern business men, like Nathaneal Wyeth, who went to the lower Columbia in 1832 and again in 1834. Philanthropy, and zeal for the Oregon Indians sent the Lee and the Whitman parties of missionaries to Oregon, the first in 1834, the second in 1835-1836.

There was, of course, much diplomatic discussion, some sharp differences, and an occasional flurry of war feeling in both countries. Yet, on the whole, events were winning the cause for the American theory of what the compromise should be. The British government under Sir Robert Peel became very eager to settle the long-standing dispute and the Polk administration, at first belligerent, finally made gestures of friendship and accommodation. The present boundary was the result, giving us the state of Washington entire, giving Britain the great island of Vancouver entire; and providing for the commercial accommodations of both nations in the ample harbors of Fuca's Strait and Puget Sound.

SPELLING TITLE SEEKERS VIE IN FINALS

Who is Allegheny County's champion speller?

That's the question that nearly 80 preliminary winners in the old-fashioned spelling bee, sponsored by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, are going to solve in the Schenley High School auditorium tonight.

Several hundred persons, including many from educational circles, are expected to witness the championship "spell-down," which will start at 7:30 p. m.

DICKEY TO PRESIDE

Dr. C. E. Dickey, superintendent of county schools, will preside and make the awards.

T. D. Thomas, 708 Middle street, North Side, was the winner of the preliminary contest held at Allegheny High School. Thomas won when Mrs. F. S. Miller, 1361 Oakhill street, North Side, misspelled "equation." Mrs. Miller is the alternate.

Winner of the Coraopolis School district spelling contest, held last night in Coraopolis High School auditorium, was Miss Jessie C. Harper, and the alternate, Miss Lida V. Hahn. Supervising Principal of Schools J. C. Weiner presided. About 150 persons were in the audience.

The county meet is part of the state-wide spelling bee, held by the Department of Public Instruction in Harrisburg to mark the centennial celebration of the Public School Act. The contest is for adults not now in school or college as students or teachers.

ORDER ARRANGED

The spellers tonight will be arranged alphabetically according to the city high schools and county school districts in which they competed. Theodore Siedle, professor of education at the University of Pittsburgh, will be the pronouncer.

A trip to Harrisburg with all the expenses paid by the Sun-Telegraph will be awarded the winner and alternate. Third prize is $25, fourth $15 and fifth $10.

Features on the program will be [illegible] CWA orchestra director Saudek and the reading [illegible] Paul Lawrence Dunbar's "[illegible] Spelling Bee" by Chester [illegible] Story, English teacher at Schenley High.

NEW ROMANCE DENIED BY STAR

Miss Miller and Tay Garnett, film director, were divorced last summer in Budapest. They were married in September, 1929.

Empty Your Gall Bladder

And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!

Sleepless nights, dog-tired days, headaches, pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?

And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?

No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralizing gastric acid, quickening digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food sours, putrifies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.

From the world's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralizes burning acidity and sweeps that poison-packed bowel clean.

Take two Oxoids after each meal—and before retiring—drink plenty of water—put your gall bladder to work—and you'll jump out of your skin for joy. Such new health! Such robust vigor! Get Magnesia Oxoids today from your druggist.

BANK STOCK TAX CASE ARGUED

Argument was heard yesterday by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court on the right of the Department of Revenue to tax certain government bonds and national bank stock.

The Dauphin County Court upheld the tax and the Schuylkill Trust Company, of Pottsville, appealed the decision.

The lower court decided Philippine Islands bonds and joint stock land bonds were taxable, together with national bank shares, and assessed the bank $2,290.14.

John R. Jones, attorney for the bank, contended that federal securities must be deducted at their full value from the value of the total assets of the defendant company, for tax purposes.

Deputy Attorney General Philip S. Moyer said the courts have uniformly held that in assessing the shares of stock of national and state banks and trust companies for taxation to the stockholders, no deduction need be made on account of federal securities.

Faster Relief Now From Neuritis

MR. CLARK WANTS TO SEE ME IN AN HOUR ABOUT THE BIG INTERNATIONAL DEAL.... .....AND NEURITIS IN MY ARM IS DRIVING ME CRAZY
DON'T WORRY! JUST TAKE 2 BAYER ASPIRIN TABLETS...THEY'LL STOP THE PAIN IN A FEW MINUTES
2. LATER—
WELL I PUT OVER THE DEAL! AND I CAN THANK THE QUICK WORK OF THAT BAYER ASPIRIN YOU SUGGESTED
OH, THAT'S WONDERFUL, MR. JONES, I KNEW IT'D WORK!

Real BAYER Aspirin "Takes Hold" of Pain in Few Minutes

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia . . . the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

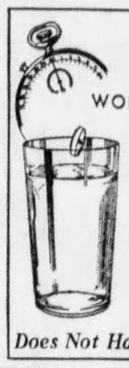
Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, see that you get the Genuine BAYER Aspirin. For Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER Aspirin."



WHY BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop a Bayer Tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches bottom, it has started to disintegrate.

What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Hence its fast action.

SUSPECT NEW PARROT FEVER SOURCES HERE

latent carrier of psittacosis germs, health authorities admit. The suspicion is that some of the birds received here last January were infected. Hundreds of birds and humans have come into contact with the birds since, yet the birds were not put under quarantine until a week ago, records of the Health Department reveal.

SHIPMENT REFUSED

Out of 72 birds consigned to the Paris Pet Shop on January 31, the records show, 63 were dead upon arrival. The shipment was refused by the Paris shop. Another shipment of 72 received on January 21, had one bird in poor condition, according to the Health Department record.

In one illegal shipment, three birds were found dead. Several others were in "poor condition." One of the dead birds was sent to the United States Public Health Service in Washington for examination, but the report came back that examination was impossible because the birds had been dead too long.

ORDER BIRDS KILLED

These birds were freely handled by persons in the shops and were in contact with other birds until March 5 when psittacosis was first indicated in the deaths of a number of persons here, health authorities admitted. The Health Department asked the dealers to voluntarily quarantine the suspected birds on March 12, but not until three days later was the quarantine made absolute by order of the health authorities.

At McCreery's where the disease was first found to exist among the birds, the management voluntarily ordered the destruction of 85 remaining birds. The City Health Department asked for records of sales during the period prior to the discovery of the presence of the disease. None of these birds has been located, however, according to City Health Director Ray P. Moyer and Dr. Philip E. Marks, superintendent of the Bureau of Infectious Diseases.

PLEA TO BUYERS

To this end, Dr. Moyer issued a public appeal last Saturday asking persons who purchased birds since January 1 to communicate that fact to the City Department of Health.

The W. T. Grant Company bird shop was placed under quarantine for 10 days in January following receipt of a shipment of 48 shell parrakeets, of which one bird was dead on arrival and four others died subsequently. No more casualties occurred among the birds and they were released from quarantine about February 1, although no conclusive psittacosis test had been made. Two more birds were found dead in their cages last Friday.

NO WARNING GIVEN

It was pointed out by medical men that no warning or appeal was sent out by the City Health Department until several deaths of persons from psittacosis had occurred. The Medical Bulletin carried a warning of the fever's prevalence, but it was pointed out, it was inspired by Dr. Walter F. Donaldson, president of the Allegheny County Medical Society, and not by the city authorities.

The society will hold its monthly meeting in the Hotel Schenley ballroom tonight. Dr. I. Hope Alexander will read a paper on psittacosis and City Health Director Moyer also will speak.

A general discussion of the disease and its treatment will follow the speaking program.

DEROSA SUMMER HOME RUINED

The summer home of Michael DeRosa, political leader of the Twelfth Ward, on the Gardenview road, Baldwin Township, was destroyed by fire early today, following a gas furnace explosion. Damage to the two-story brick dwelling, according to Fire Chief Edward T. Tush, was $10,000.

Due to a road detour, fire apparatus arrived too late to be of use. All that remained was a side wall and the chimney.

Two caretakers, sleeping in an adjoining garage, were aroused by a neighbor who discovered the fire. The house was fumigated yesterday in preparation for the summer opening.

Work in Morning, Buy in Afternoon, Held Recovery Aid

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—(AP.)—Dr. Herbert W. Hess, professor of merchandising at the University of Pennsylvania, says he believes sales would increase greatly, thus speeding recovery, if:

Productive work was limited to hours between 7 a. m. and noon. Distributive work, including selling, was confined between noon and 6 p. m. and amusement places were limited from 6 p. m. to midnight.

One reason for the sales increase, Dr. Hess told the Salesmanagers' Association of Philadelphia, would be that men as well as women would be free to buy during store hours.

COUNTY VOTERS' LIST CHECKED

Transcribing of the registrar list from the boroughs and townships was begun yesterday in the County Elections Bureau, after the County Commissioners appointed more than 20 temporary transcribing and checking clerks.

The transcribing clerks were hired at the rate of three-fourths of a cent a word, although the County Salary Board set up a cent and a half as the rate. The checkers get $5 a day.

When tender cut two or three slices of bread half an inch thick; put in a frying pan two ounces of butter, put on the fire; when the butter is melted put in your bread, which fry of a nice yellowish color; when nice and crisp take them out, place them on a dish, a little white sugar over, the apples about an inch thick. Cover tightly and place in a moderate oven. No water is required. When it boils it will be very tender, yet each piece has preserved its shape. Can and seal as you would any other fruit.

To Relieve Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness, or who are growing hard of hearing and have head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected complete relief after other treatments have failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. Therefore, if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer, perhaps, from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are nearly always quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form, or distressing rumbling, hissing sounds in their ears, should give this recipe a trial.

12 TO RISK LIVES FOR LIBERTY IN SERUM TEST

DENVER, March 20.—(AP.)—Twelve convicts at the Colorado Penitentiary are to risk their own health in an effort to help medical science determine whether a new serum can make all normal persons safe from tuberculosis.

The serum was discovered by Dr. H. J. Cooper and fellow workers at the National Jewis Hospital here. Dr. Cooper said today it has been usued successfully in hundreds of tests made on animals in the last 15 years.

READY FOR TRIAL

He said:

"It is now ready for trial on human beings, and we hope that it will be the means of immunizing all normal, healthy persons against tuberculosis."

He emphasized that the serum is in no sense a cure for the disease it will not overcome tuberculosis after the disease has taken root. Its power, he hopes, will be similar to that of other vaccines.

Gov. E. C. Johnson has agreed to extend executive clemency to the convicts who are chosen for the tests. He said he would not permit any prisoner who is listed as a habitual criminal or a holdup man or forger to be among the volunteers.

Dr. Corper said:

HAVE BETTER CHANCE

"There will be risk, of course, for the volunteers. The worst thing that can happen to them, we believe, is that they can contract a slow-acting case of tuberculosis. But, if so, they will have a far greater chance to recover than thousands now suffering from tuberculosis because their cases will be discovered and properly treated at the earliest stage."

Dr. Corper declined to name the chemical contents of the serum. Working with him, he said, in evolving it in the last 15 years have been Dr. Morris Cohen and Arthur Dameron, a laboratory research student.

He said that so far, there have been no harmful effects suffered by the animals used in experiments with the serum.

A Cape to Flatter the Larger Figure

Pattern 1680

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

According to latest fashion dictates the frock with the large cape is going to be very popular during the warm weather season. Today's model is particularly flattering to the larger figure for its deep, gracefully flared cape conceals a full bust and stout arms. Pointed seamings and length-giving skirt pleats achieve an illusion of slenderness. A printed silk, or one of the new sheers would be loveliest for it. The cape may be contrasting, if desired. You'll never need worry about what to wear, when you can slip into this frock and look your smartest—for any occasion.

Pattern 1680 is available in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes $4\frac{1}{8}$ yards 39-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

BOARD WEIGHS REFUGE PLEA

The Board of Public Education today was considering a suggestion that the Ralston School, Penn avenue and Fifteenth street, be used as a refuge for homeless men. The plan was approved at a meeting of the property and supplies committee, headed by Taylor Allderdice, last night.

A suggestion was made that the building be leased at a nominal rental to an organization headed by Father James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's Church.

Men from "Shantytown," who would occupy the building, will make necessary improvements and install plumbing and heating systems," Attorney Kivie Wolfe, representing Father Cox, told the committee, and Supt. of Police Ben R. Marshall said that a 24-hour police guard would be furnished for the building.

FRAUD DENIED IN DAVIS CASE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 20. (AP.)—Paul M. Davis, banker, and A. V. Louthan, attorney, yesterday denied the testimony of J. I. Reece that they participated in a plan for him to divert $22,000 from the State Insurance Department into a political war chest.

Reece, former insurance commissioner, had said from the witness stand that $9,000 of the $100,000 of bonds he is charged with stealing were given to him to sell in accordance with an "agreement" under which he was to refund the deficit in his accounts with part of the proceeds.

The defendant said that United States Senator Nathan L. Bachman and J. J. Lynch, Chattanooga attorney, were parties to the "agreement" to use the money in behalf of Gov. Hill McAlister's 1932 election campaign and declared that Louthan, Davis and Vance Alexander, Memphis banker, as members of the "McAlister finance committee," assisted in the scheme.

'First Things First'

By James T. Williams, Jr.

I favor as practical policy putting first things first—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

IN HIS inspiring inaugural of of March 4 last President Roosevelt lined up with the framers of the Federal Constitution, who, when they came to write the preamble favored "as a practical policy putting first things first."

President Roosevelt has set Congress an excellent example in this regard. From the day he entered the White House he has supported his Secretary of War and his Secretary of the Navy in their refusal to permit pork barrel politicians or any other outside influence to dictate military or naval appointments and promotions in the armed services.

The list of nominations which the President has just sent to the Senate for the filling of vacancies in the military and naval establishments were recommended by the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy, respectively. They did not consult politicians. They consulted their military and naval advisers and they based their recommendations on military and naval records. They ignored political recommendations. They resisted outside interference. And in so doing they carried out the instructions issued to them at one of the first meetings of the Roosevelt cabinet last spring.

No President in many years has surpassed and few have equaled the consistency with which President Roosevelt has refused to permit his political friends and followers to debauch the military and naval establishments to their sordid purposes.

* * *

President Gives Congress Examples

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT set Congress another example of putting first things first when he put the studies of the general staff of the Army and the recommendations of the chief of staff and the careful and deliberate and fearless policies of his Secretary of War regarding the building up of the regular army and the expansion of the Army Air Corps ahead of the proposals of uniformed critics and front page publicity seekers.

President Roosevelt has set Congress many much needed examples of the wisdom of "putting first things first" in the administration of government and it is high time for Congress to follow this example, which was also the example of the framers of the Constitution.

This the Congress should do in the face of the challenge to its constitutional authority and responsibility as the legislative branch of the government.

Certain Senators in Congress have made a series of allegations to the general effect that all domestic air mail contracts in operation up until February 9, last had been obtained by fraud and collusion.

The Senators who made the allegations have yet to produce the proof. They rushed to the White House, they rushed to the broadcasting stations, they summoned newspaper reporters and flung these allegations far and wide. They could not speak for the Senate. They could not even speak for the special committee of the Senate which was assigned to look into these contracts. They spoke only for themselves.

* * *

Canceled Without Process of Law

AS A RESULT of the activities of these Senators, all domestic air mail contracts have been canceled. They were canceled without a hearing, without the notice Congress stipulated should be given. They were canceled without giving the men who held them a chance to be heard. They were canceled without due process of law.

Now is the time and Congress is the place for Senators and Representatives in Congress to put first things first by refusing to ratify the un-American procedure which was followed when all domestic air mail contracts were canceled without due process of law, without giving the holders of those contracts a chance to be heard.

If Congress will do this it will extricate the administration from the blunder which was instigated by certain national legislators who did not put first things first.

If Congress will do this it will do more to restore confidence throughout the country than will the enactment of any legislation now pending.

If Congress will do this it will assure every loyal American that the government at Washington still lives—the government of the constitution, "a government of laws and not of men."

JUNIOR PATROL

The last few days of warm weather have given us spring fever, fellows!

We all like pleasant weather, especially if it doesn't get too hot, but it makes it hard to work sometimes. A fellow keeps thinking what a good time he could have hiking in the country, or playing baseball, maybe.

So make an effort, fellows, and don't let spring fever keep you from getting your lessons done well.

Have you been reading about the Sun-Telegraph spelling bees? We have read that the word "pickaninny" was the word most of the contestants couldn't spell in one of the "spelldowns." That doesn't seem like such a hard word, does it? Words are like a lot of things. Most of them just look hard, but when you take them apart and study them they are pretty easy after all.

We have started to read a new book, fellows, biography of Sherman, the great Civil War general. Did you know, that Sherman did not want to free the slaves but fought on the Union side because he wanted to save the Union? That seems to be the way it was. When the war started he was the head master of a military academy for boys way down south in Louisiana.

Sherman was the son of a man who was a pioneer lawyer in the Ohio country. Did you know that in those days people had to extract their salt from salt springs by boiling off the water in huge kettles? It was hard work and salt was costly. Now salt is common.

Men have found great mines of it, and the great Salt Lake in Utah, and salt is cheap. But this shows you how hard life must have been for our ancestors more than a hundred years ago. It is hard for us to realize today that all this country was once a wilderness.

They say that wild strawberries were so many that the horses, wading through them, got their legs covered with the crushed fruit. And flocks of wild ducks and other birds were so common that they darkened the sky.

GLOBE TROTTING

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

On the occasion I addressed Maj. Charles Hugh Tebay as Colonel and apologetically attempted to cover my confusion, he told me he doubted whether there were any majors in the United States Army.

Almost without exception every man who has been introduced to him has, in later conversation, called him Colonel.

"The women," the Major continued, "do worse. They always demote me to Capt. Tebay."

* * *

Profuse and humble apologies to the lady globe trotters born in 1898. One of those born in that year took violent exception to a statement made in connection with an event of that time, the statement being:

"A long time ago in 1898, etc."

* * *

The robins still have faith. Elsie Dilla reports them in Baldwin Township, and Mrs. Lettie Talen reports them in Dormont. Mrs. Ludwig says they're on the North Side, too.

I'll bet that next year the robins don't show up until the Fourth of July.

* * *

Thanks to the Elizabeth reader who sent in a spring contribution.

It was the picture of a grasshopper and not the grasshopper itself.

* * *

Watch for the Globe Trotter's spelling bee to be held over the radio. Please send in suggestions.

* * *

Am I worried and have I been digging in wastebaskets looking for the chain letter I tossed in one the other day?

Mrs. E. E. confidentially writes me that she did exactly the same thing with one of those letters a year ago and she has had nothing but hard luck ever since.

Oh! I don't know. Everybody pretty much has had tough breaks the past year or so, chain letters or no chain letters.

I'm not sure, but I think there is some law against the sending of that kind of missive.

Bull Fiddle Made of Old Log, Tin

By AIRCASTER

A log and a few pieces of tin doubling as a bass viol today were shown to have made possible a radio appearance for a West Elizabeth high school girl, her sister and a brother.

The black-haired, homemade "bull fiddle" is the work of curly-haired Tommy Williams, 21, and is a vital part of the equipment used by the musical Williams trio, Sara, June and Tommy, whose program has been heard over radio station WWSW.

June, 15, appealed to her brother last year about the base viol situation in the Williams family. She had no money to buy one of the bull-voiced instruments.

Tommy promptly went to work, whittling at a piece of walnut stock found in the Williams yard at Fifth street, West Elizabeth.

He hammered at tin garnered from a near-by tinsmith; June bought strings and a bow, and the base viol problem was solved.

BACK TO FARM

An interesting sidelight attended the debate via WJAS Saturday, in which a Harvard team upheld the contention that a college education is not vital—or even an advantage to the modern young man.

One of the debaters, upon the close of a broadcast, received a wire from his father in Illinois.

"Your argument has convinced me," telegraphed the pater. "Pack up and come back to the farm."

Local Highlights On WJAS Tonight

Jimmy Bridges' Cabellaros return to WJAS with a quarter-hour of tango favorites at 5:45.

Real variety—Happy Chaps' vocal trio at 6:15; Paul Gannon at 6:45 and Barnyard Frolics at 8.

Eddie Peyton's band plays a song or two made famous by Ted Lewis as a feature of the 11:30 Frivolities.

The imminent separation of Frank Black and Jack Benny leaves Frank, the NBC musical director, with an advantage.

His quipping with Benny on broadcasts has sharpened his tongue and awakened comedic talents.

He now uses these new-found gifts to discipline his orchestra. A heckling phrase has more effect upon a recalcitrant musician than a bawling out, he has learned.

He originantes at nearly every rehearsal bits of biting sarcasm and comedy, although he realizes that this is contrary to custom among radio comedians.

Freddy Rich returns Thursday with his "Freddy Rich Entertains" at WJAS.

He was rehearsing yesterday for the event, and among the numbers on the bill was "Ill Wind," the sequel to "Stormy Weather." The boys in the band were kicking the piece all over the lot.

Rich was scowling when a control man asked, "What's the name of that piece?"

"'Ill Wind,'" replied Freddy, "and nobody here's blowing it good."

Unwilling Citizen Takes Town Office

SMITHSBURG, Pa., March 20.—(AP.)—Charles I. Wolfinger did not want to run for town burgess—in fact, nobody did, not even the incumbent.

Informed 46 of the 48 voters had written his name in on the ballot yesterday, Wolfinger expressed surprise at his election and agreed to accept the office.

WIGGINS TELLS OF U. S. PATROL

"The Border Patrol's Job" was the subject of an address yesterday by W. W. Wiggins, divisional director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, to members of the service in the Pittsburgh district at a meeting in the Federal Building.

He told of the courage, bravery and resourcefulness required of members of the patrol to prevent illegal entry of aliens at unguarded points along the 5,500 miles of international boundary on northern and southern frontiers.

He said during the last fiscal year the patrol apprehended 21,809 persons who had entered or were in the act of entering the country illegally.

Fear 30 Workmen Dead in Landslide

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, March 20.—(AP.)—More than 30 workers were believed killed today in a landslide in a quarry at Banyitsa, near the Albanian border.

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy whenever we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast and the roses begin to appear in the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will look better and feel better in every way shortly.

Gains 10 lbs. In Few Weeks

FEELS LIKE A NEW PERSON

Posed by professional model

Kansas City Stenographer Tells How Amazing Mineral Concentrate, Richest in Newer Form of "FOOD IODINE," Added Weight, Strengthened Nerves and Built New Energy

Miss Betty Noever, 67 Palmer Road, Kansas City, Mo.

"I have been under weight for 10 years," says Miss Betty Belle Noever, 67 Palmer Rd., Kansas City, Mo. "I also suffered from stomach trouble, anemia and nervousness and nothing seemed to do me any good until I tried Kelp-a-Malt. After the very first bottle I started gaining weight and in a few short weeks had put on 10 lbs. and I can truthfully say all my trouble vanished like magic. I've felt like a new person never better."

Just one of the thousands of actual reports. Yet these results are not unusual. Doctors know how vitally necessary are natural food minerals often so woefully lacking in even the most carefully devised fresh vegetable diets. Unless your system gets the proper amount of these minerals, many of them needed in only the tiniest quantities, even the best food fails to nourish you, fails to build rich red blood, firm flesh and sturdy muscles. This lack of mineralization results in the failure to digest starches and fats in the normal diet. It makes no difference whether your appetite is good or bad, your food is converted into poisonous wastes instead of firm flesh and tireless energy.

Food specialists, however, have only recently discovered a marvelous source of practically every single mineral essential to body needs. It is known as Kelp-a-Malt, a pleasant, easy-to-take vegetable concentrate made from a luxuriant sea plant from the Pacific Ocean combined with diastatic malt extract in delicious, pleasant tasting tablets. It provides in easily assimilable form iron, copper and manganese for tireless vigor and vitality, calcium and phosphorus for strong teeth and bones, sulphur for proper elimination, sodium potassium and magnesium to correct stomach gas, acidity and indigestion.

Supplies Newer Form of Food Iodine

And most important — Kelp-a-Malt is the richest known source of the newer form of food iodine—natural iodine not made from iodides or other chemicals which often times prove toxic but the same iodine that is present in spinach and lettuce. It is the lack of this iodine which experts in nutrition say is our foremost National health problem.

Scientists know that the blood, liver and vital glands of the body contain definite, determined quantities of iodine which heretofore have been difficult to obtain. A recent report indicates that 60 million people in the United States alone fail to get enough iodine in their daily food. To overcome this deficiency dietitians suggest that we should all eat two plates of raw oysters—heretofore regarded as the best source of iodine—each week to overcome this appalling iodine shortage. Yet Kelp-a-Malt, this newest vegetable concentrate, contains thirteen hundred times more food iodine than oysters.

Try Kelp-a-Malt today. Contains no yeast—doesn't cause bloating. Two weeks are required to effect a change in the mineralization of the body. At the end of that time, if you have not gained at least 5 pounds, do not look better, feel better and have more endurance than ever before, the trial is free. Two hundred tablets, 4 to 5 times larger than ordinary size tablets, cost but little. Get Kelp-a-Malt today.

NO RUST IN RUUD

In your hot water storage tank, a constant battle between iron and rust is going on.

Rust wins . . . every time . . . and sometimes in as short a period as three or four months. In six or seven months always!

You lose, of course, and the penalties are rusty, henna-rinse baths, rust-spots that ruin lingerie and fine linen, rust-laden water that is certainly NOT good for the complexion.

In the RUUD Automatic Water Heater, water touches nothing but non-corrosive copper and brass. Every drop is pure and fresh, free from sediment and rust.

RUUD Hot Water flows at the turn of the faucet, too. It's instantly ready and inexhaustible in its unfailing supply. Automatic controls keep the gas bill down; you pay only for the hot water you actually use. Come and see a demonstration or mail one of the coupons below.

DEMONSTRATIONS DAILY

444 Oliver Avenue ATlantic 5586

Opposite William Penn Hotel

RUUD, THE OLD RELIABLE, OFFERS YOU THIS:

AUTOMATIC GAS CUT-OFF . . . If the pilot light should accidentally go out, this positive-acting device will shut off the flow of ALL gas automatically.

DOUBLE FUEL CONTROL . . . A gas-saver. Its job is to keep gas flow in ratio to hot water flow and it does this automatically.

INTERNAL THERMOSTAT . . . Automatic, too, and placed in the heart of the heat zone, where it is instantly responsive to temperature changes.

NO RUSTY WATER . . . Water touches nothing but non-corrosive brass and copper. Rusty water is impossible.

CLEANABLE BURNERS . . . A clean burner saves gas. You don't have to be a mechanic to clean a RUUD burner.

HEAVY CAST-IRON HOUSING . . . No water heater jacket has as much endurance and life as a cast-iron jacket. No water heater jacket is heavier, stronger or longer lasting than that used by RUUD.

LOW COST-PER-GALLON . . . Installations numbered in the tens of thousands are best of all proofs of RUUD economy.

LOW COST-PER-YEAR . . . The longer a water heater lasts, the smaller is its cost-per-year. No water heater has a lower cost-per-year than RUUD.

GAS-SAVING . . . RUUD burns gas only when the faucet is open. You pay only for the hot water you actually use. You personally control the gas bill.

Things About a Restaurant I Never "Noodle" Now

(Thanks to Roy L. Alciatore of New Orleans.)

That the restaurant men who will serve a drunk MORE liquor are the same men who will cry aloud with indignation when this same drunk starts to throw the bread, butter and salt shakers around. Handle a drunk as you would dynamite, both are apt to explode when you least expect it.

A restaurant is made, not born, and while it takes a hundred years to acquire a reputation, it only takes six months to lose it.

If it's ornamentation you're seeking, go to a museum, if it's dancing that intrigues you, a night club is the place, but if it's good food you want, then go to a restaurant. The fare will delight the eye, the tinkling of wine glasses will produce the music.

A restaurant is a place where dollars are exchanged for food. The one as well as the other is apt to be counterfeit.

Good food is a restaurant's only worthwhile ad, and all the gold leaf, dim lights and soft music in the world cannot compete with a refined palate.

If you go to a first class restaurant for first class food and service, come prepared with a first class pocketbook. If you have to figure the cost, you can't affort it.

The people who are "fussy" about where they shall sit are the people who season their food before tasting it, and who swallow their food without appreciating it.

A bit of appreciation goes a long way. If you have enjoyed the first course, tell your waiter, he will see to it that the second course is even better.

The man who will come into a French restaurant and order chicken chow mien will go to a Jap spot to order crepes suzette. When in Rome, do as the Maitre d'Hotel tells you.

Seven out of ten women will gently ease their feet out of their shoes while dining, and only one man in 50 will cross his legs while eating.

A bill of fare, with the prices quoted, can change a haughty, vigorous and hungry man, into a timid, sickly and thoroughly statiated human. Who's afraid of the very big and very bad bill of fare?

The people from the North who come South to order lobster are the people who go to Paris to order wheat cakes, and in that case if the waiter does not go into hysterics he is not a true Frenchman.

Cosmopolites are the easiest people to please because they are appreciative. A nouveau riche is a pain, not only in the neck, but particularly in the restaurant.

When entertaining a celebrity, treat him in a manner befitting his position, unnecessary kowtowing will betray the fact that you have never before met a celebrity.

Waiters are the original see nothing, hear nothing and tell nothing men. Blackmail is so infrequent that it is practically unknown in their calling.

If you see a boiled egg listed on the menu at 75 cents, before you start screaming and pulling your hair, remember that the buyer, the cook, the waiter, the lights, the fuel, the laundry and the rent have to be paid before that very egg reaches the table. And that, kiddies, is the story of the egg.

The Southern people who go up North and order Southern coffee are the people who will begin a meal with a liqueur and end it with a cocktail.

Restaurants and restaurant men who ballyhoo the merits of their food as "Pottsville's most famous restaurant," or "Our food is the best on earth," do it of necessity, as they are probably alone in their opinions of themselves, and of their food.

Ninety-nine out of a hundred people who have been in the restaurant business and for some reason have tried other lines of endeavor, invariably return to the restaurant business. There is something captivating and fascinating about it.

It is possible to please some of the patrons all of the time, and all of the patrons some of the time, but believe me, pal o' mine and pardon the slang, you can't please all of them guys all of the time.

That in arithmetic one and one make two—but in a restaurant one and one make trouble, especially if the first one is a philanderer and the second the other guy's wife. And he walks in!

That a restaurant without a suave and gallant maitre d'hotel is like a beautiful woman with only one eye. The one as well as the other lacks something which is indispensable.

That if you are in a hurry, don't waste your time in a first-class restaurant. A beanery will do as well. An orchid cannot be grown overnight, neither can a culinary masterpiece be produced in five minutes.

That cheap prices and good food are as far apart as a quarter to three and nine fifteen. Cheap prices mean cheap materials. A humble hen has never yet been known to lay an egg that hatched out into a long-tailed gallinaceous bird of the Phasianus genus. (A pheasant to you!)

There are not enough scallions in the world for the type of man who finds fault with the waiter and the food merely to cut down the size of his tip.

One dissatisfied customer can do your restaurant more harm than the praises of a thousand others can undo. So, if a man has a tough steak, don't give him a sharp knife, give him another steak.

Studio Town Girl Gets Break

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.—'S funny, but Ruth Matteson, Hollywood girl, had to go to New York to be "discovered" as a picture actress. But Hollywood, the strangest city in the world, is sometimes like that.

Some months ago Ruth proved her histrionic ability at the Pasadena Community Playhouse and on Los Angeles stages in "Tale of Two Cities" and "Elmer the Great," but local casting directors and producers failed to notice her. Onward to Broadway she went. There Clark Gable, on his recent tour, "found" her and engaged her for his personal appearance sketch.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer scouts "discovered" Ruth—at Clark's suggestion, of course—and now she's a contract player headed for featured roles. That's Hollywood—thanks to Clark "Columbus" Gable.

* * *

Probably the most discussed role in the flickers at the moment is that of the crooner in Joan Crawford's current movie, "Sadie McKee." Nearly everyone in the business has been tested for the coveted part. Even the studio gateman wanted to dye his hair and warble out a test. Many reels ago (time lapse, you dope!) Gene Raymond was up for the part, but turned it down. Three scenarios later, he also gestured thumbs down—but, with the promise of a rewrite by John (Very Clever) Meehan, Gene put his signature on the dotted line, thereby ending what is supposed to be the world's longest search for a crooner. Associate Producer Larry Weingarten is particularly happy. He even thought of hiring Walt (Mickey Mouse) to DRAW IN the crooner.

Wanderings Around Hollywood—Gene Fowler seems to have GONE Hollwood to the tune of THREE HOURS for lunch! .... Irene Colman rates a new Fox ticket—and she's a-romancin' with Ralph Graves... A certain femme star went to a mountain resort for a rest, but was tossed out by the management for getting spiffy-eyed and annoying the guests ... Buddy Green and Sammy Stept, tunesmiths, have a new one, "Hot-Chatchorinia Brown," that will KNOCK YOU DOWN! ... Nat Stein and Bert Wheeler have purchased a fighter by the name of Eddie Volk. They're looking for a sparring partner resembling Woolsey ... A not-that-it-makes-any-difference item: Zasu Pitts simply CAN'T STAND the sight of Diamonds!

* * *

It's AWFULLY funny that a studio supervisor, a stenographer and THREE office boys are taking CREDIT for telling Vincent Youmans HOW to write that hit and tuneful ditty, "Caricoa." Their gestures rate a new high in laughing stock! ... Barbara (Snooney) Blair CELEBRATED the release from her Warner ticket by purchasing a large ranch and estate (mind you!) in Perris, California. (It's near Riverside, in case you haven't a map handy.) ... George Chandler, the comic, thinks Czar Hays should look into a sign hanging in one of Hollywood's library (yep, we have 'em, too,) which read: "Low conversation permitted" ... Tsk! Tsk! ... Rubio, expres. of Mexico, and his two sonny boys are glimpsing the cinema village these afternoons and evenings—and having SUCH FUN! ... Douglass Montgomery registered at the Garden of Allah with his 60-pound Irish wolfhound thusly: "Douglass Montgomery and pet pooch" ... Wedding bells rang out to Mary Kornman, formerly of "Our Gang" funnies, and Leo Tovar, the camera cranker at Paramount.

Bans Ballyhoo As Bride

Hollywood is wondering whether Zasu Pitts is not borrowing a few tricks from her next-door neighbor, Greta Garbo. The star has forbidden Universal in no uncertain terms to publicize her marraige to Edward Woodall.

With a wave of her expressive hands, she dismissed all pleas to allow photographers to make pictures of the honeymooners in the midst of domestic bliss. Zasu said:

"People in Hollywood make entirely too much of their romances. If they wouldn't parade their happiness so much before the public, they might be able to keep it longer.

"We're not going to be like that. My husband and I kept our marriage secret from October until February. I don't want any pictures of us, and I don't believe he does. That part of our life belongs to us."

Coming on the heels of her evasion of interviewers, and even studio representatives in New York, it looks as if Zasu means it.

Variety's New Offering Is 'Laffin' Thru'

"Laffin' Thru," the new burlesque in the Variety, is one of the most diversified shows to be presented in that theater by George Jaffe, manager. Comedy, songs and Oriental dances are featured throughout the two acts and 44 scenes. Joe De Rita, small in size, and "Fats" Hyatt, a 400-pound comic are the leading comedians of the show. Abe Sher, a Jewish funster, and Frank Penny, eccentric mime, also are seen in the comedy sketches. Nona Martin, a flaming redhead, is the premier as Oriental dancer. Reggis White, tassel dancer, and Georgia Sothorn, fastest woman dancer to ever appear in the Variety, are at the Penn avenue playhouse. Both are holdovers from last week. "The Four Whirlwinds," in a roller skating act, are among the specialties. Franklyn Hopkins, tenor, and Jack Miller, are featured singers. Among the musical production numbers are "The Ballad of the Orchids," featuring Arline Millburne; "Garden of Vampires," with Al Golden, and "Ballad of Hearts," with Wilma Horner featured.

Unemployed Group Ask Aid of Council

Asking backing for a bill now before Congress for unemployed and social insurance, an unemployed group has petitioned Council for a hearing. The communication, signed by Phil Frankfeld, requested hearing for six speakers March 28.

Empire Club Stages Cabaret Dance Party

The Empire Club will hold its first annual cabaret dance at the Club Mirador, Homestead, next Tuesday. New officers include: Leon Bluestone, president; Joel Kurtz, vic president; Joseph Hiamovitz, secretary-treasurer, and Al Wishnev, social chairman.

Entertainer

Bobbe Arnst, musical comedy star, is heading the entertainment program now being presented as the floor show in the Plaza Cafe.

Noted Aviator In Hearst News

Clarence Chamberlin, famous transatlantic flyer, in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, tells how glad he is to do what he can to aid in the air mail problem. In accepting a place on the committee, formed by Secretary of War Dern, Col. Chamberlin, although deploring the loss of life, declares he is certain the plan is feasible and that the Army will eventually overcome all difficulties. There are also pictures of Orville Wright and Col. Lindbergh, both of whom declined places on the committee, Mr. Wright because of ill health and Lindy because of opposition to the program. Other striking pictures show many of Chamberlin's feats in the air, with The Globe Trotter describing them.

Sonja Henie, the beautiful Norwegion skater, is the center of a brilliant spectacle staged at Madison Square Garden, New York, when star skaters meet in an international carnival for charity. Miss Henie, two-time Olympic winner and world titleholder, executes some amazing fancy figures and spins.

That liquor smuggling continues despite repeal is forcibly brought to attention by the capture by the Coast Guard cutter, Harriet Lane, of the British ghost ship, Narmada with $200,000 worth of liquor aboard. The captured vessel is taken into Portland, Me., with nearly a score of prisoners, all British, except one.

Japan celebrated the 2,594th birthday of the Empire with colorful ceremonies. The birthday of the Crown Prince and the establishment of Manchukuo make it an occasion for a triple celebration.

The Rodeo season of 1934 opens at Forth Worth, Tex., with a thrilling exhibition.

A Belgian inventor in Paris demonstrates a fireproof airplane. Although the plane is in flames, the aviator emerges unharmed.

Postmaster General Farley presides in Washington at the printing of the first sheet of special United States stamps, commemorating Maryland's 300th birthday, presented to Maryland's Secretary of State, David C. Winebrenner.

NOTE — Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedule, it is possible some of the subjects of the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

Echoes From the Cabarets Of Pittsburgh

By THE ROUNDER

Nat Nazarro, Jr., and Margie Nelson, both starring in the Tent Club, will be Mr. and Mrs. as soon as the bank balance permits. Johnny Harris introduced them to each other at the Variety Club in 1930. Another meeting in Chicago two years ago culminated in an engagement last year.

Since he made his debut in Atlantic City 24 years ago as a 5-year-old hand balancer, Nat has played with nearly every theatrical top-notcher. Twice he has tried to retire from the stage but the odor of grease paint lured him back. * * *

Eddie Peyton is said to be preparing to redecorate his Steubenville Pike club and bring costly name shows to town. He says he obtained his ideas for the modernistic bar he is to install in Hollywood. While on the Coast he renewed acquaintance with Burns and Allen, with whom he once played in the Stanley.

Verne Willard's 4-year-old High Noon, the "Wonder Dog" at Peyton's palace, understands 350 English and 35 German words, obeys 72 commands, picks out 21 articles, and has a repertoire of 45 stunts. High Noon, cross between a timber wolf and a German shepherd dog played ten consecutive weeks with Ben Bernie and Buddy Rogers at College Inn, Chicago, last summer. * * *

Maj. Charles Hugh Tebay, British Army veteran and international stylist, followed up his Saturday night tete-a-tete with Bobbe Arnst in the Plaza with a motor trip yesterday to a Butler automobile factory, accompanied by the beautiful and talented entertainer. * * *

Marianne Rohrkaste, the Showboat's featured dancer, has never played a club without being held over. She leaves the end of this month with Tommy Flynn's band for Austin Taverns, Scranton. Tommy Flynn will take Sally Sarraff, local vocalist, with him to Danceland Ballroom, Chicago, this summer. * * *

Peggie Kliner, songstress at Fred Sander's New Inn, Steubenville pike, where new Moroccan-style awnings have improved the club's appearance, doesn't smoke or drink. She is the sole support of a family of four. * * *

Clarence (Rubber Legs) Wall, Eddie Peyton dancer, appeared with Teddy Joyce at Loew's Century, Baltimore, a few years back. His younger brother, William Joey, also is a dancer. Neither ever had a dancing lesson. * * *

Oriental decorations and novelties, and chop suey, will mark the Hi Hat Club's second nationality night, "A Night in China," Saturday. Included in the floor show planned for the event are Lillian Chaplin, Dave Jeffries and Blondetta, fan dancer.

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"DEAR MARK:" writes that expert contributor, Leonard Lyons, "Breaths there a man with soul so dead that he never to himself has shouted, 'Darn my wife?' Well, Joe Hamilton was no exception, and he had a perfect right to cuss his wife. For Joe was married, henpecked, and sick.

"'Joe,' his wife would tell him 'I was a fool to marry you. Of all the men in the world, I had to grab a sick one. Boy, will I dance on your grave when you're gone! That's what I'll do, too. I'll dance on your grave.'

"Joe trembled every time he heard that phrase, but there was nothing he could do about it. An incurable malady had made him bedridden for quite some time. The only thing that kept him alive was the forlorn hope that he would outlive his wife, and thus evade the unhappy lot of her dancing on his grave.

"If he couldn't have peace during his lifetime, he'd like it after death. Dancing on his grave! Brrrrr . . .

"Twice the doctors said he had but a few hours to live. But with mysterious recuperative powers, he hung on somehow. Hung on, to hear the taunting jibes of his wife. 'Fooled you that time, didn't I?' he'd croak.

"She'd frown. 'Yes,' she would answer, 'but not for long. No matter where you're going, husband mine, I'm going to dance on your grave.'

"Joe finally passed away. Mrs. Hamilton donned the appropriate widow's weeds, shed the appropriate tears, and waited. In five days, she received a letter from Joe's attorney, asking her to come to his office in connection with the probate of her late husband's will.

"Arriving there, Mrs. Hamilton was ushered into a spacious private office. The attorney arose to greet her, made the appropriate consolling remarks, and picked up a legal-looking document. Joe's will . . .

"Mrs. Hamilton brought out a handkerchief. Some tears should be shed, she felt. But deep within her, she smiled. She had outlived her husband, and could make good her threat to dance on his grave.

" 'Madam,' said the attorney, 'the will is the ordinary one, and leaves you all your late husband's property. But tell me something, Mrs. Hamilton. I thought I knew a lot about your husband, but I never knew he loved the ocean so much. Did you?

" 'The ocean?' repeated the widow. 'Why, no. As a matter of fact, he hated the ocean. He never could stand the sight of the rolling waves. What makes you ask?'

"The lawyer looked highly perplexed.

" 'Because,' he replied, 'his will provides for a burial—at sea!' " . . .

"I SEE where the schoolteachers have won their salary dispute with the city," writes Al Swartz, "but no provision has been made for the night-school instructors.

"But they needn't worry. They'll probably be paid off in the dark!" . . .

"DEAR MARK:" writes Maurice Stecklere, "if youse can use this story, it's oke with me:

"Me, I'm ridin' down Blake ave., in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, last Sunday morn. I'm all dressed up, drivin' me own lil' car, an' I'm on me way to see me best gal. As I pass the crowded pushcart area leadin' to the avenue, a cop hollers, 'Hey, stop!'

"I jams on me brakes, an' the copper hops on the runnin' board wit' his police whistle in his kisser, an' sez:

" 'Keep goin,' buddy. Straight down—an' step on it!'

"Boy, right away I'm thinkin' of a stick-up or a murder. This is Brownsville an' you know what a rep that has for trouble. Anyways, me hands on the wheel is plenty nervous—but whattahell, you only live onct. So we proceeds along the avenue, and he's blowin' away on his whistle an' wavin' his hands an' hollerin'.

"This goes on for about six blocks—but I don't hear no machine guns chatterin', no gunmen shootin', no screams, no nothin'. So what? All of a sudden the bull sez: 'Okay, kid, you kin stop here. Tanks very much. You're a regular guy.'

"I lose about five pounds an' he gives me a quiet fadeout like that! Not me, he don't. I ups to him an' I sez, sez I:

" 'Say, officer, I'd like to know somethin'. What wuz ye chasin'? Wuz it a stick-up—or a murderer—or a—'

"He clips me short.

" 'Nothin' like it, kid,' sez he. 'You see all them push carts along the street?'

" 'Sure,' sez I. 'What about 'em?'

"He sticks out his chest, like he's just won a medal, or somethin'.

" 'Well,' he goes on, 'on Sundays, they gotta close up at a certain time. So I always ride up the avenue this way, blowin' the whistle. That gives 'em warnin' that they gotta close up for the day!' " . . .

"ALTHOUGH the experts continue to warn us," confides Patsy Flick, "Wall street doesn't seem to have changed a bit. The fools still rush in where angles fear to trade." . . .

"DEAR MARK:" writes Martha Harris, of Milwaukee. "I see by the papers that a noted English scientist says the end of the world will arrive in a million years.

"That news will come as a relief to those of us who were wondering when the newspapers would publish the last nudist gag." . . .

"YOU CAN believe it or not, Mark," scribbles P. B., "but I just heard the story of the world's dumbest cab driver. It was his first day on the job, and he halted his cab near a spot where some 300 men were standing.

"He waited there two hours for a fare before he found out it was a breadline!" . . .

blood will tell—

ONE of the mysteries of life is how much care a man will take of thoroughbred animals—noting when they are "off"...and toning them back to the "pink of condition" to increase their daily usefulness—yet will shamefully neglect his own run-down condition.

Certainly, there is a pardonable pride in an animal's healthy appearance...but human beings are more important than animals. Yet some people just hope when "run-down" that they will "come around."

It is just good "horse-sense" to reflect and reason that your so-called "tired feeling" may come from a lowered red-blood-cell count and the hemo-glo-bin in these cells.

There is a remedy specially designed to bring back strength to weakened blood...and no one can be strong, healthy, happy, and full of vitality when in a run-down condition.

S.S.S. Blood Tonic is a time-tested remedy for restoring deficient red-blood-cells and a low hemo-glo-bin content.

If you suspect an organic disease consult your physician...if you feel weak...lack a keen appetite...if your skin is pale and off-color...try S.S.S. as a part of your regular daily diet. Take it just before meals. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite...your color and s[illegible] should improve with increased strength and energy.

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood to enable you to "carry on" without exhaustion as you should naturally.

S.S.S. value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal. It is truly a blood and body tonic. You will find it at all drug stores in two convenient sizes...the larger size is more economical.

A well-known writer after gathering facts about the institution of life insurance and how it had served the people of our country during the last four years, remarked—"Others should be told about this."

Some of these facts may be new to you. All will prove interesting to every man or woman who owns a life insurance policy.

LEADERS READY FOR TAX CUT CONVENTION

HARRISBURG, March 20.—Political leaders and gubernatorial and senatorial aspirants will address representatives of taxpayers' organizations at a state wide convention to be held here tomorrow for the purpose of drafting a legislative program to reduce the tremendous tax burden.

Among the speakers will be United States Senator David A. Reed; Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor; Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon; Judge Charles D. Copeland, of Greensburg; Republican State Chairman Edward Martin and Representative Dr. A. J. White Hutton of Chambersburg.

The convention is held under the auspices of the State Association of Tax Justice Leagues. Attorney Lewis C. Walkinshaw, of Greensburg, who is in charge of the arrangements, declared that between 1,500 and 2,000 persons were expected to attend. Sessions will be held in the Chestnut street Auditorium.

WOULD CUT WASTE

The program to be presented by the legislative committee will contain many points all of which are of vital interest to economy and to eliminate waste and duplication.

The program also will ask for centralization of tax collection in each county and one board of property assessment in each county.

Other points of the program are::

Creation of a state taxing commission, such as exists in Indiana. This commission will serve as a board of appeals for taxpayers who protest excessive local budgets and unnecessary bond issues.

Abolition of all fee offices in favor of salaried officials.

Uniformity of personal registration.

A constitutional convention to give state new and needed constitutional provisions.

OTHER PROPOSALS

The legislative program also will ask that there be no school tax on real estate; abatement of all penalties on delinquent taxes; legislation forcing tax levying bodies to determine millage rates on basis of 100 per cent collection of taxes; taxation on real estate of public utilities, limiting of vote on bond issues to owners of real estate and limitation of real estate taxation.

The speakers at the session will be asked to give their views on the many tax problems the association is attempting to remedy. H. L. Shenk, of Lancaster, president of the state association will preside. Other speakers will be the Rev. Henry K. Ober, of Elizabethtown; John J. McDevitt, Jr., of Philadelphia; B. H. J. Douglass, of Harrisburg; R. V. McCreery, of New Brighton; Conrad Bingler, of Doylestown, Pa., and I. Leonard Aronson, of Pittsburgh.

DORMONT QUITS U. S. CHAMBER

The Dormont Chamber of Commerce at a meeting last night voted to drop its membership in the United States Chamber of Commerce and in the Allied Boards of Trade. Charles Cooke, director of the chamber, declared that "paying $10 to the national group is just like throwing the money out of the window."

The national chamber was criticized when a bill for $10 membership was presented for payment. When present, Cooke, a borough councilman, declared:

"The United States Chamber of Commerce has been bucking Roosevelt in every progressive move he has made to lift us out the depression. It is like throwing money out of the window."

Following the vote to withdraw from the group, the bill for $20 from the Allied Boards of Trade was presented, and a vote was immediately taken to withdraw from that group also. Several members declared the board is not favorable to improvements for the South Hills.

An NRA review board was named to canvass merchants and learn if they are deriving benefits from their codes.

INTEREST HIGH IN LEAGUE PROTEST

Interest in the preparation of a monster petition to Congress opposing a new move to force this country to participate in the League of Nations and the World Court is increasing daily.

From every section of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia today came hundreds of names affixed to petitions being circulated by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers. Thousands of petitions are being circulated in the area under the auspices of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, patriotic and civic organizations.

Among the scores of names reaching the Sun-Telegraph office today were the auxiliaries of American Legion posts in East Liberty and Avella, Pa.

Sending in a list of 117 names, J. E. Shields, of Negley, O., wrote:

"It would be nothing short of treason for our public officials to permit our name to become entangled in Europe's political affairs, and reduce or cancel the war debts. Ninety-five per cent of our citizens are opposed to the League of Nations."

A copy of the petition is published in this edition. Blank petitions are available at the office of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square; the downtown branch office at Fifth avenue and Market street, or they may be obtained by writing or telephoning the League Court Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Get blank petitions at once. Sign them. Ask your neighbors, friends and associates to sign them and see that they are forwarded at once to the League Court Editor.

Dr. Joffe to Discuss League Drive on Radio

Dr. Joffe

Dr. Louis Joffe, well known world traveler, lecturer and author, will make an appeal from station WCAE tomorrow at 5:20 p. m. to loyal Americans to sign petitions being circulated by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and associated Hearst newspapers protesting against American participation in the League of Nations. Dr. Joffe in his address will cite reasons why the United States should remain aloof from the League of Nations and the League Court.

Whose Fault?

Fitful Sleep or Bad Dreams

Fitful, fretful slumber and those 'bad dreams' are sometimes caused by eating things hard to digest, or eating too near bedtime. But a more common cause is constipation. If clogged with waste, a child can't relax; the whole system becomes affected. You just can't give the ordinary cathartic at such an hour. (Indeed, laxatives of adult strength are never suitable for children.) See next column for a way to make the child comfortable for the night, and insure the needed bowel movement next morning:

To turn a nervous, wakeful child into a peaceful little slumberer, try two teaspoonfuls of a delicious fruity syrup you can get from any druggist. Just have him to give you a bottle of California Syrup of Figs. Any boy or girl will love its taste. It starts at once to sweeten a sour, bilious system; and next morning, after moving about, the child will have a thorough, natural bowel action from the gentle action of the senna, if it is the real California Syrup of Figs.

Secret Agent X-9 Clue Contest

The Kidnaped Banker

Clue No. 2

Secret Agent X-9 has been tipped off that there are four possible flat hideouts where the kidnapers of Banker Thomas Wilson might have held him captive.

The wealthy banker upon his release after paying a huge ransom, had described the flat where he was detained as including two rooms, bare of furniture except for a single chair, bed and table.

Wilson also said that the noise made by people walking up and downstairs in the hall outside had been practically the only sounds he had heard. His guards had talked very little to him, and only brought him food and water from downstairs twice a day. He had no way of telling the time as his watch had been taken from him.

Discovering the flat where Wilson was forcibly detained is the first task X-9 has set for himself. He plans to do this by eliminating three of the four possibilities, and has already visited one of the suspected places.

The second hideout, on Atlantic road, was a queer old house that had obviously seen better days.

Slipping up to the fourth floor undetected, Secret Agent X-9 found the two-room flat empty except for a single bed, chair and table, quite like the ones Wilson had described as being in the place where he had been imprisoned. The dirty windows looked out on gloomy surroundings of dilapidated tenements and grim factories. The plaster walls were cracked and water from a faucet dripped into a leaky tin sink.

The detective took it all in, shrugged his shoulders and left.

HOW DULL, LIFELESS HAIR GAINS NEW LIFE AND LUSTRE

—without the use of dyes, bleaches, henna or oils

Now an utterly new and original make-up for the hair that restores youthful beauty

It is called Geral—and the improvement it makes in the appearance of the hair is almost unbelievable. Hair that was dull, soon gleams with beautiful highlights and lustre. Hair that appeared lifeless takes on a vigorous, healthy look. Hair that was "straw like" in texture becomes soft and fluffy. Do you wonder then that women by the thousands are daily flocking to this original make-up for the hair?

Utterly New and Different

Geral is utterly different from anything you have ever used on your hair. It is not a dye, bleach or henna—nor does it contain oil. Applied in a moment, it actually beautifies the hair as rouge, powder and lipstick beautify the face. Geral makes Blonde hair more blonde. Gives Red hair a redder glow. Enriches the color and sheen of Brown and Brunette hair. And causes White or Gray hair to lose that ugly yellowish cast. Geral imparts NOT an artificial look but the natural life, sheen and softness of youthful girlhood. Obtain Geral at all good toilet counters or drug stores.

POLITICS

Davis or Lewis May Run if Harris Does

By MARK SHIELDS

Action by the advisory "citizens' committee" in Philadelphia, recommending six candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, has only accomplished greater confusion in a party already resembling a platter of political scrambled eggs.

Mr. Shields

One result has been to intensify interest in the projected candidacy of Senator Frank J. Harris, whose petitions are circulating throughout the state. The next 48 hours should see a definite decision from Senator Harris as to whether he will run, and that decision is dependent somewhat on Supreme Court Justice George W. Maxey adhering to enter the field.

Behind Senator Harris is the activity of Senator James J. Davis, insistent that he shall have something to say about the progress of the campaign. He was ignored in the findings of the Philadelphia committee.

The Harris candidacy has progressed to a point where a tentative slate is forming, with a candidate for lieutenant governor and secretary of internal affairs. For the latter post an eastern man is under consideration.

Consider Prosecutors As His Running Mates

As running mates for Lieutenant Governor Senator Harris, through Senator Davis, is friendly to either District Attorney David Davis, of Carbon County, or District Attorney Thomas M. Lewis, of Luzerne County. Either would be expected to bring some strength to the ticket.

Holding up the decision of Senator Harris are negotiations with representatives of former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler, already an announced candidate. At a meeting yesterday Harris was asked to step aside for Phillips, but the Senator presented a counter proposition that Phillips support him.

The result was nothing tangible.

Senator Davis has been busy over the governorship for many weeks, following conferences with William S. Vare in Florida.

The first choice of the junior senator was Superior Court Judge Arthur James. The second was Supreme Court Justice Maxey, and the third Senator Harris.

Both jurists on the appellate bench indicated a reluctance, Justice Maxey closing the door to anything out an actually unified party demand with a statement last week, reiterated here. There is no chance for unity in the primary, particularly after the recommendations of the Philadelphia committee.

The Republicans put forward by this committee are Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon Attorney General William A. Schnader, Henry P. Fletcher of Greencastle, former ambassador to Italy, and Judges Harry McDevitt and Robert E. Lamberton of Philadelphia and Marion D. Patterson of Blair county.

At the same time Senator David A. Reed rather than Governor Gifford Pinchot was suggested as a candidate for the United States Senate, which probably was the real purpose behind the naming of the committee.

In this end of the state the suggested sextet made no headway today, the committee's action really being resented. Mr. Schnader apparently sensed this, in a measure repudiating the committee by announcing he was submitting his candidacy to "the voters of the state."

Because Phillips was not indorsed Raymond Pitcairn and Randolph W. Childs, leaders in the anti-prohibition movement, resigned. Karl De Schweinitz a liberal, quit because Senator Reed was preferred to Governor Pinchot, and there were other charges that Pinchot men had been kept off the committee.

May Mean Grundy Has Leaning to Schnader

Exclusion from the list of the name of State Treasurer Charles A. Waters is interpreted as a preference by former Senator Joseph R. Grundy for Mr. Schnader.

Interest attached to the omission of the name of State Chairman Edward Martin. There are reports that the state chairman, quickly sensing that the committee plan was not going to be well received, saw to it that his name was not put out. Certainly he has sufficient influence with a majority of the committee to have secured a recommendation had he desired.

Senator Reed is understood to have approved the indorsement of Judge Patterson, though he would prefer to have as his running mate Justice Maxey. He does not wish a situation next November where Senator Harris will be a candidate with him, nor does he wish Gen Martin, because of geographical conditions.

There are evidences that the senior Senator's insistence upon a slate which will be to his advantage is causing some anger among organization Republicans, especially the Martin followers in this end of the state, who insist that as a party man the Senator has never established a right to dictate nominees to his preferment.

Just how badly the party is split is illustrated by the announcement of former Senator Horace Schantz, of Lehigh County, that he intends to run for Lieutenant Governor against Senator Harry B. Scott, of Center. Schantz is a regular of regulars. Republican County Chairman for 22 years, and bitter foe of Pinchot. To find him fighting Senator Scott, who has the same sentiment emphasizes just how little harmony exists.

POLICE HEADS DRAWN INTO INQUIRY

Mayor M'Nair Listens To Thirteenth Ward Delegation

Charges that an "unseen hand," working through police coercion, still governs the city payroll, have been made to Mayor McNair by a delegation of citizens from the Thirteenth Ward.

The names of Supt. of Police Ben R. Marshall and Police Capt. Walter Kaiser were mentioned by the protesting group who say the payroll of the ward has been forced to take tickets for a boxing show where the profits will go to line the Republican war chest.

Neaman, according to the Thirteenth Ward group, ordered city employes to be present at a recent meeting of the new Homewood-Brushton Athletic Association, attended by both Marshall and Kaiser, at which tickets were distributed for the boxing event to be sold to citizens of the ward.

STEINMETZ ACCUSED

Steinmetz, now president of the club, joined in the orders, it is charged. The club recently changed its name, having been known as the Homewood-Brushton Boosters' Club, and headed by J. Scott Morgan, Republican ward chairman.

A general denial was issued today by Edward A. Tappe, secretary of the athletic association, of the story told McNair by the Thirteenth Ward delegation.

The purpose of the visit to the Mayor, Tappe said, was to discredit Steinmetz. Neaman, according to Tappe, has nothing to do with the athletic association or with the boxing show, and Tappe claimed the association has no connection with the old Boosters' Club. Tappe averred today that city payrollers were not solicited to purchase tickets. Marshall and Kaiser, he said, were not asked to make an appeal to city workers.

Proceeds from the boxing show will not go to the Republican "war chest," but to sponsor a baseball team in the Homewood-Brushton district, he said.

After hearing the charges, Mayor McNair said:

"All that I can do is recommend that Steinmetz, who holds a federal job, be asked to resign as ward chairman just as I have asked ward chairmen on the city payroll to do. Nobody around City Hall is required to do any political work for me or anyone else."

Concerning Neaman, the Mayor said:

"If city employes are still scared of Harry Neaman, I can't go around to each one of them individually and tell them not to be."

SMITH PLANS PROBE

No evidence was forthcoming that either Marshall or Kaiser had attempted to force the distribution of tickets, and the Mayor said he thought the case reached no farther than Neaman.

Director Smith has said he will conduct an inquiry of his own.

In the protesting delegation were J. F. McGill, 1026 Monticello street; T. H. Brown, 7226 Hermitage street; Andrew Greco, 19 Wheeler street; William Renkey, 1 Mohler street; M. J. Dascenzo, 7411 Race street, and J. A. Hyland, 7049 Race street.

CITY ENGINEER FIGHTS OUSTER

Charges that Public Safety Director Ralph E. Smith's dismissal of Louis A. Schwartz, assistant building inspection engineer, was contrary to law, have been laid before Council by Attorney Benjamin L. Steinberg.

Schwartz made an average of 98.5 in his civil service examination, the protest asserted. Steinberg stated Schwartz took the examination within the required time after being provisionally appointed.

Schwartz has threatened to take Smith to court unless reinstated.

M'NAIR'S STAND DRAWS FIRE

Sell Hall, editor of the New Deal, speaking at a Negro political meeting in the Watt School last night, criticized Mayor McNair for his failure to attend the meeting after he had been invited, and charged that discrimination was being shown in the hiring of Negroes in various city departments. He said that five Negroes had been dropped from the city payroll since McNair took office.

The meeting was called by followers of George W. Strother, Negro candidate for the Legislature.

Officials Use Subtle Methods to Combat Radicalism

School children, ranging from 5-year-old tots to youths in their 'teens, are taken by Communists in Pittsburgh and vicinity and taught not to salute the American flag—not to repeat the Lord's prayer.

Gathered into white-washed cellars, even before they have fully learned to read and write, the children are drilled in "class war consciousness" and "revolution against capitalism."

The children are taught to despise Christmas trees because the trees and the Christmas spirit are by-products of capitalism, and are inventions of a capitalistic world to enslave the worker.

Youngsters are urged to sell small stamps for a penny each. When they have sold 150, they receive a Communist uniform of blue with red arm badges at the shoulders.

SEEK YOUNG MINDS

The earlier in the life they can obtain the children—mould their impressionable minds—the better pleased are these instructors.

Meetings are held in Hazelwood, Turtle Creek, Pitcairn, and 1524 Fifth avenue in the city.

In some cases children have been disciplined in school for failure to salute the flag, but the methods adopted by school officials in dealing with such cases have discouraged the practice.

The Pennsylvania school code provides that children must respect Old Glory. When a child refuses to salute the flag in Pittsburgh schools, the teacher or principal of the school talks to him and tells him to bring his mother or father to school to discuss the matter.

In every such case here the parents have appeared at the next session of school, and after "discussing" the matter have been convinced their child had been "misguided." If any record is made of the case at all, it is put down merely as "misguided action" on the part of the children.

NO 'MARTYRDOM'

School officials here realize that Communist instructors would like to elevate to heroism and near-martyrdom children disciplined for failing to salute the flag. If they adopted drastic methods of dealing with children, Communist instructors would shout more lustily than ever:

"The capitalists who control schools, churches, governments, newspapers—the capitalists have ordered the children disciplined because they know the Young Communists are 'enlightened.'"

Fortunately, however, officials of the Board of Education, principals and teachers in the Pittsburgh schools are aware of the dangers of Communism being spread among the children. They keep a careful watch, especially in districts where there have been outbreaks of agitation in the past.

In one school recently a principal found a 6-year-old girl distributing Communists' handbills to all the classrooms. She was ordered to return to each room visited and collect the handbills again.

Even the policemen on the school corners are on the alert for any evidences of Communism being spread among the children

MEETINGS WATCHED

Precautions are taken to prevent children from attending night meetings which Communistic groups hold in the schools.

The state school code provides that no permits for such meetings are to be issued to persons under 16 years, and any children attending adult meetings must be accompanied by their parents, declared Dr. Coit R. Hoechst, director of extension education, who issues the permits.

In each case, Supt. of Schools Ben Graham orders a member of his staff or the principal of the school, if a night school, to be present at the meeting and submit a written report.

An American flag must be displayed at these meetings.

By these tactics, permitting the Communists to "let off steam," school officials are able to keep in touch with the situation.

M'NAIR PASSES BUCK IN SMITH OUSTER PLAN

Move Afoot in Council To Impeach Safety Head, Mayor Says

Mayor McNair declared today that his reason for suggesting the transfer of Director of Public Safety Ralph E. Smith to the Traction Conference Board was that he had heard that there was a move to impeach Smith in Council.

The Mayor cited Section VII, Article XIV, of the city charter, providing for the impeachment of department heads. He referred particularly to a clause on mismanagement in official duties and said:

"Council might try to show that. I feared that Council would move to dismiss Smith by resolution. I've heard it from some of the councilmen."

WILL TAKE CARE OF HIM

Asked if he might appoint Smith to a magistrate's job, McNair replied ambiguously:

"I won't see Ralph Smith on the street."

The section of the charter cited by McNair provides that it case of impeachment a Common Pleas Court judge would have to sit at a regular hearing.

To remove a department head would require the affirmative votes of a majority of Council and approval of the Mayor. If the Mayor opposes the move, a two-thirds vote in Council would be required.

DENY OUSTER MOVE

However, one of the councilmen denied there was any move afoot to impeach Smith and said the idea of removing him from the Safety Department was McNair's baby.

The attitude of Council, he said, was that, if Smith must have another berth, a majority is ready to confirm his appointment as a magistrate to fill the vacancy left by the late Thomas D. Jones or to the place now held by W. Edgar Reed on the conference board.

A majority of Council is opposed to Charles A. Finley's removal as board chairman and McNair has already asked that group to approve Attorney William E. Schoyer to the Reed post—the only one Council will give the Mayor.

The next move, it is understood, is up to McNair—and McNair may or may not take it.

In the meantime, Smith remains the Safety Director.

READY WITH REJECTION

The Mayor's letter, appointing Smith and removing Finley, comes up for action in finance committee today.

An experienced engineer, Finley has served as chairman of the Traction Conference Board since it was started 10 years ago.

To remove him, under the Traction Conference Board rules, the Mayor must be supported by a majority vote in Council.

Mayor McNair last night declared he had full authority to do as he pleased with the Traction Conference Board. He said:

"I have a right to fire Finley and appoint anyone I want.

"If you'll show me anything on the record that Charles A. Finley has done but draw his pay, draw his breath and protect the traction company, I'll buy your lunch. Smith can do the same thing as well as Finley."

When his attention was called to the Traction Conference Board rule on dismissals he said:

"That doesn't apply. Magee put that in. He thought something like this would come up some time."

Should the Mayor succeed in switching Smith from his $8,000 job as Safety Director, the logical successor as Safety Director is believed to be Col. W. R. Dunlap, Supplies Director.

Dunlap's name has been frequently heard since the rift between Director Smith and Superintendent of Police Ben R. Marshall, climaxed when the Mayor swore Marshall back into service after he had been dismissed by Smith.

G. A. R. VET RECALLS CIVIL WAR ADVENTURES

Soldier to Mark 85th Birthday Next Week

The story of how he ran away from his home at the age of 15 to join the Union Army in the Civil War is being recalled by Lewis W. Mallasee, who will celebrate his eighty-fifth birthday anniversary next Saturday in Sherod Temple, Sheraden.

Lying about his age, Mallasee enlisted and hid in a box in a South Side recruiting station where his anxious mother found him and took him home. He also relates that he ran away twice again, and, finally gaining his parents' consent, fought in the Shenandoah Valley campaign and had the privilege of seeing Presidnet Lincoln.

Mallasee is still actively interested in community affairs, as well as being a member of various Masonic lodges and a director of Soldiers and Sailors' Memorial Hall. He expects to take up golf next year, according to one of his 17 grandchildren.

Recently, the veteran was elected honorary commander of Albert G. Baker Post No. 86, G. A. R., the organization which is giving the birthday celebration for Mallasee Saturday. Three hundred guests are expected to attend.

M'NAIR COTTAGE FETE FRIDAY

McCready Memorial will be dedicated at 3 p. m. Friday.

Theodore L. Moritz, secretary to His Honor, the Mayor, announced the plans today for recognition of that model cottage being built in back of the county jail.

There'll be a parade, headed by 40 CWA musicians, from the Pennsylvania Station. And at the cottage there'll be speeches by Father James R. Cox and Mr. Moritz, to say nothing of one by His Honor, the Mayor.

Moritz, asked whether the city payroll would be invited to march, said no, that would take the payrollers from their jobs.

The cottage won its popular name via Harrison McCready, the playboy, who, for approximately 15 minutes, was the Mayor's director of homemaking. City Solicitor Scully today said the cottage could stand on city property for 90 days.

Contractor Enters Race for Congress

Council Gets Proposal To Make Railways Pay

Payment by the Pittsburgh Railways Company of $250,000 down and $25,000 in quarterly installments was to be discussed today by Council as a condition of a two-year extension of the company's contract.

A cancellation clause and a pass for school children were also proposed yesterday by Councilman Walter R. Demmler.

Demmler's resolution was to approve the contract extension, provided:

That the railways company pay $250,000 it owes the city at once, and at least $25,000 quarterly until the expiration of the contract. The company's debt to the city is about $998,000.

That the city may cancel the agreement on three months' notice.

That 50-cent weekly street car passes be issued to school children, good from 8 a. m. Monday morning to 5 p. m. Friday.

That the company continue its willingness to study traction problems and that it make every effort to readjust its financial structure.

Demmler also introduced a resolution calling on the Traction Conference Board to make available all its data on the traction problem and to confer with Councilmen [illegible] whether it wishes to renew the agreement pending further discussion on fares and service.

HOSPITALS HERE TO BENEFIT BY RADIUM PACT

If Belgium is permitted to pay $10,000,000 of her war debt to the United States in radium from her rich Congo smelters, Pittsburgh's $56,000 quarter teaspoon may be considerably increased for the benefit of cancer patients.

The Hospital Association of Pennsylvania issued a statement today pointing out the benefits cancer sufferers would derive if Congress enacts Senator James J. Davis' bill to authorize the radium war debt payment by the Belgians.

Pittsburgh now has comparatively little radium available for cancer treatment, so rare and expensive is the element discovered by Mme. Curie, the Polish scientist, in 1898.

Neither the Children's Hospital nor the Braddock General Hospital has any supply of its own.

The Homeopathic Hospital has the largest individual amount, 131 milligrams valued at about $13,000.

Mercy Hospital has 125 milligrams, valued at $12,500, owned by three members of its staff. The Allegheny General, the Presbyterian, West Penn and St. John's General Hospital each possess 100 milligrams worth $10,000 each.

Last year a Chicago hospital acquired a teaspoonful of radium, worth $200,000.

U. S. INFLUENCE IN CUBA HIT

The American government is friendly to the regime of President Mendieta, of Cuba, because Mendieta is allied with dominant sugar interests, Walter Relis, American student and lecturer, told an audience in the Fifth Avenue High School last night. He characterized the administration as merely a new embodiment of American imperialism in the island.

Relis, who said he had been imprisoned in Cuba as a suspect opposing the Mendieta government, declared that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is chief stockholder in a Havana electric power company whose striking employes were forced to return to work under the muzzles of machine guns. He concluded:

"Seventy-five per cent of all Cuban industry is directly owned by American capital, and the remainder is at least partly under its control."

FRANCE STRONGLY FORTIFIED BUT STILL FEARS GERMANS

Wall Bars Attack By Land, But Not Peril From Air

Editor's Note: France has built a mighty wall to keep out the Germans but still she is afraid of the future. H. R. Knickerbocker writes in the thirty-second article of his series, "Will War Come."

France fears that the wall will not be able to keep out German bombing planes. France's new fortifications along the German border gives her security for years to come so far as land forces are concerned, the article says, but an attack from the air is another matter.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service.

STRASBOURG, March 20.—France is mortally afraid. France is calmly confident. This is the most curious paradox in the whole question "Will War Come in Europe?" The key to it may be found in this lovely old Alsatian city where the stuffed goose yields his liver and the vineyards yield their wine to help the French keep happy no matter how fast the German army grows.

France is afraid for tomorrow, not for today. She is afraid of the enemy in the air. She is not afraid of the enemy on land. Not at any rate for this year. Because France has a wall.

China built a wall to keep out her enemies. It kept them out for nearly a thousand years. Rome built a wall across the face of Europe and England to keep back the tribes of the North. It kept them back for centuries. France has built a wall to stave off the field-gray enemy from the North and East, and behind that wall France calculates that for this year, for next year perhaps, maybe for ten years, she is safe against land attack.

Army May Bivouac Far Under Ground

Leave airplanes out of account and the French great wall would seem to be enough to give this country calm confidence for much more than ten years. China's great wall was 2,550 miles long, 16 feet high, 17 feet thick. It was a wonder of the world. But the French great wall is more wondrous. It has taken five years to bring it near completion. It has cost to date around $133,000,000.

It is a wall that goes, not 16 feet high in the air, but at major points one hundred yards deep in the ground. Its main part stretches from the Swiss to the Belgian frontiers. Midway down in the steel and concrete bowels of the wall, the armies of France can bivouac. Deeper down beneath them lie stored enough explosives to rock the Alps.

Above ground woods and greasy knolls hide the outlets for the guns. From these innocent shrubs and trees can come at one command a barrage of fire that would literally leave not so much as a grasshopper alive on a belt ten miles deep. The wall is not continuous, but the guns can lay a flawless stream of flying steel from Luxembourg to Basel.

The French great wall, as far as military men can foresee, is impregnable against any form of attack or siege. It is as though heroic Verdun had been multiplied a thousand times and stretched along the border. But a modernized and perfected Verdun.

The forts are literally underground cities, so deep that no conceivable shell could penetrate them. They are mechanized to the last degree, they have their own electric power houses, interior railways, supplies of food to feed an army for months, and their own water supply from wells within the forts. To keep out gas the air pressure within the forts is raised above normal.

Strasbourg Key To Hope, Fear

Here in Strasbourg is a corner of the wall. Here is the key to the French fear and confidence. On the roads a troop of cavalry gallops by, the troopers in light blue coats pinned back to free their legs, with carbines strapped to their backs, and flat steel helmets. We drive slowly down the Rhine. There, within a short stone's throw is Germany. Her territory begins precisely in the middle of the river. Here on the French bank is a cylinder of concrete, 40 feet, perhaps, in diameter, bearing on its blunted roof a steel cupola, for machine guns. This link in the chain is not yet camouflaged. Workmen are still laboring on it.

The concrete cylinder is one of a continuous chain that stretches down the river bank like a row of giant fence posts. But these are mere skirmish stations. Back from the river the real fortifications begin. Some are completed, some half done, some just started. To see the completed ones you must drive within a hundred yards. Here and there a gentle mound rises a few feet above the level of the fields. A smudge of gray concrete beneath the grassy tops gives it away to an observer on the ground. From the air it would be invisible.

French poilus, marching infantry, swing past us. Around the incompleted works barracks are going up. At every turn signs warn: "Military territory, no trespassing."

Again on the river where a bridge leads into Germany, French soldiers stand beside two machine gun forts that menace the German approach. Across the river there are no forts. For fifty kilometers deep all the way down on her side of the Rhine Germany is forbidden to build a fortification, and no German soldier may enter the demilitarized zone without violating the treaty. French guns can reach far into Germany. Hermann Roechling, steel magnate of the Saar, sat in a Saarbrucken hotel and remarked to me:

"Remember that without moving up a gun, but shooting from away behind their lines, the French could blow this hotel off the map."

French Confidence Backed By Arms

All this is true. It explains why the French are still confident. It must be admitted that to a lay observer the sight of even the fringe of the French fortifications, plus the available knowledge of their total dimensions, plus the fact of the demilitarized zone on the German side, is so impressive that it is difficult to imagine how a German army, no matter how great, could break through.

But what do the French think of the effectiveness of their fortifications as a complete guarantee of safety? No better expert could be found to voice the opinion of the French professional soldier than Gen. Camille Walch, military governor of Strasbourg, and member of the supreme war council, highest military authority in France.

Gen. Walch received me at military headquarters, in civilian clothes. His associate, Gen. Paul Milliet, was also in mufti, and the young adjutant, too. Yet the two generals embodied the whole picture of the France of the war. Because Gen Walch looks remarkably like Marshal Joffre and Gen Milliet remarkably like Marshal Foch, it was like talking to the late great marshals, 20 years younger.

Gen. Walch said:

"Our fortifications are enough to make the enemy reflect before marching. Maybe that is enough. They are good enough to recommend a good deal of reflection.

"But I am not optimistic. For seven years I was with the inter-allied military control commission in Berlin. I know the Germans. And when I left Berlin I felt confident there would be no war. I was optimistic until just a short while ago. Today I am optimistic no longer.

German Air Fleet Worries General

"When I sum up the information we have as to the progress of German rearmament plus the well grounded suppositions and deductions we are compelled to draw, then I can no longer be optimistic. Our fortifications are excellent. They should be able to repel any land attack, but what can they do against air offensive? In my opinion the German bombing air fleet is already strong enough to be a most considerable factor."

I asked:

"And your flanks? Could an enemy go around your fortifications? Neutral military men have told me it would be impossible for the Germans to go through Switzerland."

Gen. Milliet exclaimed:

"But why? Why? No, it is perfectly feasible."

There is the answer to the French paradox: The very obvious fact that no wall can keep airplanes from flying over, and the chance that an army could go around the wall.

Nevertheless the French know at any rate today they are still safe. They know that no matter what air bombs may do, it takes the infantry to decide a war. The bayonet finishes the conflict. The men on foot are the ones who finally compel a nation to submit to the will of another. The French great wall is the principal reason why, with all their war-scare, the French people are not yet ready even to extend their period of military service from one year to 18 months. Yet they expect the worst.

Our Alsatian friend, French to the core, though he spoke perfect German, exclaimed:

"You know I get a headache from thinking about these problems. It is all we do here, think, think, think about the Germans. We know they are coming. They say the don't want Alsace-Lorraine back, but you won't find a human being in these two provinces that believes it. How can we stop them?

We were driving past a monument, put up by the Germans after their conquest of Alsace-Lorraine in 1870-'71. At the very moment that my friend asked:

"How can we stop them?"

As though by stage direction there appeared from a hole in a barnyard fence a tall white cock, the gallic cock of France. With a lift of his wings and a flying of his head he crowed so lustily, that a keen-eared listener might have heard it on the other side of the Rhine. He crowed with his bright little eyes gleaming at the German monument.

Tomorrow there will be no "planned war in Europe in 1934.

A DOLLAR WAVE is it worth a penny to save it?

DANDERINE insures your hair for a penny a day.

When you pay a dollar for a wave, Danderine will help you keep it. It isn't a sticky dressing, or an oily tonic, and it doesn't leave any telltale odor. Its fresh fragrance is gone quickly after applying, but not that marvelous effect of freshness and cleanliness!

When you've washed your hair, a little Danderine will keep it from going helter-skelter.

Use a dash of Danderine every day—every time you comb your hair—to be sure of your hair all day long! To know it's clean, and looks clean. To know it will stay as you arranged it. And to know that it's free from dandruff.

That's what moistening your comb with a few drops of Danderine will do. And what no amount of dry-combing will ever do. Nearly all hair needs the help that Danderine gives it. A dash of Danderine morning and night makes an amazing difference in the way any hair looks all the time! It doesn't affect the color.

With all the care you give your hair, it's a pity to omit this last touch that means so much. It's no trouble! Yet you can hardly believe anything so mild and pleasant as Danderine could bring such a change in the condition and appearance of your hair and scalp. Just try it. You can buy Danderine at any drugstore for only thirty-five cents; larger sizes, 60c and $1.00

CALLS U. S. LAND OF FINANCIAL IGNORAMUSES

America, land of "financial ignoramuses," is the way A. Lawren Brown, economic analyst, of Chicago, puts it.

During a brief visit to Pittsburgh yesterday Mr. Brown explained his stand, voicing what he terms an all time cure for depression ills — scientific money management through education. He said:

"We apply science to practically everything but money. We are still living in the financial dark ages. If people knew anything about handling money we never would have had this depression. Scientific money management would wipe out depressions forever."

TEACHING URGED

And the road to that Utopia? Education, says Mr. Brown.

He picked up a couple of pamphlets and declared.

"I know of only three schools in this country where children are taught management of money. These are used in money management course at Brookville, Mass. There, the child is taught how to use his money from kindergarten through high school."

He opened one of the pamphlets. It is used by fifth grade pupils for daily recording of their expenditures (including clothing) and savings. So complete is the record that keeping track of their finances and averaging percentages of actual expenditures against the amount orignally set aside compromises an integral part of their arithmetic course. Mr. Brown declared:

"This is the sensible kind of arithmetic for school use. Isn't it better than having children figure out the amount of paper on the wall or something like that? What could be more essential?"

EARNING AND USE

In this country alone, Mr. Brown estimated, there are 126,000,000 people who have been taught how to earn money, but none has been taught how to use it. He said:

"We keep on graduating financial ignoramuses every year. We put men in public office, dump millions into their laps and then howl because taxes are so high. But what more can we expect?"

The courses recommended by Mr. Brown extend through detailed study of all kinds of investments, including securities and insurance. The pupil is taught the intricacies and uses of each, and the relations of various investments as applied to particular uses.

Mr. Brown spoke at Carnegie Lecture Hall last night on the subject, "The Blind Spot of Science." He also made a brief radio appearance with the Globe-Trotter yesterday noon.

ZONERS UPHELD ON 'GAS' STAND

A three-judge bench in Common Pleas Court today sustained the Ross Township Zoning Board in granting a permit for erection of a gasoline station in Perry Highway near Ivory avenue.

An order handed down December 13 reversing the action of the zoning board was vacated by order of Judges Ambrose B. Reid, Harry H. Rowand and Ralph H. Smith.

The order of December 13 upheld an appeal of Drs. George Metzger and S. M. Stauffer from the zoning board's decision, but later the question was raised whether petitioners not residents of the township had the right to appeal.

In the decision today the court said a previous opinion had ruled that such an appeal is limited to residents of the municipality from whose ordinance an appeal is to be taken. Dr. Metzger and Dr. Stauffer own homes in the city of Pittsburgh just across Perry Highway from the site of the gasoline station which is in Ross Township.

Found! . . . the effective method for keeping husbands and wives from each other's throats during bridge games! Some brilliant soul must have gone through a lot at one time . . . for he has evolved a new bridge tally that is absolutely fool-proof for mixing up guests . . . keeping husbands and wives apart . . . and giving everyone a fair break in partners.

They're 30c the package of eight (two tables) and have the silliest, most amusing stick-figure drawings on the outside that we've ever chuckled over. White and colors.

Mary Mary, how do your gardenias grow? We'll lay wagers with you that they don't grow any finer than the ones we've found packed together in a box with a generous bottle of gardenia perfume . . . the whole costing 50c! Here's an Easter thought for yourself . . . or to give as a gift! Why, the gardenia alone would cost that much, maybe more!

Beadle, department president, the units of the Allegheny County American Legion Auxiliary will give a luncheon Wednesday, March 28, in the Hotel William Penn. Twentieth Century Club Hears Address on 'Georgian Poets'

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Alida Klemantaski (Mrs. Harold Monro) gave the Twentieth Century Club a delightful hour with "The Georgian Poets" yesterday morning. This young English woman who is said to know more about poetry than almost anyone else, certainly speaks with authority and reads with great poetic feeling.

She told a little about the Poetry Book Shop in London, which her husband founded in order to make people take more interest in poetry, and that poets might have a place to congregate and where readings might be given. Mr. Munro chose a charming old house in a neighborhood linked in various ways with William Morris, Burne-Jones, Dumas, Disraeli, Dickens and even Byron. And the shop was opened simultaneously with the publication of the first book of Georgian poetry. Indeed, the word Georgian in its relation to poetry was coined in the shop.

While reading poetry, one should think of oneself as the intermediary, the person necessary to the poet, for until it is read poetry can not be said to exist, Mrs. Munro said. The reader should try to understand what is being read and, in order to judge it, should also have a knowledge of what poets have done before; otherwise there is danger of thinking a Wilcox as good as a Browning, she observed.

Then to show that the two ages spoke with different voices, Mrs. Munro read (and beautifully) from Tennyson and Rupert Brooke and Swinburne. The twentieth century does not agonize; it gives you facts and lets you draw your own conclusions, she remarked. Of the 40 Georgian poets, Mrs. Munro read from several whom she considers the leaders, among them Brooke, W. H. Davis, D. H. Lawrence, Walter de la Mare, John Masefield, her own husband and several others. She gave several war poems, too, and two or three from modern writers to show how speech rhythm is stressed in the latter.

REVIVING THE PEASANT CRAFTS

Much embroidery in rich shades of wool and silk decorates this smock of flat crepe. Note the elegant shoulder fit despite the generous sleeve.

The saucy little flat beret is made of crocheted silk with a bowknot on top to make it perter.

The "pill box" toque is woolen, put together with bands of bright silk crochet.

Contrasting crepes make this one-piece frock interesting, and show off its heavy silk and wool embroideries.

Soft rabbit's wool makes this stunning long coat, good in white or black. The yoke, frogs, and deep cuffs are of heavy wool crochet. The tie-belt is a feminine touch.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

ALL OF THE Russian things that are smart to wear do not come to us by way of Hollywood, and there is a cordial interest in the lovely needle-worked garments that are distinctly survivals of peasant art and patience. Ever so many women who never had a garret complex in their lives have found out that the long, rough linen smock with its bride bands of cross stitch is a swell substitute for a house dress, and in the South many energetic women wear them over a linen skirt and not another stitch, during the dog days, loving the cool, absorbing qualities of this opaque costume which declines to cling to bodies already at the boiling point of humidity.

* * *

UP HERE, smocks are more formal. The model which hits somewhere about the knees is becoming in line to any but the shortest, stoutest figures, and it is a natural for making an afternoon costume out of an everyday skirt and coat. It is not necessary to make them "arty" by adding costume jewelry to them; unadorned they have all the color and swank of an ensemble which includes beads, earrings, corsage and bracelets.

* * *

THE COATS which designers in these peasant craft shops contrive are graceful, dramatic, useful garments. They envelope a frock—one's best or one's shabbiest — and guarantee a smart out-door appearance that is not a run of the pile. White coats, heavily frogged and encrusted with embroidery or crochet, white or colored, are the sort of models that look awfully well with spectator sports clothes of the dressier type. Dark coats embroidesed with dark designs make good town coats.

Shont coats with very giddy colors let into their seams and borders are comforing and effective with beach or tennis clothes, and they offer a nice accent to the strictly tailored appearance of most active sportswomen.

DOG PILLOW — PATTERN 671

This Dog is Easy to Embroider

Here is a lovely dog, with nice silky hair, to be embroidered in wool or a heavy silk. It is a companion to the cat pillow, pattern 633. Like the cat, the dog, too, is very easy to do as it is done in outline and single-stitch. Either a light or dark pillow would be effectively decorated with this dog, as he can be embroidered in light or dark wool.

Pattern 671 comes to you with a transfer pattern of the dog, complete directions for embroidering it and making the pillow.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Hope Chest

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married in a few months and I would like to know if the "boy friend" gives a hope chest or does the girl's mother give her a hope chest, and if they are given now-a-days to brides? When should they be given?

My mother thinks that the groom-to-be should give the hope chest. Y.

Your mother may give you your hope chest, or your fiance may make this his gift, or you yourself may buy your own chest . . . any of these is correct. Since your mother prefers that your groom-to-be should give you the hope chest, that settles it, provided that the groom-to-be "seconds" this decision by making the suggestion himself. If your fiance doesn't suggest this as his gift, don't make any point about it . . . just plan to buy your own chest.

Pepper, Toast, Bread

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—How would you eat a stuffed pepper? Do you just eat the stuffing and leave the pepper, or do you cut up the pepper with the stuffing and eat both? Do you eat stuffed tomatoes the same way?

2—In eating toast, do you cut it up piece by piece and eat it with a fork, or do you take the whole piece of toast in your hand and eat it that way? How would you eat plain bread? J.

1—If you like the pepper or the tomato, you eat them as well as the stuffing.

2—You don't cut toast or bread and you mustn't take the whole piece of toast or bread in your hand and eat it as one piece. The thing to do is to break off a mouthful or two from the slice, eat this piece, and then break off the next piece and eat that.

Girl Scouts Aid Safety Drive

In an effort to reduce the number of accidents in the home, Girl Scouts in 25 of the largest cities in the United States have been asked to co-operate with the National Safety Council in making a home safety survey during March.

Records will be kept of all children who fall down unguarded steps, daddies who hit thumbs instead of nails, and other members of the family who slip on waxed floors or bang their heads against doors which have been left half open in unlighted rooms. In a recent article in Safety Education, Paul Kearney writes that accidents which happen to people within their homes have increased 40 per cent in five years. They roll up bills for doctor's services, drug sundries, nursing care and lost time amounting to almost $1,000 a minute, according to Mr. Kearney.

Medical poisons and household disinfectants should never be left around openly, Mr. Kearney reminds his readers. The best precaution against accidental poisoning due to the confusion of bottles, is a double one, he says. All such harmful liquids should be put behind a wire screen, a hinged strip of wood, or some other obstacle, on a shelf on the medicine cabinet. This barrier will serve as a reminder that care must be taken in the use of anything from that shelf.

Any injury severe enough to require the services of a physician or to keep the injured person from his usual activities one half day or more, in the home of any Girl Scout participating in the survey, will be reported to her troop leader. Records will be kept by the leaders and a summary of their findings will be sent to national Girl Scout headquarters in New York City and to the National Safety Council, Inc., in Chicago, at the end of the month. These reports will be tabulated and analyzed in an effort to plan more effective safety activities for homes.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

The Junior League rooms are once more drawing crowds to an art exhibit—this time it includes Seventeenth and Eighteenth Century Italian works. Yesterday the League members attended the pre-view, arranged by the arts and interests committee of the organization, you know, and went into a "rave" over the paintings.

I saw Mrs. J. Henry O'Neil chatting with some of the guests. She was wearing a wood brown wool frock with a plastron effect in apple green embroidered material, extending in epaulets over the shoulders, with a band around the waist.

Crepe Combined With Black Satin in Gown

Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland chose black crepe combined with lustrous black satin and a black hat, and Genevieve Bell wore rose wool.

Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, Mrs. Moreland's mother, was among the pre-viewers, too. She wore dark blue with a soft bow of pale blue at the throat. Mrs. A. P. Woolfolk was in black and Mrs. Jack Bissell chose rust colored crepe for her costume.

I saw Mrs. Frederick Gwinner III, in green, and attractive Mrs. George L. Craig, Jr., in a sprigged black crepe with a small black crush turban. Dorothy Jarvis was wearing a knitted sports costume. A late arrival was Mrs. Henry Scott, Jr.

Fox Chapel Garden Club Exhibits at Institute

The conical tree, the mille fleurs, the formal round tree, the fruit and vegetable urns, the Easter lily motif, all familiar to lovers of Renaissance tapestries and paintings, are copied in the Fox Chapel Garden Club's special exhibit at the garden "show" being held this entire month in the Carnegie Institute galleries.

The Fox Chapel's special exhibit, arranged on the balcony of the galleries, continues today and tomorrow. And the formal beauty of the columns of the balcony are an ideal setting for the interesting decorations carried out by chairman Mrs. Charles L. Snowden, Jr., Mrs. A. P. Meyer, president of the Fox Chapel Garden Club, asked Mrs. Snowden to be chairman in place of Mrs. William Forman Bickel, who is in the south.

Wire frames are the foundations of the glistening formal trees, with huckleberry foilage used for the conical trees, and laurel for the round ones. The formal wreaths or fruit garlands are of rhododendrons with fruit as added interest. Glossy, colorful vegetables form the urns of vegetables copied from old paintings. And of course fruit is used for the fruit arrangements.

SPEAK UP, SISTERS!

Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance

By MARION BRUNOT

Ingratitude Is One of Man's Worst Qualities

You've bought him new clothes,
And have paid his way at the poolroom.
And after your furniture was sold over your head, you managed to rent and furnish one room. You work hard all the time, and he has nothing to do, and doesn't seem very anxious to get anything.

You're getting FED UP on such a life.

And no wonder, Mrs. Betty. Marriage is a give and take. It is tit for tat. Love, honor and obey is all right, so long as the love, honor and cherish is in working order.

It isn't any fun to be laboring from sun to sun, and away from your little room, and then to go to it after dark and begin laboring all over again. And into the bargain, no proper sympathy offered. No appreciative effort expended. You say:

Dear Miss Brunot:

I know you will laugh when you read what I have to say. Yet it is no laughing matter.

It will be three years in May since I got married. I am 21, and my husband is 35. He lost his job quite awhile ago, and we lost our furniture because it wasn't paid for. I am working now, but only get $5 a week.

I have managed to rent one room and have it furnished so-so. I stay often where I work, but then go home once in awhile, and when I do, my husband always has plenty of work for me to do, and always borrows at least a dollar from me for clothes and for the poolroom.

When I go to see him in this room I've gotten for him instead of getting any rest, he fights with me all the time. We don't have any children, and I am glad of that.

GETS LITTLE CONSIDERTION

He argues and argues and I never get to sleep until 1 or 2 o'clock, and that is hard on me, for I have to work very hard. He doesn't seem to have much ambition to get another job, and never cares how much he hurts my feelings.

If I suggest that we go out together to a cheap dance, so I can have a little fun, he raises the devil. He calls me a hypocrite and all that. A man like him thinks a woman can work all day and then begin all over for him in the evening, and it isn't very easy.

Do you think it wrong to stay away from him and go out with someone else?

I am getting fed up, that's certain. And I think of it all, morning, noon and night. Please help me, if you can.

MRS. BETTY.

If you think, Mrs. Betty, that I laugh at such difficulties as you have, you have me all wrong. To me, you are a very much troubled young woman, and need the very best help I can offer you. As I have already told my readers, it doesn't seem wise to leave a man because he is down and out. But in each one of the cases I have discussed, the man has been unemployed through no fault of his own. And he is putting his best effort into trying to get something to do.

A SELFISH MAN

Yours is a different case. No man should fight with his young and hard working wife for her to give him money to spend on games of chance. Your salary does not warrant any such expenditure, and you are right in objecting to it. The fact, you are paying rent for a roof over his head and also furnishing the room for him, should be enough to make your husband grateful.

Ingratitude in a man is one of the worst qualities he can have. It is a certain phase of dishonesty, as I see it. Your husband also is selfish and unkind, or he would try to make your visits home more pleasant. I do not like to tell you to leave him. But you and he must come to a better understanding, or a girl could not be expected to remain in such unhappy environment for the remainder of her life. You are too young for that.

Have a talk with him, and tell him very plainly he must look about for employment. Work is more plentiful, and the government is aiding just such men as your husband. I cannot advise you to go out with any other man while you are still this man's wife. Deception never is a good thing. It always leads to trouble.

I am very sorry for you, and when you have had this chat with your husband, write to me again, and let me know how things are going for you. Mrs. Betty, I want you to be ONE OF MY GIRLS.

Son's Love of Mother an Everlasting Bond, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

The wife who may resent a little her husband's devotion to his mother will better understand that love when her own son in his turn will remain as devoted to her.

In spite of all that may be written or said to belittle this tie between a mother and her child, it will remain an unchanging and everlasting bond which nothing on this earth can ever alter.

Money and influence have annulled marriages of which there were children, but all the money and influence in the world combined can never annul the blood ties. Denied, regretted, repudiated, or even forgotten, they must endure unto Eternity.

We honor mothers a little more than fathers, because God willed them the greater trust in bringing forth a human soul.

Madge Dashes Frantically to See Infant Daughter

For a few seconds after my father had told me that I never would have to see Lee Chow alone again, there was silence in the little study. I was fairly giddy with relief at his promise, but I also was filled with a cold little fear, which I could not help voicing when the seconds went by without further speech from him.

"But, father," I said tremulously, "is there not danger of his trying to injure the children, or Dicky, or you, when he realizes that I will not see him? Why, he might even have gone upstairs now!"

I made a frantic rush for the door, but my father caught my arm and stopped me.

"In the first place, Lee Chow is not upstairs," he said. "You're sure he is gone?"

GOES TO NURSERY

My father smiled patiently.

"Absolutely sure; but if you're not, there's one sure cure for fear. We'll go upstairs to the nursery and make certain that no dangerous plotter from either the Orient or the Occident is lurking in that vicinity. Come along!"

"I don't believe Katherine has gone to bed yet," I said, "and even if she has, I know she won't mind being wakened this once."

Indeed, Katherine was awake, and when she saw my face she put out her hand and grasped mine.

"What is it?" she asked, and my father spoke quickly for me.

"Something has upset Margaret—we can't explain just now—and she wants to be sure that the baby is all right."

She smiled at me comprehendingly, and threw open the door.

SAFE AND SOUND

"Come in and see," she said.

In her sitting room two temporary cots had been set up because of the crowd from the wedding being entertained in the house.

"These are waiting for Junior and Roderick when they come back from the drive," she said. Then she went on into the nursery where, when we tiptoed with infinite caution to the crib, we saw our baby princess "like a curled rose leaf," sweetly and soundly asleep.

"You see," she said. And I put out my hand and gripped hers thankfully, even as my glance strayed to the windows.

"Screens all locked and bars tightly fastened," she said, and I nodded.

"Do you mind keeping this door into the corridor locked until the boys come back—and then afterward?" I asked.

"Of course not," she said, characteristically exhibiting neither surprise at my request nor curiosity concerning my reason for it. "I'm not going to bed until Junior and Roderick come in, anyway. I have a letter that I ought to answer—I've been putting it off too long as it is—and tonight I'm going to get at it."

There was a queer little flush on her cheeks as she finished, and an odd fluttering of her eyelids: tiny signs both, but highly significant to me.

Katherine is so seldom flustered that I was sure this letter she had received was an especially important one, and I had not far to go for the answer to my mental query as to its author. Almost as surely as if I could read the signature to the letter, which now probably lay in her desk, I could see the name Hal Meredith.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Respect a Cold; It's a Real Menace to Health

"It is just a cold!" This is a common expression heard almost every day. I am sorry to say that too many fail to appreciate the importance of the cold. Every attack of this nature is serious enough to require care and medical attention.

Dr. Copeland

Neglect of this ailment may lead to such serious diseases as bronchitis, pneumonia or even tuberculosis. It is especially dangerous when it attacks the very young and the aged. Carelessness may lead to a protracted illness or something worse.

Many remedies are offered for the cure of this annoying affliction. Often the remedy has no real value and it may be more harmful than beneficial. Too many sufferers from this ailment seek medical advice only after serious damage has been produced.

I can think of no better practice in the beginning of a cold than complete rest. If every sufferer from the common cold resorted to rest in bed, adequate fresh air, warmth, nourishing foods and proper hygiene of the mouth and throat, the evil effects would be abated at once and dangerous complications avoided.

I fully realize that this form of treatment cannot always be followed. But it should be borne in mind that the victim of a cold must not subject himself to undue fatigue, exposure to cold and dampness, inadequate hours of rest and lack of nourishing food. Merely to accept the cold as an every day occurrence and to "carry on," is a foolhardy and dangerous practice.

Another menace of the common cold is that it is quickly spread from one individual to another. It is easy for one person in a household to pass on his cold to other members of the family. For this reason, it is imperative that every precaution be taken to prevent the spread of this disease. Bear in mind that you may be able to get rid of your cold readily, but other members of the family, especially children, may not be so fortunate.

With every cough and sneeze the face should be covered in order to prevent spreading the infection to others. Wash the hands frequently and discard all soiled handkerchiefs. The use of paper handkerchiefs is advised because they are easily disposed of and do not spread the germs found in the nasal discharges. Above all, if you have a cold, refrain from kissing the baby and other members of the family.

Respect a cold. Never accept it as a simple and harmless affliction. It is really a menace to your health and the health of your family. Avoid its dangers by observing the simple rules of hygiene.

Household Hints

If you rinse a pan with cold water before you use it to scald milk you will find the milk does not stick.

Dirty marks or oil stains are easily removed from wall paper by mixing together pipe-clay and sufficient cold water to make a creamy paste. Put a little of this mixture on the spot, let it remain there for about twelve hours, then remove with a brush or penknife.

Contract Bridge

How to Play
How to Win

By Josephine Culbertson

A Give-Away

Much has been written by my husband and me on the judicious use of the Penalty Double. A two-trick safety margin should almost invariably be reserved, not only to insure that the possible gain will offset any conceivable loss through a Redouble, but in addition to preserve a setting trick in case the Double itself should enable the Declarer to save one trick in the play.

On the hand below, which occurred in a recent Duplicate game, the East player made a very unwise Double which enabled the Declarer to fulfill his contract, which he could not possibly have done without this Double.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ Q 8 6 4 3 ♡ J 10 5 2 ◇ J 9 ♣ A J
♠ 5 ♡ K 9 ◇ 10 4 3 2 ♣ K 10 9 7 5 4	North West East South	♠ K 10 7 2 ♡ 7 6 4 3 ◇ A ♣ 8 6 3 2
	♠ A J 9 ♡ A Q 8 ◇ K Q 8 7 6 5 ♣ Q

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	2 ♣	2 ♠ (1)	3 ♣
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Double (2)
Redouble (3)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A doubtful free bid by North, particularly with the slightly shaded spade suit, and since he is unable to run to partner's suit if doubled.

2—A most unwise Double, despite partner's Overcall. The bad division of the spade suit is completely given away by this Double, and from the bidding East should expect to find one or two spade honors in the South hand.

3—The South player must, of course redouble, not realizing the weakness of his partner's free bid of two spades.

East made the unwise Opening of the diamond Ace. However, careful analysis shows that no possible Opening or subsequent defense by East and West can defeat the contract against perfect play by the Declarer. After the Ace of diamonds won, East shifted to a low club, and when Dummy's Queen was covered by West's King, the Declarer won with the Ace. A low spade was now led, and the nine finessed. Declarer, in an effort to return to his own hand, now very brilliantly played the heart Queen from Dummy. West was forced to win this trick, as his King would drop on the second round if he stayed off, and now no return would prevent the Declarer from making all but one of the remaining tricks. West actually returned another club, hoping his partner held the Knave and that Dummy would thereby be shortened. The Declarer won this trick with the Knave of clubs in his own hand and finessed the spade again, and then laid down the Ace. He now ran his good tricks, conceding to the East player the spade King at any time he wished to take it. The contract was fulfilled for a top-score on the board.

To Employees of the Automobile Industry:

This is what is happening:

The American Federation of Labor and other outside unions are trying to force you to join their union and to pay dues to support professional labor leaders.

They are trying to destroy the present satisfactory arrangement between you and the management under which your right to collective bargaining is fully recognized.

These employee representation plans—which the labor leaders call Company Unions—have been set up by more than 80 per cent of the employees themselves. They are working satisfactorily. Any one of you can see his supervisory officer at any reasonable time and settle any questions that may arise. Most of the questions that have come up have been peacefully settled.

No one has to join any union. Your employment does not depend on your membership or non-membership in any organization. It depends on merit alone.

The outside labor leaders are trying by force, by coercion, by intimidation of you and your families and threat of strike to make you join their union. Regardless of what you want, these labor leaders want the right to speak for all of you. They want dues—paying members.

But the NIRA does not say that the American Federation of Labor or any other union shall speak for you.

It is up to each one of you to decide for yourself whether these outside unions can secure any right that you cannot secure for yourself. It is up to you to say whether you want to surrender to professional labor leaders your own right to deal with the management of your companies.

To get what they want, regardless of what you want, the American Federation of Labor is using its usual weapons, namely a threat to call a strike.

Sunday's newspapers quoted William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, as saying: "The question as to whether a strike in the automobile industry involving more than 100,000 workers shall or shall not occur on Wednesday morning, March 21, rests with the automobile manufacturers. Their decision will decide the question. The cause of the strike is directly traceable to the attempt of the automobile manufacturers to impose company unions upon their workers and to force them to accept."

That is not the issue.

You know that the companies have not coerced you into employee representation plans.

You well know that you have taken part voluntarily in setting up employee representation plans.

You know, too, that hours have been shortened voluntarily to an annual average of 36 hours per week; that wage rates have been increased more than 30 per cent within the past year, and in many cases are higher than they were in 1929 at the peak of prosperity, and that twice as many men are at work today as during the depression:

There is only one fundamental issue here, namely:

Whether the automobile industry is to be run by the American Federation of Labor or any other outside union;

Whether you have to get a union card in order to work in these plants;

Whether your job and your advancement in the industry will be based on merit;

Whether the employee representative shall be ousted in favor of outside labor leaders who have interests to serve other than your interests.

If the strike comes, it won't be because you want to strike.

The strike threat comes from the American Federation of Labor and not from the automobile workers.

Let there be no misunderstanding as to the companies' attitude toward the automobile representation plans.

The automobile manufacturers intend to abide by the employee representation plans as they may be modified from time to time by the employees themselves.

And bear this in mind, the automobile industry is unquestionably leading the way back to prosperity. People are buying more automobiles than they have been for years.

This increased demand means more jobs at good wages—not only in the automobile industry, but in thousands of other industries supplying materials and parts to the automobile manufacturers.

A strike at this time will not only work hardship on you and your families, but will interfere with the recovery efforts of the President of the United States.

The automobile industry has reached its present state of high efficiency, low cost, with the consequent wide demand for its products, high wages and plentiful jobs without the help of the American Federation of Labor and without any serious labor trouble.

Unasked and unwanted, the American Federation of Labor is now trying to get control of this industry and destroy what we have taken years to build.

This industry does not intend to yield to such un-American and unpatriotic procedure.

SOUTH HIGH MEETS SOMERSET IN P. I. A. A. GAME

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Etten Good Future Bet.
May Shift to First Base.
Forkum Two-College Ace.
Rixey Quits Near Record.
Joliat Still Ice Leader.
Advance of Swimming.

Among the Pirate rookies probably too young and inexperienced to make the major league grade this year, but offering a wealth of promise for the future, is Nick Etten, who was purchased from the Davenport club, of the Mississippi Valley League, over the opposition of several rival bidders. The latter includes the Boston Braves, and Bill McKechnie said he felt he had lost a rare prospect when Pittsburgh grabbed the youngster. Joe Devine, a scout with few equals at spotting good ones in the rough, also tried to buy Etten from Davenport, but found the price too steep.

Nick Etten

Etten batted .357 in 114 games for Davenport last year. Only two men finished ahead of him, and neither of them played in as many games. Nick scored 104 runs, knocked in 90 tallies, and made 162 hits, including 35 doubles, four tripples and 14 home runs. He did not get a chance to play after joining the Bucs last September, but in camp this spring he has more than lived up to his advance notices. A left-hand swinger, Etten is a natural hitter and a long driver. He makes no fuss at the plate, slams all kinds of pitching, and probably could hit well above .300 right now in minor league company as high as Class A, the grade to which he probably will be sent if farmed out.

Etten, only 18, has something to learn about baserunning, and needs polish otherwise, but he has shown enough natural ability to convince camp observers that with a little more experience he will make his mark in the majors. However, those observers consider a change of position advisable. Nick is listed as an outfielder, but first base appears to be his proper place, and a shift to the latter post probably will be recommended when the recruit is sent out for seasoning.

FORKUM GRID STAR IN HURDLING DAYS

Carl Forkum, of Donora, who died here yesterday at the age of 51, was one of the outstanding college athletes of this part of the country three decades ago. He was particularly prominent in football, and ranked with the greatest fullbacks of his time. One of his most effective methods of advancing the ball was to hurdle the line, a play legal in those days and not ruled out until 1906.

After graduating from New Castle High School, Forkum began his college career at W. & J. in 1901, playing under Coaches Knight and Seaman and Capt. John Aiken on a team that held the Carlisle Indians to a scoreless tie and gave the Homestead professional stars a great battle until late in the game, when the pros won out, 12 to 0. The Wash-Jeff roster of that year included such other memorable names as Schrontz, McFarland, Hammer, Lang, Hayes, Reed, Montgomery, Sutter, Heimberger, Murphy, Seaman and Craig. Forkum later transferred to Penn State and starred for the Blue and White through to the end of the 1904 season.

RIXEY QUITS ON BRINK OF RECORD

Eppa Rixey, who retired from baseball rather than accept the terms offered by the Cincinnati club for 1934, might have hung on for at least part of the coming season if he had known he was within a few steps of establishing an all-time National League record for pitching service. As it was, the veteran southpaw's withdrawal left Grover Cleveland Alexander still in possession of a mark that almost slipped away from the latter. With a total of 696 to his credit, Alexander holds the record for greatest number of games ever pitched by one man in the National League. Rixey pitched a total of 692, only four games short of Alexander's figures, and if Eppa had remained in harness for only five more games he could have retired with a record in his keeping.

Eppa Rixey

Alexander pitched 20 years in the big show, and Rixey 21. The American League record is 106 games higher, as in his 21 years with the Senators, Walter Johnson worked in a total of 802 championship contests. For general major league service, combining work done in both circuits, old Cy Young tops them all. In his 22 campaigns, Young pitched a grand total of 873 games, 483 being hurled in the National and 390 in the American.

JOLIAT BEST STICK-HANDLER IN HOCKEY

Aurel Joliat, star wing of Les Canadiens, and well remembered by Pittsburgh fans for his brilliant exhibitions at Duquesne Garden in this city's major league ice days, is still rated the best stick-handler in hockey. The consensus of a vote by the writers around the National League circuit declares Joliat to be the greatest stick-handler in the league, Charley Conacher the hardest shot, Howie Morenz the fastest skater, Eddie Shore the best box-office attraction, and Toronto's kid line the leading forward combination.

The rating given to Joliat is strongly supported by Andy Aitkenhead, New York Ranger goalie, who says Joliat is the only player he ever worries about, the smartest stick-handler he ever saw, always in position and able to thread a needle with the puck. Aitkenhead declares that Charley Conacher and Harvey Jackson, Toronto's ace marksmen, hold no terrors for him; that Conacher telegraphs his shots; that it's easy to outguess Jackson, and that Joliat would be leading the league in goals if he had as many scoring chances as those two rivals and could skate a bit faster.

SWIMMING FEATS PASSED UP LIGHTLY

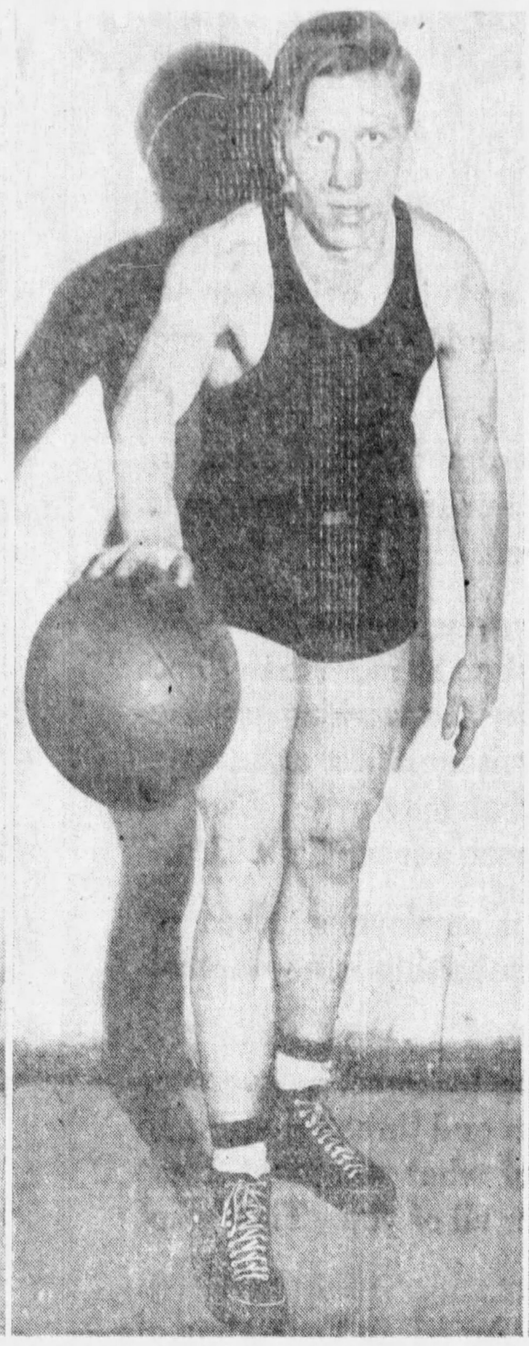
Swimming has made such remarkable advances in recent years that feats once considered almost impossible now cause little commotion. New records are taken lightly, as a matter of course, something to be expected. They're hardly safe over night. For 36 years, 1875 to 1911, Capt. Matthew Stanley Webb was officially listed as the only swimmer ever to cross the English Channel, though Capt. Paul Boynton claimed to have accomplished it in the same year, 1875. In the next 19 years after 1911, no fewer than 17 persons swam the channel, including seven women, and Webb's time of 22 hours and 45 minutes was cut way down to 10 hours and 43 minutes by V. Spacek in 1927.

Johnny Weissmuller

Only recently, one of the greatest of all world records was smashed. It was Johnny Weissmuller's 10-year mark of 57.4 seconds for 100 meters. Johnny established that in 1924, and it was well under his own Olympic record of 58¾ seconds, hung up at Amsterdam in 1928. Weissmuller's world figures went the way of many others when Peter Fick, of the New York A. C., was clocked in 56.8 seconds. It was one of the greatest swimming achievements of all time, yet it was passed up without any evident excitement. Soon they'll be asking, "Who was Weissmuller?"

South High School Stars Who Battle Somerset in Game Here Tonight

EDDIE MILKOVICH, ONLY NEWCOMER IN '34 LINEUP



CHARLEY MISKEVICS, G., BACK FROM LAST YEAR

JOE GALISZEWSKI, MILKOVICH'S RUNNING MATE AT FORWARD POSITION

Only one player who was not on the 1933 team will be in the South High School lineup which goes on the floor in the Pitt Stadium pavilion tonight against Somerset High School, champion of District V, in the P. I. A. A. eliminations for the state scholastic basketball championship. Milkovich, at forward, takes the place of Bill Jesko, now a member of the Pitt freshmen. Winner of tonight's game will meet the survivor in Johnstown-Huntingdon playoff next Friday night for right to enter the Western Regional final next Tuesday. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

PIRATES, CUBS OPEN SERIES ON COAST

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—Cy Blanton, the most impressive of the new crop of Pirate rookies, will face the biggest test of his young life this afternoon when the Western League sharpshooter steps to the slab at Wrigley Field in an attempt to throw back the pretentious Cubs of Chicago.

The impending contest of the Buccos and Bruins is the first of a four-game series that will run through Friday. Manager Gibson and his aides have quite a crush on the sorrel-top from St. Joe and they will be disappointed if Cy doesn't make a good showing against the Cubs, despite the fact that Lefty Grimm's team has been going great guns on the coast.

Blanton is a well-built right-hander who averaged something like 10 strikeouts per game last season as he reeled off 21 victories. The showing of the lad during the stay at Paso Robles led more than one veteran to conclude that he has a good chance to win a pitching berth.

After Blanton does his stunt, he will be replaced by Ralph Birkofer, powerhouse southpaw, who seems to have won a job on the uncertain slab staff. The two youngsters have their work cut out for them if they are to hold the vaunted attack of the Bears.

Pat Malone and Guy Bush may flip the ball for Manager Grimm.

The Pirates went through a two-hour practice drill at Wrigley Field yesterday. The day was perfect.

Well pleased with the progress the Pirates have made at Paso Robles in past years, William E. Benswager, president of the club, announced today the Bucs would continue to train there.

CHILLYSAUCE

Leo Hartnett, the Cubs' great catcher for the past 10 years, was in charge of a practice session involving the Cubs' regular pitchers as the main body of the club went to Ventura for exhibition purposes yesterday. Leo and Pat Malone are almost as big as Primo Carnera, but the two ran off plenty of pounds in the warm drill. The two Bruins share the opinion of this writer to the effect that the Cubs and Pirates have an excellent chance to pull the Giants off their perch.

Despite a broken finger, Hartnett has the same ginger he displayed when he was working for a berth on the Bears. Gabby says he feels just as lively as ever and his actions indicate as much. The Chicago directors didn't think Malone was so hot last season, so Altoona Pat is out to show them something in the coming campaign. Pat says his club has landed a great prospect in Infielder Augie Galan, of the San Francisco Seals. Galan is leading off as he starts for the big league entry. He is stationed at third, but he also can do a fine job at second.

Larry French entertained a flock of Pirates at his new home at Brentwood Park, overlooking Santa Monica and the Pacific Ocean. French has many of the famous movie actors for neighbors, but he mingles with only a few who can play a good game of tennis or golf. Larry is 20 pounds lighter than he was a year ago. His mansion sits on an acre of ground and he has worked as a gardener all winter.

Johnny Harris, the Pittsburgh theatrical impressario, worked out with the Pirates yesterday and reduced his girth three or four degrees to 40 inches. John came to the park in company with Regis Toomey, former Pitt student, who has made a big reputation in pictures. Toomey is such a warm supporter of the Panther teams he almost passed out in two debacles here. And now he is worrying lest Howard Jones' stars wreck the Pitt team next fall at the Stadium in Pittsburgh.

By JULIUS LEVIN

Champions having been crowned in 10 of the 12 districts involved in the fight for the state scholastic basketball crown, eliminations in the P. I. A. A. competition as well as playoffs for the laurels in the two remaining districts, get under way tonight.

South High School, City League champion and District VIII representative for the second straight year, opposes Somerset High School, champion of District V, in a first-round game in the Pitt Stadium pavilion tonight; Bradford, champion of District IX, clashes with Erie East, champion of District X, at Warren, Pa., while Luzerne, champion of District II, engages Coal Township, champion of District IV, at Kingston.

While the six district champions are battling to hurdle the first barrier in the drive for the state toga, titleholders will be crowned in the two remaining districts when Johnstown and Huntingdon tangle at Altoona for the right to represent District VI, and Lititz and Reading come together at Lancaster for the District III laurels.

KEN HIGH GETS BYE

New Kensington, crowned champion of the W. P. I. A. L. and District VII representative, has drawn a bye in the first round and will meet the winner of the Erie East-Bradford game in the Pitt Stadium pavilion Friday night. The victor in this contest qualifies to play the survivor of the South-Somerset-Johnstown-Huntingdon eliminations for the Western Regional championship on Tuesday, March 27. The South-Somerset victor clashes with the Johnstown-Huntingdon winner Friday night, the place of the contest depending on which two teams win tonight.

Admitted to be a better balanced quintet than that which was eliminated in the Western Regional final by Altoona High School at State College, Pa., last year, the South High passers are hopeful of carrying off the state championship this season. With the lineup of 1933 virtually intact, Bill Jesko, star forward, being the only absentee among the regulars, the Orioles are confident they stand a good chance to win the P. I. A. A. championship.

VETERAN LINEUP

Eddie Milkovich, who was intrusted with the task of filling the shoes of Jesko at forward, has come through nobly and has played a prominent role in bringing the Orioles into the state eliminations. Eddie Spotovich, hailed as the greatest center in Western Pennsylvania scholastic circles, is playing better basketball than ever, while Eddie (Slip) Czlapinski, veteran guard, has been a tower of strength to the Orioles.

Fights between southpaws must be like oysters—once in a while you find one with a pearl inside it. The rest of the time they're just oysters.

They trotted out one full of pearls—or is it "poils" in this business?—at Motor Square Garden last night, when Freddie Miller, of Cincinnati, the N. B. A. featherweight champion, and Mose Butch, of Oakland, wrongsided it through 10 of the most interesting rounds put on here all season, with the fans up yelling their heads off at the action in the last four rounds. It made up for all of the sins all of the other lefthanders ever have perpetrated around here, and maybe we owe the lefthanders an apology for being so facetious about them yesterday. But, on second thought, no; one of their tribe almost stabbed us with a fork once while eating.

MOSE STIRS FANS

This fight was so good that Miller won eight of the 10 rounds and just missed getting knocked out twice. Of course, he won the decision with such a big margin in his favor, but at the same time Butch had the satisfaction of leaving the ring with the knowledge that he had made himself solid once more with his constituents and may even get a return battle with Miller as a result of his fine showing.

For six rounds it was all Miller. He hit Mose when and where and as hard as he pleased with either fist, but couldn't keep Mose from charging in at him and taking it like a soldier. Miller was class all over. Taller and rangier than Butch, he was as cool as the box office report of the only fair-sized crowd, and easily dominated the situation. He started right off by showing our Mose a lot of tricks about fighting inside, tying him up with his right hand and uppercutting and ripping away to head and body with his left. And every once in a while he would tear in, blazing away with both fists. He was that rare combination of boxer and fighter and chance-taker and puncher which gladdens the heart of the fellow who pays more than the tax to get into the building.

BIG LEAD FOR FREDDIE

So it was throughout the first four rounds, and Mose was woebegone and bleeding from the mouth as he dragged himself wearily to his corner at the end of that time. In fact, Butch did not get home a really telling punch until just before the end of the fifth round, when they traded lefts to the body and Mose's sank in solidly and brought up the champion in his tracks.

The sixth saw Miller continue to win as he pleased, and also the seventh until just before the bell, when Mose clipped him with a left to the head and hurt him. Another left and Miller was grabbing for a clinch and the crowd was in a frenzy at the sudden turning of the tide. Mose moved about and stabbed three times to the face thout a return and then got in with another left at the bell, which came as good news for Miller, who appeared to be badly shaken.

CHAMP DAZED, EYE CUT

Freddie had not fully recovered when they toed the scratch for the eighth round and Mose nailed him with another solid left to the head. Freddie tried to box his way out of it, but ran into another hard left and again appeared to be in serious trouble. His entire facial expression was changed and his eyes had a glassy stare. They traded punches and Mose's followers became frantic with joy as a cut was opened on Miller's left eye and the blood began to trickle down.

Freddie managed to weather the storm and shortly got the range again, and at the end of the round he was in better shape than Mose, who had fought himself out in a vain attempt to score a knockout, and was sagging against the ropes and in clinches.

That was the last of Mose's victory try. He kept plugging away in the last two rounds, but Miller was Miller again, and he easily both outboxed and outhit Mose to carry the last two rounds. The only ones he lost were the seventh and eighth, but they gave the crowd the thrill of seeing the underdog come from behind and have a chance.

The decision was unanimous for Miller, who will be welcomed back any time by the fans. He is no safety-first champion, but a fighting one. He weighed in at 127 pounds at 3 p. m. yesterday, while Butch was three-quarters of a pound heavier. The title was not at stake.

In his corner at the finish, Mil-

Loss of Putting Touch Worries Bobby Jones

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 20.—(AP.)—The putting stroke that made him the most feared golfer in the world has Bobby Jones worried on the eve of his return to competition.

Thursday he re-enters tournament play in the masters' invitation event here, and today, after almost a week of practice over the Augusta National Golf Club course, he is frankly apprehensive about his putting.

PRO NET STARS TO PLAY HERE APRIL 7

Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa, of France, are to oppose Vincent Richards and Bruce Barnes, United States standard bearers, in professional tennis exhibition matches here Saturday night, April 7. All are members of Bill Tilden's barnstorming troupe, which has been packing 'em in from New York to 'Frisco and from Canada to Dixie during recent months.

The matches are to be staged at the Bryn Mawr Auditorium, 6241 Auburn street, East End, and will find Cochet, former amateur king and Davis Cup ace, pitted against Richards, an internationalist in his own right, and Plaa competing against Barnes.

PRO TOUR COMPLETED

BALTIMORE, March 20.—(AP.)—The touring American-French tennis quartet came to the parting of ways today after bringing to a close here a tour which carried them to 10 principal cities of the east and middle west.

The American pair, William T. Tilden, II, and Ellsworth Vines, will take on the recent entries to the professional ranks, Keith Gledhill and Dr. Arthur Chapin for a new tour of the east and south. They will open their play in New Haven, Conn., tomorrow and journey to Trenton, N. J., on Friday and Atlantic City on Sunday.

The French combination of the recent tour, Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa, will be joined by Vincent Richards, former professional champion, and Bruce Barnes for an itinerary through the south and middle west after opening next Sunday in the Bronx.

The Americans won the Baltimore series, styled after the Davis Cup play, 3 to 2. Vines lost the only singles match, dropping a slugging affair last night to Plaa, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4, while Tilden, playing spectacularly although tiring fast, defeated Cochet, 6-4, 4-6, 8-6, 3-6, 6-3. The French pair won the doubles Sunday but lost both singles.

The Smith Club won the championship of the Beechview Community Basketball League by defeating the Welch Club, 34-30, in the concluding game of the league season at the Beechwood School last night.

News From Baseball Training Camps

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia Athletics meet the Brooklyn Dodgers today with hopes of being better hosts than with the St. Louis Cardinals, who got a 4-to-2 lead, put a couple of men on bases in the fourth and were sent scurrying by a tropical downpour. Pitcher Bob Kline, with the cast off his broken arm, is finding that it is stiff but otherwise all right.

NEW ORLEANS.—A cold wave which caused the Cleveland Indians to miss a workout, the first lost because of the weather in two weeks, causes Manager Walter Johnson no regrets. The "Big Train" decided a day of rest would do his men good, since they face six exhibition games in the five days beginning tomorrow.

TAMPA, Fla.—A team of Cincinnati Reds recruits, headed by Bobby Wallace, scout, will pull out of the training camp here Thursday and head north for a series of exhibition games. Their first contest will be with Minneapolis at Montgomery, Ala., on Friday. Pitcher Gene Schott and Catcher Jack Crouch departed last night with Manager Ike Boone of the Toronto club of the International Legue.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The American League ball is supposed to be just as it was a year ago, but Babe Ruth insists it's livelier. He said:
"Boy, when you hit that new ball it sure takes a ride."
Another New York Yankee slugger, Lou Gehrig, thinks it's just because the Babe is connecting solidly.

ORLANDO, Fla.—They've got a new manager and some new players, but the Brooklyn Dodgers seem to be the same old "Daffiness Boys." They helped contribute to their own defeat by the Giants yesterday by goofy base running. Twice they pulled the old Brooklyn stunt of getting two men on the same base, much to their own discomfiture.

PASADENA, Cal.—With Jack Hayes ready to resume activity at second base, Manager Lew Fonseca expects his Chicago White Sox to look a lot better than they did in their three recent exhibition tilts. Red Kress has been working at second since Hayes came down with a lame arm, and his fielding left much to be desired.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—If the New York Giants haven't looked like world champions so far perhaps it's because they're not getting first-rate catching. Gus Mancuso, recovering from typhoid fever, is in camp, but is 20 pounds underweight and won't be able to do any real work until the first of the month. He insists he'll be ready, though, when the season opens.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—The Phillies are off to Bradentown today, looking for that run in their "Grapefruit League" series. Having been blanked in two games with major league opponents and prevented from playing the Columbus Red Birds yesterday by rain, they tackle the St. Louis Cardinals today.

BILOXI, Miss.—There is considerable strife in the Washington Senators training camp, but all the trouble is about volley ball and not the business for which the players were hired. Rivalry between the teams headed by Pitchers Walter Stewart and Al Crowder is so keen that both captains are asking waivers on some of their men and seeking to lure stars from the opposite camp. The trouble will be over by tomorrow, however, when baseball games start between the Yanigans and Regulars.

LAKELAND, Fla.—The Detroit Tigers are due for some of the hardest practice sessions of the spring training grind this week, with games scheduled with the House of David team and the Athletics. After Sunday's unsuccessful start against the Boston Red Sox, Manager Cochrane decided to teach them a few tricks about trapping runners between bases, a chronic weakness with Tiger teams.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The Boston Braves meet the Yanks again today and the Tribesmen say they mean business this time. Three times they've bowed to Yankee pitching and they don't like the after effects. Frank Hogan is plain mad. He vows he'll get even today.

EX-DUKES WIN AT LATROBE

LATROBE, Pa., March 20.—Led by Art Feldman and Jim MacDougall, the Duquesne University seniors defeated the House of David passers here last night in a closely contested game, 37 to 32.

Feldman scored 10 points for the Ex-Dukes, with Campbell, of the House of David, getting 14. The lineup:

FRENCH, U. S. NETTERS CLASH

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP.)—After a lapse of two years, France and the United States resume their international indoor tennis team rivalry in the Seventh Regiment Armory tonight when two of a series of five matches will be played.

The United States leads in the series, 2 to 1, and France's hopes of evening the score have been placed in the veteran Jean Borotra, Christian Boussus and the youthful Andre Merlin, reigning indoor champion of his country.

Lester R. Stoefen, Los Angeles' blond giant and winner of the 1934 indoor championship, as No. 1 man of the American side, will play in three of the five matches. He will engage Merlin in one of the two singles matches tonight, while Gregory S. Mangin and Boussus are meeting in the other. LOCAL SANDLOT LEAGUES CARD CONFABS

By TOM BIRKS

Still in the throes of organization work, local sandlot managers are faced with four meetings of major importance this week. The conclusion of these particular confabs should decide just where the leading teams of the district are going to display their wares this season.

Tonight Al Underwood will seek to complete the roster of the Allegheny County League in Wilkinsburg. This league completed a successful campaign last year. Five of the 1933 teams will be back, New Kensington, Merchants, Iroquois, Turtle Creek, Parmelee and Homestead already being in line. The South Hills League holds its final meeting tonight at the league headquarters.

There is some talk of Iroquois changing its name to the Lawrence club. This will be decided at the meeting tonight. Swissvale will not return, the 1933 sponsor having already turned over the uniforms to the American Legion nine.

The new teams expected at the meeting include the Hillman club, Fineview, Krogers, Tarentum, Pittsburgh Plate and possibly Mellon-Stuart.

Tomorrow night the City League will have its third get-together at the Hotel Henry. President Sweeney will make an effort to close the circuit at this meeting. Just as many fans were figuring that the league would have to operate without a team on the North Side, comes the word that Art Rooney and Harp Vaughn are considering placing a club in the circuit.

On Thursday night, at the Hotel Henry, the Pittsburgh Independent League is to meet. Despite rumors that many of the clubs listed as members of the new organization are attending other meetings, President Rankin insists that the loop will have eight teams on the roster.

The Steel City League was organized last night with seven clubs in the fold. They are Lucas A. C., Hazelwood Independents, Rex Club, North Side Lafayettes, Lou Nieszers, Fair Oaks and Millvale Merchants.

SANDLOT NOTES

East End sandlot baseball gossip has it that Chippy Di Stout is going to be playing manager of the newly formed Krogers. The team will play at the Homewood Field, and enter one of the leading leagues.

Art Rooney's sojourn in St. Francis Hospital is holding up the forming of the North Siders club. The well-known sportsman underwent a minor operation and should be home by the end of the week.

Steve Cox, who left last night with the local amateur hockey team, completed the personnel of the Greater Pittsburgh League before going east. Immaculate Heart, Greater Pittsburgh, N. F. champions; Scott Morgan, Krogers, Jimmy Smith Club, Hazlewood Knapis, Brushton and the Oakland Ambassadors complete the list.

Circus Barnum and Art Garback, former Edgewood stars, and Miller, fast ball pitcher of the J. L. Thomas Club, will be lost to local sandlot baseball this season. This trio is located at Petrolia in Butler County and will play in the Butler League this season.

Jim Henderson, who is still suffering from the leg injury he received while playing goal for the Lawrenceville Soccer Club, is in line to manage the Whitaker Club in the City League. He is one of the best catchers on the local sandlots.

The Homestead Grays, under the direction of Cum Posey, will have another strong club this season. The Grays will be an associate member of the Negro League.

SCHOOL TENNIS CIRCUIT SET

CIRCUIT KEEPS 1933 ROSTER, OFFICERS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The Interscholastic Tennis Conference faces the 1934 campaign with precisely the same competitive setup as prevailed in its ranks a year ago. The annual conclave of the secondary institutions' net group at Taylor Allerdice High last evening disclosed that all 20 outfits enlisted in the 1933 chase are expected back in the fold, and, inasmuch as these are about the only schools around with courts available for play, it is unlikely that any additions will be recorded between now and the start of the season.

Once more the loop will be divided between city and suburban arrays, two four-team sections being slated for the former and two of three squads and one of four comprising the latter. The makeup of the circuit is as follows:

CITY GROUP

Section I — Taylor Allerdice, Peabody, Schenley and Westinghouse.

Section II—Carrick, Langley, Oliver and Perry.

SUBURBAN GROUP

Section I—Shady Side Academy, Arnold School and Duquesne Prep.

Section II—Mount Lebanon, Crafton and Bellevue.

Section III—Munhall, Swissvale, Union of Turtle Creek and Wilkinsburg.

PLAY OPENS APRIL 23

Hostilities will get under way on April 23 and entrants will meet in home-and-home engagements with each sectional rival. Matches will be staged on Mondays and Thursdays. Inter-sectional playoffs have been fixed for the week of May 21.

Leadership of the Conference remains virtually the same as heretofore, the lone change coming through withdrawal of W. H. (Foxy) Miller, of Turtle Creek, from the treasury. John H. Irwin, Allderdice boss, retains the presidency; Elmer Carroll, of Wilkinsburg, continues as vice president; Capt. William A. Palmer, Shady Side Academy athletic director, assumes the treasurership atop his secretariat. C. Lawrence Walsh, sports head in city schools, and the writer will serve again as delegates-at-large on the league executive committee.

Following the racquet gathering, Capt. Palmer announced that the Interscholastic Golf Conference will double its membership from 12 to 24 this spring. Four six-team sections are in definite prospect, Allegheny Vocational, Westinghouse, Aspinwall, Sewickley, Dormont, Mt. Lebanon, Bellevue and Central Catholic having joined up from the immediate vicinity and Greensburg, Jeannette, Latrobe and Norwin having aligned from the Westmoreland County sector.

BLAIR COUNTY INTERESTED

The 1933 roster showed Allegheny, Connelley, Peabody, Kiski, Oliver and University School in Group I and Brentwood, McKeesport, Shady Side Academy, Springdale, Union of Turtle Creek, and Wilkinsburg in Group II.

The Shady Siders likewise voiced possibility that a Blair County section may be formed to include Hollidaysburg, Altoona, Johnstown, Huntingdon and Tyrone. Butler, too, is seeking admission, which indicates that efforts will probably be turned toward bringing in such schools as Kittanning, Grove City and New Castle to establish a group in the territory north of Pittsburgh.

FAVORITES COP COURT DUELS

A light program looms for this evening in the city Class B doubles handball championship tournament in progress on the courts of the Y. M. H. A. Oonly one match is listed, the Berman brothers, Joe and Harry, carrying home club colors into an 8 o'clock battle with Parker Smith and Frank Koubek. Keystone A. C. stars, in the last contest of the quarter-final bracket.

Six contests yesterday reduced a starting field of 11 teams to a surviving group of five, with the Dave Olbum-Sam Gladstone and the Dr. Bill Lapidus-Dr. Sam Alpern pairs from the Y. M. H. A., and the Bill Kern-Vin McGuinness outfit, of the P. A. A., heading the parade into the semi-finals. Olbum and Gladstone stood out with victories over the Wallace-Wilson coalition of the Downtown Y. M. C. A. and the Burgwin-Ashcraft duo, Westinghouse Club array, that carried the Bellefielders to an extra game.

The hottest fray of the inaugural saw Lapidus and Alpern edge out their teammates, George Levenson and Dave Nathanson, 21-19, 19-21, 21-17. Kern and McGuinness were pushed vigorously by the makeshift Bellefield hook-up of Lou Gendelberg and Saul Chersky, but packed enough power to pull through in the pinches, as McGuinness showed up exceedingly well. The summary:

First round—Joe Berman and Harry Berman defeated M. F. Hunneubach and Ray Hofer, 21-6, 21-9. Sam Gladstone and Dave Olbum defeated R. H. Wallace and John Wilson, 21-16, 21-15. J. Parker Smith and Frank Koubek defeated Jerry Kimball and Lou Wallfish, 21-19, 3-21, 21-8.

Second round—V. E. McGuinness and William Kern defeated Lou Gendelberg and Saul Chersky, 19-21, 21-15, 21-15. Gladstone and Olbum defeated S. L. Burgwin and E. B. Ashcraft, 21-15, 15-21, 21-17. Dr. Phil Lapidus and Dr. Sam Alperh defeated George Levenson and Dave Nathanson, 21-19, 19-21, 21-17.

Metcalfe Leaves For Hamilton Meet

MILWAUKEE Wis., March 20.—(AP.)—Having recovered from a leg injury he received in training last week, Capt. Ralph Metcalfe, of the Marquette University track team, left today for Hamilton, Ont., where he will compete in the ninety-first Highlanders' Games tomorrow night.

Mose Butch Thrills Fans In Battle With Champ

ler said he felt the punch which opened his eye in the eighth round but did not recall being hurt in the seventh, when Butch first got into the running. The champion denied he was dazed, but it was obvious that he was hurt more than a little in both rounds.

GIZZY QUITS TO MANCINI

A bit of bungling deprived Dominic Mancini, young local lightweight, of a knockout victory over Battling Gizzy, Donora veteran, in the scheduled eight-round semi-final, when Gizzy refused to continue after being given a six-minute rest upon being hit low and claiming a foul in the seventh round, and then was declared the winner on a foul. He showed no inclination to resume fighting, and, after being ordered to continue and failing to do so, should have been counted out in his corner or ruled knocked out.

Mancini, fighting the best battle of his career here, threw in too many left hooks and swings to the body and it appeared that Gizzy took the easy way out when he was accidentally struck on the protection cup. Mancini won won every round except the second and fourth, which were even.

Billy Holt, Homewood Negro middleweight, took a beating from Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, in the second eight-rounder, failing to show any of his former fire and punching power, and Harry Weekly, of Alliance, O., gave Charley Burns, of Johnstown, a boxing lesson in all but two rounds of the first eight-rounder, but the judges voted for Burns against the referee's verdict for Weekly. Similarly, Curly Klaas, North Side light-heavyweight, bested Chuck Mullins, of Beechview, in the four-round opener and got the referee's decision, but was licked by the judges' agreement on Mullins.

AH, WHAT A NIGHT!

Red Robinson and Joe Zivic alternated as referees, with Dr. George McBeth and Lou Meininger acting as judges and Tommy Grant and Harry Camins the timers and Ray Eberle the announcer. Willie Spencer, the bike race promoter, took a bow in the ring before the semi-final.

Chuck Mullins fought throughout the first bout with his tights badly torn and ever so revealing, and Gus Camp, manager of Mancini, gave the folks a treat as he sat on the stool in his corner while his fighter stood up against the ropes during the introduction. But the two southpaws in the main event made amends for these little breaches of etiquette, and even Pete Reilly, Miller's manager, was able to turn his face Brooklynward with a happy smile at the finish.

SOUTH PASSERS FACE SOMERSET

Joe Galiszewski, veteran forward, and Charley Miskevics, a dependable guard, both regulars of the 1933 team, complete the starting lineup.

The two weeks of rest they enjoyed since the close of the regular City League playoff series should find the Orioles in the pink of condition for the Somerset engagement tonight. Since sweeping aside Perry for the second straight year in the playoff series, the Orioles added two victories to their credit by defeating the Carnegie Tech Freshies and Brentwood, the latter champion of Section XII, in the W. P. I. A. L., in post-season games. Both contests helped Coach Washabaugh keep his team on edge for the state eliminations.

SOMERSET STRONG

Somerset, crowned District V champion for the first time in the school's history, boasts a fine record, losing only one out of 14 league games. The South Side district as well as followers of the City League are excited over tonight's contest and a large crowd is expected to see the battle in the Pitt Stadium pavilion. The stadium court should not handicap the Orioles inasmuch as they have played there six times in the last two years. They defeated Perry twice in the 1933 post-season series for the City crown and vanquished Dubois and Duquesne in P. I. A. A. eliminations last season. This season they stretched their string of stadium victories to six in a row by disposing of Perry in both games of the City League playoffs.

New York Senate Gets Racing Bill

ALBANY, N. Y., March 20.—(INS.)—Senator John J. Dunnigan, Democratic leader of the senate, today introduced a racing control bill transferring jurisdiction over the sport to a new state racing commission and providing for a 15 per cent tax upon admissions, calculated to raise more than $1,000,000 a year.

The state commission proposed by Dunnigan would consist of three members appointed by the secretary of state to hold office for two terms of two, four and six years, respectively, receiving no pay. The commission would appoint an official steward to supervise each race meeting. In addition, the Jockey Club would name a steward and a third steward would be appointed by the association conducting each race meeting.

The commission would fix the maximum charge for admission, and would be authorized to prescribe rules "for effectually preventing the use of any improper device or the administering of drugs or stimulants to horses."

Revised Market Bill Still Calls for 60% Margin On New Accounts

Though the revised draft of the original Fletcher-Rayburn bill reveals decided modification in many of its provisions, the speculative fraternity did not wax enthusiastic over the changes made in the margin requirements. The measure still provides for the equivalent of 60 per cent of the market price on new commitments though it is eased to the extent that, as expected, it permits the broker to carry a customer's account down to the equivalent of a 40 per cent coverage before calling for additional margin.

In other words the margin provisions still call forthe equivalent of 150 per cent of debit balances on new commitments. This contrasts with requirements of 25 to 33 per cent under existing stock exchange rules, depending ont he size of the account involved.

Evidently the warnings sounded by various witnesses, in the course of hearings on the original document, against its highly deflationary aspects, received plenty of consideration. At any rate, one of the high spots in the redrawn document is the step taken to avert the effect of the new margin requirements on standing commitments. Should the legislation be enacted, the new margins would be effective on original commitments starting October 1 next. But the current draft of the measure provides that new limitations shall not affect standing loans until January 31, 1939. Accordingly, it would seem that the threat of wholesale liquidation has been obviated at least for a time.

Brokers state that very few marginal calls are necessary and unless prices go considerably lower most houses will have to make very few owing to the recently reduced volume of trading and the careful watch both brokers and clients have been keeping on debits during the past fe wmonths.

D. E. Woodhull, president of American Bank Note Company, told stockholders that domestic orders received in the first two and one-half months this year were 50 per cent ahead of the same period a year ago, while total business including foreign subsidiaries, showed a 30 per cent increase.

Quotations on steel scrap have declined 25c following a similar reduction a week ago, making the quotation on No. 1 heavy melting $14 to $14.50, compared with $14.25 to $14.75 previously. Threats of strikes in the automobile trade and elsewhere, with absolutely no buying by mills, are reasons for the downward revision.

STOCKS CLIMB IN LISTLESS SESSION

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP.)—Stocks struggled toward recovery today but, confronted by menacing labor situations in both the motor and railway industries, there was little vigor in the early upturn.

Many issues which suffered in yesterday's re-action rallied fractionally to a point or more, but buyers were still timid and prices soon drifted back to around their previous closing levels. Trading was again dull most of the time, although volume picked up on the declines.

Silver futures rallied around .6 to .8 of a cent an ounce and rubber, grains and cotton improved moderately. The British pound firmed in terms of the dollar, but the gold currencies were still narrow. Bonds were irregular.

The President's letter to the railroad managements and union officials, indicating that he may appoint a commission to examine the wage differences if no agreement is reached, was studied closely by the rather bearish boardrooms.

The markets had to contend not only with the possibilities of a general strike in the automobile manufacturing centers tomorrow, but the carrier wage controversy appeared to be as cloudy as ever. The counter-proposal of the rail unions, demanding an increase of 10 per cent in basic pay, was not reassuring, although hopes were expressed that some compromise would be effected.

Financial quarters usually in close touch with Washington voiced the opinion that the administration would exert its utmost efforts to avert any serious labor troubles at this time when the recovery program is making such headway.

The President's transmission to the Senate and House of a bill to establish 12 intermediate credit banks under the supervision of the Federal Reserve System had been anticipated. Much interest was shown in the Chief Executive's remarks that the bill was for the relief of the "medium-sized man in industry and commerce" and that "our improved condition nationally" had already furnished full justification for the steps which the government has taken to aid trade and industry.

Notwithstanding the labor outlook and other market handicaps, increased freight car loadings on the Santa Fe and Chesapeake & Ohio last week indicated to some observers that the total loadings for the major railroads of the country will establish another new high record for the year.

WHEAT CLOSES AT DAY'S TOP

CHICAGO, March 20.—Grain prices scored late advances today associated with favorable views taken by traders regarding the new grain exchange code signed today by President Roosevelt.

RAINEY BRINGS SPECULATION TO FORE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 20. — Speaker Rainey, in his recent comment on Secretary Morgenthau's views on silver, implied a sympathy with the doctrine that statesmen have a responsibility to keep the stock market bolstered up.

Mr. Rukeyser

During the Coolidge administration, the Chief Executive and his Secretary of the Treasury were attacked on the allegation that they felt such a responsibility.

Asked to comment on Mr. Morgenthau's intimation that Congress should do nothing more for silver, Mr. Rainey said:

"I don't think much of Mr. Morgenthau's statement. Here look at the headlines in the morning papers. They say 'Stock Market Reacts,' 'Silver Tumbles,' and such trends."

REACT ON FINANCE

This suggests the query whether we are to be subjected to a dictatorship by headlines on financial pages.

If the market goes up on the rumor that new subsidies will be granted to silver, and then reacts on indications that such legislation may not be passed, I fail to see that the corrective setback answers the fundamental economic questions underlying the silver controversy.

Knowing the proclivity of previous administrations to act in a stock minded manner, President Roosevelt has made a very commendable effort to see in terms of human beings, rather than stock prices.

Of course, every informed appraiser knows that the long swing effect of a constructive economic program will be favorable to stock prices. To that extent, politics necessarily reacts on finance. That is not only proper, but inevitable. The criticism springs up when statesmen seek in published utterances to influence day to day, or short term speculative currents.

EXAMPLES CITED

Reviewing the record, we recall than when an eminent real estate banker warned in 1927 that the country had "reached the saturation point" as to office buildings, apartment houses, hotels and apartment hotels, Mr. Mellon was quoted as disagreeing. Shortly after this statement had been digested, a downward movement in stock prices was reversed.

The following March on the seventh, when the market was nervous and hesitant, Mr. Mellon announced refunding plans somewhat ahead of the date for action, which were interpreted to mean that money rates were going to remain low. The market rallied on this news, but after the middle of the month began to wobble again. Then Mr. Mellon on the eve of his departure for Europe issued an unreservedly optimistic statement, and the market rushed upward with new celerity.

In July the stock market was again wobbly, and business statistics indicated that trade was slowing up somewhat. The President issued a statement saying that conditions were "satisfactory" and speculators began to whoop up prices at an almost record breaking pace. The subsequent announcement that the President would not run for re-election, however, started a selling wave which wiped out all the gains.

When early in January, 1928, brokers loans had risen to an unprecedented peak—a billion dollars higher than a year previous—and stock prices broke sharply on the news, press dispatches said that the President was of the opinion that the record-breaking increase in brokers' loans was not large enough to cause unfavorable comment.

ISSUE REVIVED

Referring to the significance of political intervention in matters pertaining to speculation, Ralph West Robey pointed out in the Atlantic Monthly:

"The correlation between their (Coolidge's and Mellon's) publicity expressed optimism and stock market declines has been high. If the interference has not been deliberate, the times chosen for their public utterances have been astonishingly coincidental

For my part, I do not question the motives which actuated these statesmen. I am interested here only in the wisdom of the policy of official intervention in the course of speculation.

Perhaps unwittingly, Mr. Rainey has raised the issue anew.

Mr. Morgenthau is not, in my opinion, open to attack because his honestly expressed views were followed by a speculative setback.

At this juncture, a further rise in the price level would doubtless be desirable but only if it reflected a real gain in national income and in the circulation among the people of additional goods are services.

Statesmen should deal with facts and policies, and should not feel too great a responsibility for the interpretation which speculators place upon their remarks. After all, cabinet members are not intended primarily to be stock market letter writers.

Rail Co-Ordinator Extension Favored

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP.)—The Railway Business Association Transportation Conference, organized for a study of carriers' problems by bankers, business and railroad men, recommended in a report today an extension of one year for the office of federal coordinator of transportation.

The report said there was "no necessity for government ownership of railroads." Harry A. Wheeler is chairman of the conference, while James E. Wilson, vice president of the Larkin Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Henry Bruere, president of the Bowery Savings Bank, New York, are vice chairmen.

Steel Industry Takes Offensive on Labor

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor.

THE STEEL industry yesterday took its first vigorous offensive action on the labor question when it launched a two-fisted attack on the Wagner and Connery bills. Steel's change in tactics is significant since it represents a growing tendency to reverse policy on the part of many other industries.

This change from a policy of acquiescence to all government moves to one of opposition when restrictions are found to be severe is becoming more apparent as labor disputes come closer to a showdown.

Until recently the steel industry was quietly doing most of the things it was told to do. It naturally had its own interpretations of some of its orders, and when differences of opinion and interest brought it into conflict with labor it was on the defensive rather than the offensive.

* * *

Points Out Status Of Labor Leavers

THE POSITION of the steel industry, which naturally reflects its own interests, is that employes can get all the protection which they need without cost to them through the operation of the National Industrial Recovery Act. This gives them a system of representation without entailing any financial burden. The steel industry has been trying to put across the idea to its employes that membership in national unions merely makes it necessary for them to pay for something which they can get for nothing.

The attack on the Wagner and Connery bills is built around the following statement contained in the telegram sent to Senators and Congressmen by steel executives yesterday:

"We also call to your attention the fact that the demand for this legislation emanates from this small group of professional union leaders who see their sinecures lost to them under the bill of rights for all American workers contained in Section 7A of the NIRA, which provides free of cost through government every benefit and gain to workers that union leaders have for generations been promising * * *"

Conflict Centers On National Power

THE LABOR DISPUTES which threaten to tie up major industries, are not concerned primarily with wages, hours or working conditions. It is a fight for national political and economic power. Union leaders take the stand that negotiations between industry and labor will

Chickie's Daughter

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XXII.

Pippin stood on the mountain top, the wind in her face. She was excited by the view, by the vast echoing silence and by the young man who had his arm carelessly about her waist.

"Life seems different up here," she murmured, "Clean and glorious and free."

Her hair, turned to flame in the sun, blew in the boy's face. He buried his chin in its soft fragrance and answered:

"You don't want to get away from life, do you, Pippin? Life is good."

"I don't want to get away from it," said the girl, her heart tightening. "I want swift, tempestuous life; want it shot through with color and adventure. But when you stand up here you think of other things. It makes you want to reach out somehow and be joined with the beauty."

"Novalis and the Blue Flower," said the boy. "Haven't you ever heard of him? He was a German poet, who left only a few fragments and one unfinished romance. He died more than a hundred years ago, but he was always looking for the Blue Flower—some mysterious, elusive blossom that would bring us into harmony with the perfect ideal. God, I suppose."

They were standing on the top of Tamarack Mountain, a precipitous, wildly - sculptured crag, rising 9,000 feet above sea level and projecting thin granite spires against the sapphire blue of an August sky. Two thousand feet below—wherever they looked—were beautiful little mountain lakes, gleaming like jewels.

An Unexpected Kiss

Sunset swept the harsh, rocky peaks with a strangely inspiring violet light. The lakes were sheened with rose and saffron so that the waters appeared blooming with immense flowers that deepened to purple, then slowly faded into gray.

"A person does long for harmony. You want to fling yourself out and be lost in the infinite, immortal rhythm." Pippin glanced up with a shy smile.

The young man took a long gaze into Pippin's eyes. He stopped unexpectedly and kissed her lips.

She stepped from him. She felt breathless and said excitedly: "You do that rather carelessly."

"Nice way, isn't it?"

"Most ways are nice. We'd better hurry. They'll get too far ahead of us."

Below them on the trail went Jon and a merry, homely little girl in shorts and a red sweater. Jon's girl was Betty Woods. She had freckles, green eyes and a snub nose, but she was fascinating, with a quick, epigrammatic way of talking. Boys liked her. One of those gay, incessantly talkative women who lure men before marriage and drive them crazy afterwards.

Pippin climbed down the rocky, precipitous trail, stopping now and then to fill her eyes with the beauty; to listen to the wild immensity of silence. Against the terrific granite walls of the mountains one seemed always to hear a tremendous heart beating back and forth, muffled, yet titanic, as though the whisperings, the strivings, the longings of all mortality were caught here and deathessly imprisoned.

Carries Tired Friend

She threw out abrupt phrases. The young man flung back answers that excited and disturbed her. When they reached the level and were winding through a tree-shaded path between Rainbow and Tamarack lakes, he pulled her to him quick:

"You're right for me, Pippin. You're my style. You could write poetry. You said lovely things up there. Let's do a play together next year."

She closed her eyes with a soft:

"Don't kiss me again, Gregg."

They took hands and ran until they caught sight of Jon and little Betty Woods, who were sitting on the trunk of an old tree, bathing their feet in the soft refreshing mountain waters.

Pippin felt the sweet chill of the lake steal over her feet. She thought:

"There's something hot in my heart. I wish I could cool it quickly like this."

Jon, with his six foot three, towering above the rest of them, not a trace of fatigue on his brown glistening face. As they started to tramp homeward Betty said suddenly, leaning against him:

"I'm so tired. I wish we could camp here all night."

Jon leaned down, caught Betty around her waist and swept her to his shoulder. She perched there like a little figurine, her small hand in his brown tangled hair. Then Jon went on like the giant in the fairy tale, singing huskily:

"You tell me your dreams and I'll tell you mine."

Senior at College

Gregg, with his arm about Pippin and their two beings knitted in sweet disturbing affinity, followed Jon in the song. The young voices blended with a piercing joyousness. Gregg put his lips against Pippin's ear and swung into:

"The devil was in your lips, the heavens were in your eyes, the night you told me those little white lies."

Pippin flushed and looked laughing into the young man's face. She liked the clean soapy shine of it. His intensely blue eyes with their thick stubby lashes were almost on a level with hers. She said, excited:

"Are you trying to see into my soul?"

"Yes. You've nothing there you don't want me to see?"

"Plenty."

"I've looked clear down, Pippin. Not one little sin."

He gave her a sudden quick hug. They went along winged, not feeling the rough granite stones under their feet.

He was Gregg McClintock, a senior at college and editor of the varsity comic magazine. He was interesting. He had a flame in his speech and a rollicking Bohemian zest for adventure.

Synopsis

Pippin, pretty daughter of Chickie, falls in love with Kevin McPike. Pippin and Kevin's sister, Kathie, are fast friends. Pippin is thrilled by the first real kiss she ever had—from Kevin. When Kevin goes to Europe to pursue his studies, Pippin meets Bill Lodge, a young ensign. He says he loves her, but Kevin is first in her thoughts. At a friend's home, Chickie meets Barry Dunne, the man who caused her so much sorrow. Chickie is afraid she will have to tell Pippin of her past. Pippin goes to a party with Bill, but after returning seems unhappy. She tells her father what she heard about her mother, and that she thought him responsible. David explains to her what really happened and Pippin is again happy. Chickie tells Pippin the real story of her life. The family goes to the country.

Now Go On

Last week during a dance at Tahoe Tavern, Pippin met him. Now every day Gregg took the long drive over the mountain road to Echo, appearing in time for early morning hikes and remaining for supper cooked under romantic harvest moons.

They made a bonfire on the huge granite slabs that bordered the lake. They cooked steaks, and leaning against each other sang until the sheer forbidding mountain walls grew gentle with the happy echoes. Gregg made a place for Pippin's head against his shoulder. He talked. Into the girl's mind came a vision of new faraway world's to roam and twisted gypsy trails that a pair of happy souls—Pippin and Gregg for instance—would find so intoxicating to explore together. It was exciting; it made your heart flush.

Fond Farewell

Afterwards Jon lounged on the rim of his small boat, a romantic figure in blue dungarees, a red cap over his thick brown curls. He smoked and assumed an immense oblivion of Pippin and Gregg, who sat in the cockpit, murmuring softly while the evening dark stole over the waters.

"It's such a long night until tomorrow. It's a hundred years till I see you again."

She felt her heart bound to the deep thump of his.

They delivered Gregg at the far shore. Jon sent his boat with a white flash across the now purple waters. He didn't stop at their pier, but went like a streak through the narrow tree darkened channel between upper and lower Echo. In a remote inlet he let the engine die down.

Jon had a harsh, fighting line to his young jaw; a straight onward look in his big eyes. These were pure amber in color. They were lights in his dark Indian tan. Jon's mouth was straight and full. It had eagerness where Pippin's had passion; it had purpose where hers had lure.

He leaned down and offered Pippin a cigaret. When she took vague, ineffectual puffs, he asked:

"How is it you've not taken up smoking?"

"I'd love it. So graceful. But I'm never going to drink—but smoking is just one little vice I'm mad to cultivate."

Scolded for Kiss

Jon took a harsh, audible breath:

"Do you know much about vice, Pippin? Guess you learned a thing or two last year."

"Guess you can always learn. Especially when you live with a hundred other girls in very close quarters."

"Was there a lot going on?"

"More than some people think—not half as much as others claim."

"Do you like Gregg very much?"

"His mind interests me."

"Is that why you kissed him on the mountain top?"

"I didn't say it was only his mind I like," Pippin flared. "You weren't supposed to see. You certainly don't think there's harm in a kiss, do you?"

"You've only known him a week! I should think it would be rather demeaning to a girl like you to feel you haven't attraction enough or intelligence enough to hold a fellow without letting him pet you. David's against it—says its stupid to acquire habits you can avoid."

"That's not fair, Jon. I don't let fellows pet me. You're surely not going to say you don't kiss Betty . . . and other girls."

"I've known Betty for years, so it's different."

"Of course, it's different. It's much worse. You make it a serious, weighty matter. I toss them off lightly—kiss as you go and forget it. The world would be much better if we adopted a nonchalant attitude toward sex . . . and refused to make problems and sins of gay, delicious things like kisses."

Jon puffed into the dark. In the red glow of a match that he now lighted, Pippin saw a suffering line—a deep trouble on his mouth. She thought with a pang:

"He's afraid. Jon thinks I'm wild, and he's afraid."

GRANT'S SPOTTSYLVANIA ATTACK, WILDERNESS CAMPAIGN

Grant, the hero of Vicksburg and Chattanooga, at the head of the Potomac army, started his campaign of the Wilderness (see map above right) May, 1864. In the Battle of Spottsylvania his able general, Sedgewick, fell. Not victor but neither defeated, though suffering heavy losses, Grant advanced southward. At Cold Harbor (June) another bloody engagement followed. Unable to penetrate Lee's defense line around Richmond, he continued south, besieging the Fortress Petersburg. A Pennsylvania detachment of Gen. Burnside's corps dug a mine under one of the main redoubts, blowing it to pieces July 30, opening a breach in the fortifications. The Union troops, however, did not advance, due to a blunder caused by Gen. Meade's change of attack line shortly before, also through inefficiency of some Union officers, thus defeating Grant's brilliant strategy, resulting in heavy losses of Union soldiers. (U. S. History)

DEATH OF GEN. SEDGEWICK, MAY 9, 1864

INSTALLATION OF THE THREE "CONSULS" OF FRANCE (NOV. 9, 1799)

Napoleon, representing his defeat in Egypt as victory, was greeted with enthusiasm in France, threatened by the Second Coalition (Great Britain, Russia, Austria mainly). Dissolving the National Convention and overthrowing the Directory at points of bayonets, Napoleon was decreed, together with Sieyes and Ducos, as member of the executive committee of three and became virtually the master.

Immediately, with an army, he crossed the Alps and struck at Austria from Italy, while his generals advanced with other troops into Bavaria. Victorious (Marengo, Italy, Hohenlinden, Bavaria, 1800) Austria had to reaffirm the Treaty of Campo Formio of 1797.

Russia withdrew from the coalition and with Great Britain Napoleon concluded the treaty of Amiens (1802) which turned out to be a truce of short duration. After a Painting by Louder at Versailles

FOREST PROTECTION—KEYSTONE OF CONSERVATION

As long as the plague of flames can sweep away more in a week than a constructive forester can accomplish in 10 years, conservation is meaningless. Federal, state laws provide organizations and equipment to detect and fight fires. During Spring and Fall forests are under steady observation from lookout points, developed from the "crow's nest" (1) to steel towers (2) with living quarters (3) connected by telephone lines to fire wardens, ready with their crews, to suppress any fire at start. FLUORINE—HYDROFLUORIC ACID

Fluorine (F), a greenish yellow gas, is one of the most active elements combining directly with hydrogen even in dark. Hydrogen fluoride (HF), with water, the hydrofluoric acid, is used for etching glass. It can be obtained from Fremy's salt, heated in one platinum or copper container of the still (above), HF condensing in the other. Reaction: $KHF_2 = KF + HF$. Fluorine occurs in nature in the mineral fluorspar or fluorite (CaF_2) and cryolite (Na_3AlF_6). Bones and enamel of the teeth contain traces of fluorides. (Chemistry)

SKIN—VITAL ORGAN OF SENSE, ELIMINATION, PROTECTION

The skin, besides being the organ of touch, is one of elimination. Its about 2,500,000 sweat glands excrete much of the nitrogeneous waste of the body by perspiration, relieving the kidneys. The amount of sweat depends, in health, upon temperature, exercise and averages about two quarts a day. By evaporation, it cools the skin. Destruction of skin on more than one-third of original area results in death. Interference with normal perspiration (the skin covered by dirt, powder, paint) tends to retain poisons in body, hence destructive to health; besides the clogging of the pores (openings of the ducts of sweat glands) causes the pressure of the retained sweat to enlarge the pores.

The skin is also a protective organ preventing the escape of blood and lymph and entrance of foreign material, bacteria; it shields the sensory nerves by its pigments in the malpighian layer against injury from light.

The color of the skin—from milk white to black—depends from the pigment it contains and amount of blood suffusing it. Its texture varies from satiny smoothness to coarse roughness. It has furrows everywhere, some of them characteristic for the individual, serving as identification (fingerprints). Some criminals change it by skin grafting.

Take Out Some Pedestrian Insurance.

We must do something about motor accidents in addition to taking an active role in them.

There were 275,710 pedestrians in accidents last year. Some got up and walked away. But all of them limped.

The drivers don't have to worry. So we will lay the cornerstone for a new set of pedestrian rules.

1—Never walk along the road even if you have to go some place.

2—Don't cross the street in the middle of the block. Cross at the corner where there are more streets.

3—Don't walk out from in back of a parked car without first looking to the left and then to the right. If a crow will do that in a cornfield it must be pretty good advice.

4—Don't cross the street at all. Be satisfied with the side you are on.

5—Don't stroll on the highways or run through a forest fire on a diagonal.

6—When you see a green light make sure it ain't in a drugstore window.

7—When you reach a safety zone don't let your elbows or ears project.

8—When getting off a street car always face in the direction the car is headed. That puts your back to traffic. But you can absorb the bumps better that way.

9—Miscellaneous. There were 5,760 accidents of this sort last year. Everybody got a nice repaint job with iodine.

10—Don't walk at all. Why be a pedestrian in the low-priced field? Take a spoonful of cod liver oil every day and streamline yourself.

11—Your life is in danger every time you step out of your home. Send your wife on the errands.

12—Don't walk past other pedestrians on the right. We're speed mad even on busted arches. Consult your dentist twice a year and keep out of Chicago grain pools.

The Shift at City Hall

The Removal of Mr. Smith as Public Safety Director Would Be for the Good of the Service.

Whether Ralph E. Smith can give the people first-class service as chairman of the Traction Conference Board remains to be seen. If he has special qualifications for this important post, the public, we believe, is not familiar with them.

But there can be no doubt that it would be for the good of the service that he be removed from his position as Public Safety Director. There could not be good team-work in the department with the Director and the Police Superintendent at loggerheads, and that has been the situation affecting Mr. Smith and Supt. Ben R. Marshall.

Mayor W. N. McNair must shoulder the responsibility for that. After stating that he would not interfere with his department heads in the direction of their departments, he did interfere in Mr. Smith's department. Mr. Smith dismissed Mr. Marshall as police superintendent, and Mayor McNair promptly reinstated him.

It was for Pittsburgh's good, we believe, that Supt. Marshall was reinstated. He is an efficient officer and proved himself of high caliber when he protested against the dismissal of some of the city detectives for political reasons. People can sleep more confidently with such a police chief. But Mr. Smith had just cause for complaint against Mayor McNair and if he had been a prouder man would have resigned rather than submit to the humiliation to which the Mayor subjected him.

It is now to be hoped that the next Public Safety Director will see eye to eye with Supt. Marshall and object as vigorously as he to proposals to use the Police Bureau for political purposes.

Good Forecasting

Mr. Brotzman Has Proved Remarkably Accurate in Predicting the Weather.

Comfort, health and many other things affecting our welfare are so dependent on the weather, and the weather in Pittsburgh is so fickle, that it is no wonder that a large part of the population inquire daily what the morrow is to bring forth.

Pittsburgh is fortunate in having, in W. S. Brotzman, an official weather forecaster whose predictions are usually accurate. He foretold with remarkable precision the cold wave that arrived Sunday.

Saturday was balmy. Spring seemed to have arrived. In the suburbs robins and grackles were active. Gardeners set out rose bushes. The temperature rose to 70. The backbone of winter appeared to have been broken.

Mr. Brotzman warned that snow was coming and predicted that the mercury would fall to between 15 and 20 Sunday night. Nothing seemed more improbable. The mercury actually did drop to 13.

People are accustomed to say of weather forecasts that "the paper says" that it is going to do this or that, instead of that Mr. Brotzman or the United States Weather Bureau, as quoted in the paper, makes the prediction. Any paper might be proud to be credited with forecasts that hit the mark as often as Mr. Brotzman's do.

A Taxpayers' Uprising

The Harrisburg Meeting May Be a Powerful Influence in Modernizing Local Government.

Pittsburgh, it is gratifying to note, will be represented by a strong delegation at the state convention of real estate taxpayers' associations in Harrisburg tomorrow.

This meeting will be in the nature of an uprising of the taxpayers in protest against unfair and unnecessary burdens that they are called upon to bear.

These unfair and unnecessary burdens are the taxes imposed for the support of political parasites.

Our local governments, still patterned after the models that were in vogue in the days of the oxcart, require modernization. By consolidating small administrative districts and eliminating overlapping services, the citizens will find it possible to dispense with the services of a horde of superfluous officeholders, and thus to effect an appreciable reduction in taxes.

The Harrisburg meeting is vitally interested in this problem, and should prove a powerful influence in putting the desired reforms into effect.

'Stream-Lined Nudists'

Next Summer.

Women's fashions for next Summer bid fair to be fancy-free and foot-loose in the most literal interpretation of that time-honored phrase.

A sort of exotic stream-lined modified nudism is the decision of the designers who, in comfortably steam-heated workshops, are racking their brains to find ways of satisfying feminine demands for new hot-weather fashion fancies.

Legs will be almost as much in evidence on city streets as on beaches. Skirts will be split at the side above the knee, and in some sports models they will be split up to the waist. Evening gowns will have stiff airplane wings. Buttons will be made of such tropical stuff as ebony, straw and isinglass.

And as for beach clothes, you had better wait and see, because there isn't enough material to make description possible. Some of the mannikins, as yet unconverted to nudism, blushed so much when they wore the bathing suits that the buyers thought they had fresh coats of new sunburn.

'Million Dollar Wall Paper'

Cheaper Now Than Its Real Article.

Some Chicago millionaires with a sense of humor are planning a stock-salesman's chamber of horrors.

A dining room in the new Union League Clubhouse is to be papered with stock and bonds once worth a million dollars and now worth less than decent wall paper. This "Million Dollar Room, or the Folly of 1929," quite appropriately looks out over Chicago's stock and bond center in La Salle street.

It's supposed to be a both amusing and educational stunt, creating a permanent warning against over speculation. But cynics already say that when the room needs a new coat of wall paper, there'll probably be a new crop of worthless stocks and bonds in the safety vaults of the club members.

Unfinished Business

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 20.—John Erskine is America's most unaffected high-brow. An instructor of English literature, a vestryman of Trinity, a concert pianist and composer of operas and chamber music, a best selling popular novelist and compiler of college textbooks, he fits into any gathering.

He is a Scot, in his middle fifties, tall and slips into evening clothes like a hand in a well turned glove. None of his friends thinks of calling him anything but "John." He can play billiards at a local conservative club with the Tories and join the gang later at the Dutch Treat for a "Sweet Adeline" huddle.

His intellect seems affixed to the human organism in the manner of a rudder. He can detach it and immediately become one of the boys and more than any individual of his time has cracked the nonsense that the first duty of the academician is exclusion.

He is everywhere, the first night, the cocktail party, symphony and the opera, bright-eyed and flushed with enthusiasm. Ending for all time the fixation that to be professional one must be a pedantic bore. Nor does he varnish himself with any false look of contentment. He has a good time anywhere.

Very few give more freely or gratuitously of their talents than Julius Tannen. Due to the times, his theatrical engagements have been few and far between the past years, but no call for celebrity luncheon, banquet or stage benefit has gone unheeded. In a verbal two-handed slugfest he has no equal since Arnold Daly. And he's still as glib-tongued and enthusiastic as when as a standard act he was the chatterbox of vaudeville.

They were talking about one of the American expatriates known as the best prevaricator around the rue Danou bars. He was reported in recent Paris riot dispatches as badly wounded in the leg and dying. "Probably tried to jab himself in the arm and missed," observed Erskine Gwynne without looking up from the backgammon board.

Now and then I like to invade that jungle of musquash, moleskin, beaver and sometimes mink to the No Man's Land where wives have tea and wait for husbands to come from business. An eavesdropper—and I'm always one—may hear the lowdown on husbands, their whims, amusing irritabilities and domestic weaknesses. And these are the respectable places, so few are left any more, where the gigolo is looked upon with disgust.

I think the most illuminating story I've read about Hollywood, a clear-cut cameo, was that of Helen Young's in a recent Delineator. Mrs. Young is the mother of Elizabeth Young, and went there with her daughter to steady her steps upward to stardom. She writes in straight-away fashion of a mother's reaction to the cinema capital. A wholesome impression that it is a sympathetic community of honest endeavor and not the den of iniquity it is painted.

When Blanche Bates was playing an engagement in New York a number of years ago, her husband, George Creel, was also here on a magazine assignment. Thus their young son Bates was in charge of a governess in San Francisco. The boy went with the nurse nightly to a neighboring telegraph office where a daily report of his well-being was sent to his parents. The manager grew to know the lad and told him that whenever he wanted to tell his parents anything to come right in and write out his messages. Several days later he did and this was it: "Dear Mama and Papa: Something perfectly awful has happened.—Bates." Miss Bates was about ready to appear on the stage when the message was received. Restoratives were applied while her husband tried frantically to get San Francisco on the phone. It developed it was the son's way of gently breaking the news his kittie had died.

Vash Young, the insurance man, who never wrote a line for print until—"A Fortune to Share" became a best seller, rang the bell again with "No, Thank You," dealing frankly with his own experiences with money, liquor and religion. Publishers have records of six other instances in the past ten years of best selling books coming from inexperienced writers—which goes to show writing is perhaps not the difficult art it is cracked up to be. Which is what I have long contended.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

A Letter to Young People

Dear Bill and Eleanor:

You must have known, when you wrote me, that hundreds of just such letters from other young people pile across this desk every week. And so you won't mind if I give you a sort of mass answer, will you?

Your letter certainly does put our Older Generation on the spot. You don't bother to pull your punches when you tell us what we've done to you, and to this world you're inheriting. You're contemptuous and bitter—and I don't blame you. We certainly have made a mess of things.

And there isn't much excuse for us. We had plenty of warnings. The depression didn't happen over night. It had been coming for 50 years. Indeed, I suppose it has always been coming—and is the inevitable result of our general stupidity and selfishness. All of this the Wise Boys have been telling us for hundreds of years; so we could have "done something about it" long ago, if we'd wished. But we didn't.

And now you're paying the price. And, as you point out with considerable heat, it's a damnable price. For you haven't even the comfort of dreaming, which we had in our youth. You're pushed up against the ugly, seemingly hopeless reality of our present life almost before you're out of baby buggies. You know, before you start, that the cards are stacked against you. Worse yet, you know there isn't any organized deck on which to bet—nor any regular rules for dealing.

Most older people won't admit all this. They prefer to be ostriches—hide their heads in sentimental sands and kick the wind out of youth if it dares to tweak their pompous tail feathers.

But what does that buy us? You know—and we can't kid you—what a mess things are in. So why not admit it and try to get together? That's what I am trying to tell you, Bill and Eleanor. And that's why I'm prefacing my tip to you with this humiliating frankness.

We oldsters DO deserve all you've said of us. This world IS "the helluva place," and you HAVEN'T "the breaks one oughtta give a pup." And yet—things aren't as black as you think they are. Nor are you as useless.

YOUR LIFE HAS A MEANING, EVEN IF IT HASN'T A JOB.

THERE ARE THINGS IN WHICH YOU CAN BELIEVE, EVEN THOUGH WE HAVEN'T, AS YET, FOUND ALL THE ANSWERS.

AND LIFE IS STILL WORTH LIVING IN 1934!

Your life has a meaning because you are, literally, the "hope of the world." That's an old phrase, but it never was as true as it is today. The hope of this world lies in youth. You haven't any experience, and not as much wisdom, perhaps, as you think you have. We oldsters, however, can still contribute sufficient of these. But you have something much more valuable than wisdom and experience. You have Faith and Fury!

FAITH AND FURY — THESE ARE THE THINGS WHICH HAVE ALWAYS SAVED THE WORLD AND WHICH WILL SAVE IT TODAY. THESE ARE THE THINGS WHICH GIVE MEANING TO YOUR LIVES. THESE ARE THE THINGS IN WHICH YOU MAY BELIEVE; FOR WHICH YOU CAN STILL BATTLE.

I know you've been cheated of your rightful dreams and chances—and it makes me furious and ashamed. I know you're discouraged, often desperate, and my heart aches over that. But still I'm telling you—

Even though you're in rags, life can be glorious for you—if you'll have it so. If you'll only keep fighting . . . keep hoping . . . refuse to compromise or surrender . . . keep on believing that life should be, can be, glorious for men!

BELIEVE!

BELIEVE IN YOURSELVES!

BELIEVE IN YOUR OWN FAITH!

BELIEVE IN YOUR OWN FURY!

Believe in them against all arguments, all pessimism, all discouraging evidence, all threats and warnings and cowardly cautions.

Believe in them because they really are—not human hallucination, or human discontent, but the fire of Life itself, dragging men out of the mud, burning away their dross—as your grandfathers in Europe, as your fathers in America burned when they, too, fought for freedom and equality and a decent deal for all.

They, too, were in rags . . . without jobs . . . without seeming chance against hopeless odds. BUT BY THEIR VERY BURNING . . . BY THE DIVINE MADNESS OF THEIR RECKLESS FAITH . . . THEY MADE THEIR OWN ODDS AND ACHIEVED THE IMPOSSIBLE!

You, too, can do it—if you think you can!

Your Friend.

A Treaty Navy

By FREDERICK HALE

United States Senator From Maine

Reprinted From the Congressional Record of March 6, 1934.

SINCE THE Washington Treaty in 1922 we have sought, by not building up our Navy, to influence other countries not to build up theirs. Our example has not been followed.

While up to two years ago we had built but very few ships since 1922, all of the other great naval powers had materially improved their naval armament during the same time by adding new ships and by replacing worn-out ships with modern up-to-date vessels.

Battleships, under the Washington and London treaties, we may not build or replace.

Aircraft carriers and cruisers, both eight-inch gun and six-inch gun, we have very well provided for through the annual appropriations and through the money obtained from the public works appropriation, but in destroyers and submarines we are far below our treaty allowance.

At the close of the war we found ourselves, due to the demands of our allies for destroyer protection against submarines, with a very great number of destroyers either built or contracted for before or during the war, and we still have some 280 of these old vessels in our possession.

This year the newest of these destroyers becomes over age under the terms of the London treaty. There is still left considerable usefulness in these old destroyers, but with their smaller guns, lesser cruising radius, and inferior seagoing efficiency in rough weather, they are in no way to be compared with the destroyer of these later days.

AS I HAVE said, all of these old destroyers of ours are of prewar design. Until two years ago no new destroyers had been laid down since the Washington treaty in 1922. Within the past two years 32 modern destroyers have been contracted for and eight have already been laid down. Our treaty quota is about 90 destroyers.

In submarines, we have 80 vessels, but of these, counting those now in process of construction, only 24 will be under age at the close of the year 1936, when by treaty agreement we must destroy any surplus tonnage that we have over and above the 50,700 tons allowed under the London treaty. This will mean that we must destroy, before the close of the year 1936, 39 of our older submarines.

In the same way in the destroyer class, where our treaty quota is 150,000 tons, we shall, under the London treaty agreement, have to destroy some 160 of the old destroyers.

UNLESS ADDITIONAL ships, therefore, are built, our Navy on December 31, 1936, will consist of the following ships, built and building:

Capital ships, 15, of 455,400 tons: seven over age.

Seven of these ships will be over age, but as the same will apply to the capital-ship quota of the other powers, that is not a serious defect.

Aircraft carriers, six, of 131,300 tons.

Cruisers "A," 18, of 172,650 tons (including one provided for in the appropriation bill which has recently passed the Senate.)

Cruisers "B," 17, of 140,500 tons (including three provided for in the Appropriation Bill which has recently passed the Senate.)

Destroyers, 123, of 150,000 tons; 32 new destroyers, of 50,800 tons; 91 old destroyers, of 99,200 tons.

Submarines, 24, of 32,270 tons, new and not over age; 25, of 20,430 tons, over age.

SO, EXCEPT for the ships now building, which will come into commission before the close of the year 1936, we shall at that time, under the treaty requirements scrap all tonnage in all classes of ships over and above our treaty quotas, be in a far weaker condition in case of hostilities than we are at the present time.

We might take care of our lack of modern destroyers at the present time, should hostilities occur, with our overabundance of old destroyers which still have some fighting value, but we shall not have these vessels after 1936.

In the same way we might utilize our overabundance of old submarines but, as in the case of destroyers, not after the close of the year 1936.

Our Navy, while it will be well provided with battleships, airplane carriers, and cruisers, will be deplorably weak in destroyers and submarines, both integral and necessary parts of the fleet, and we shall be very much in the position of a man who has a new, expensive, high-power automobile with two weak tires on the front wheels.

WE HAVE got to have new ships if we are to keep up our Navy. No navy lasts forever. Under the terms agreed upon in the London treaty, aircraft carriers and cruisers are allotted an under-age life of 20 years, destroyers of 16 years (except those laid down before 1920), submarines 13 years.

During these terms, these ships unless destroyed may not be replaced. Granting an average life of 20 years, and the average would be very considerably less than that, a fleet must in its entirety be replaced in 20 years if it is to be kept up to full treaty strength.

The cost of replacement of an entire treaty navy, based on the cost per ton of each class of ship, taking the figures that were in existence before we went off the gold standard, would be $1,747,000,000 or an annual replacement cost of ninety-six-odd million dollars.

Leaving out the battleships, which under the terms of the Washington and London treaties we cannot replace, the annual cost of replacement of so much of our Navy as would constitute a treaty navy would be sixty-eight-and-one-half-odd million dollars. Our annual expenditures for this purpose in the 10 years following the Washington treaty has been less than $40,000,000, or more than $26,000,000 a year below what the cost of replacement of a treaty navy would be.

HAD THE other powers kept on with their old ships and not replaced them when they became over age, we could well do the same thing and still maintain our relative strength; but as it happens Japan will wind up the year 1936 within some 3,000 tons—or less than one-half the tonnage of one small cruiser—of her maximum allowance of modern, up-to-date ships; and Great Britain, though unless she speeds up her building program she will not be up fully to her treaty quota by 1936, will be far better off than we are and with more than twice as many modern destroyers as ours and with half again as many modern submarines; her shortage in under-age ships will not fall almost entirely on two classes of necessary ships, as does our own.

If we are to maintain our relative strength, we have got to spend money on our Navy.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

The new year for you may not have started as bright and encouraging as the early part of last year.

But there are prospects of greater happiness for a larger number of persons in the year of 1934, so you should be hopeful.

There is every indication that more money will be in circulation, and that means more employment.

More people working and more spending for necessities makes for a fortunate economic circle.

Big business wants industrial activity, so that it can pay for investments in building and machinery.

Those who in the past have enjoyed the largest incomes have seen them dwindle to a small fraction of what they once were.

There have been years of such bad conditions that many of those, with investments in industry, are making a very determined effort to bring back industrial activity.

With so many forces, federal, civic and industrial, striving for a certain definite result, how can anyone fail to predict that 1934 will be better than 1933.

So be optimistic.
